6-YEAR FOOD PROBE DEMANDED

Today

A Dangerous Embargo.
Can Uncle Sam Afford It?
Billy Sunday Says No.
Four Things You Need.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.

A GASOLINE price war holds public interest for the moment here. Standard Oil of California's cut of two cents, made to meet erratic price cutting, will be followed by deeper cuts by other companies. The oil situation is bad, and an elimination process will gradually weed out weaker sisters. Then consumers that have been buying gas too cheap will even up matters by paying too much.

THE ANTIQUATED Sherman Act preventing common-sense business arrangements makes conditions worse. Some American companies demand an embargo on oil from foreign countries. Powerful companies that own inexhaustible subterranean "lakes of oil" in Venezuela and elsewhere oppose the embargo.

They want to bring in their cheap foreign oil. They are protecting this country's interests, perhaps without knowing or caring. An embargo would hasten the exhaustion of American wells, putting consumers and the mother industry at the mercy of foreign well owners. What that would mean, the country learned when Britain controlled rubber and regulated the price.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S veto of the soldiers' bonus bill expressed his sincere conviction that the bill would be harmful to the country and the men. Repassage on the bill over the veto will, perhaps, decide whether the President and Mr. Mellon or congressmen and service men were right.

MANY BELIEVE that making it possible for three million men to spend a billion and a half of dollars quickly will help business and not ruin Uncle Sam. He found ten billions, quickly enough, when foreign nations wanted the money and survived that, although many of the billions will never come back from Europe.

BILLY SUNDAY, at whose name gorgons and chimeras dire, yes, even Satan himself, shiver and shake, refuses an enormous sum offered for moving picture work. He makes a mistake, neglecting to put conversion and saving of souls on a production basis.

His speeches lash sinners, describe hell in a way to keep you awake, searching your conscience. But what are words, compared with sight. Seeing is believing.

Irving Thalberg, of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, would make a picture of hell in action, the arch field, devouring sinners at each of his three mouths, the horrid dog Cerberus with his assorted barks, the terrible hag, swallowing her young, and the sawdust paths of repentant would be crowded.

BILLY SUNDAY'S voice would be heard, above the crackling of flames, and the wailing of the sinners saying "I told you so." What an opportunity. And at the end, a close-up of Billy Sunday, and "Ma" Sunday, their work on earth done, rising to glory, a million angels crowding to congratulate them, saying:

It's thanks to you, Billy, that I am up here, instead of down there."

IF YOU have four things, intelligence, energy, money and interest in the welfare of others, you can do good work.

Mrs. Greenway, of Tucson, Ariz., has the four. She started a furniture factory, for ex-service men not sick enough for a hospital but needing recuperation in a perfect climate. That did much good.

Then she built and is running a Tucson hotel, made up of separate bungalows, all furniture made by the service men, and all for sale to guests. Just at present, the place is packed, but try to go there anyhow, if you go to Tucson. If you do not go you make a mistake.

SUCH A WOMAN as Mrs. Greenway, finding a way to help men injured in their country's service, working hard with no profit, and little thanks for herself, should be at least praised. Mr. "Pepper," Tucson's king of all newsboys, assures you that Mrs. Greenway is "an incomparable lady," putting the accent on "incomparable," on the ante-penultimate syllable, "par." He says:

"She gave me two tickets for the opera that cost at least $5 a piece.

"It was called 'The Walker' and say, you never heard that kind of music in your life."

This indorsement of his Walkure would gratify Wagner.

HOOVER VETO OVERRIDDEN IN SENATE

Bonus Enacted Into Law as Upper House Passes Bill Over President's Head

By PIERCE MILLER
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The $700,000,000 World War veterans' compensation loan bill became a law this afternoon despite President Hoover's opposition when the Senate joined with the House in overriding the presidential veto.

A huge crowd jammed the galleries when, after several hours' debate, the Senate voted to pass the bill, the "President's objections to the contrary notwithstanding."

The ballot completed enactment of the bill, despite the President's veto, since the House yesterday overrode his objections by the constitutional two-thirds majority.

VOTE 76 TO 17

The Senate vote was 76 to override Mr. Hoover and 17 to uphold his veto.

With the bill a law, administrative machinery was set in motion to make loans available immediately.

The Senate began debate on overriding the President's veto as soon as it met today.

DEFENDS BONUS

Predicting that there probably would be an increase in taxes next winter, but declaring it would be due to a budgetary deficit and not the veterans' compensation loan

CAPONE GETS SIX MONTHS IN JAIL

Guilty of Contempt in U. S. Court; Wins 30-Day Stay To Prepare His Appeal

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Al Capone was convicted of contempt in Federal Court today and sentenced to six months in jail.

Judge Wilkerson in announcing his decision declared it was evident the affidavit which attempted to show Capone was ill and in bed in Miami, Fla., when he was wanted by the government in Chicago two years ago, was "glaringly false."

The effect of the affidavit, the judge declared, was to "hamper the administration of justice" and that "this court is not to be tampered with."

30 DAY STAY

The court allowed Capone his freedom under the same bond of $5,000 and a continuance of 30 days from Monday to prepare his appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. It ordered the prosecution not to prepare the order for commitment until next Monday. The defense pleaded unpreparedness for an appeal in view of the state of the record and suddenness of the decision.

The contempt consisted of Capone's failure to appear before a federal grand jury in 1929. He sent an affidavit, accompanied by a doctor's certificate from his Miami (Fla.) home that he was too ill to risk a trip to Chicago. Later, the federal attorney charged, it was learned that Capone had been at the races and had made a trip to Bermuda during the time of his alleged illness.

CALLS DOCTORS

During the hearing Capone produced two physicians and two nurses who testified that the defendant was really ill at the time he refused to come to Chicago. They said removal from the mild climate of Florida to the rigorous North might cause a relapse. The gang leader returned to Chicago Friday secretly and kept himself secluded until the case was called. He slipped into the Federal Court room heavily guarded and unobserved on the three days of the hearing.

He talked with newspaper men during the trial, but today refused to answer a telephone call from London, saying he knew no one there. During the last hours of argument he was told that his chief lieutenant, Tony Volpe, had been ordered deported.

WOMEN ACT TO FORCE HEARING

Houston Hints Grand Jury Action If Council Fails To Heed Voters' League

An investigation of all supply and food contracts made by the City Department of Supplies in the last six years, was demanded in a letter formulated by the executive board of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters and approved at a meeting of the Friday Morning Club of that organization, today in Carnegie Music Hall.

The letter, addressed to President John S. Herron, of City Council, sets forth that a resolution adopted by the executive board, asked that certified public accountants examine all books and records of the supplies department, as Council was not in a position to conduct such an inquiry.

BOTH CONCERNED

Both Mayor Charles H. Kline and former Director of Supplies Bertram L. Succop, whom he recently discharged, are involved, the letter states and "it would seem both impossible and absurd for the Mayor to investigate himself as the executive head of the city."

For Council to permit the present state of affair to continue, the women said, would result in Council itself "becoming a party to the flagrant misuse of funds."

The letter was signed by Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, president of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters.

John D. Houston, whose charges in a letter to council started the investigation, today said:

"Council has it in its power to grant the proper redress, if it will. If a majority in council defers to the mayor, rather than to the outraged taxpayers, then the last resort is the grand jury."

KLINE SCANS APPLICANTS

Other developments today in the city's food contract muddle were:

1. Mayor Charles H. Kline was attempting to select a new director from the more than 25 applicants. He expected to announce Succop's successor within a few days.

2. Controller James F. Kerr has the report of the Bureau of Governmental Research on its recommendations for a new system of specifications in the department, and intimated he

John A. Keplar, 35, of 1800 California avenue, McKeesport, a witness to the shooting, reported that McGreevy, holding his hands

Gandhi Conference With Viceroy Fails

NEW DELHI, India, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Mahatma Gandhi and the viceroy of India, Lord Irwin, had a long conference today and after its conclusion it was understood they had failed to agree on a vital point of the pending peace negotiations. After the meeting Gandhi said the talks "might be resumed," this was taken to mean that it would be again necessary to refer the subject matter of the conversation to the British government for a decision.

20 ESCAPE FIRE IN EAST END

A spectacular three-alarm fire which threatened for a time to destroy the structure broke out in the Negley Building at 6200 Penn avenue, the heart of East Liberty, today, and sent 20 or more office workers and four families rushing to the streets.

Two women and a baby escaped by the fire escapes to an adjoining building, two other women were taken down aerial ladders by firemen and a fourth woman, 87 years old, was burned and overcome by smoke.

An elevator operator, Steve Jaworski, 20, of Dawson street, was

Will an Apple Each Day Keep The Bonus Away?

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

President Hoover sent his bonus veto to the House yesterday. The House sends it back today. Indicating that legislation has reached the ping-pong stage.

Mr. Hoover thinks there is no immediate distress among veterans. But will an apple a day keep the bonus away?

Congress will send the President's veto back and promises to veto his veto as long as he vetoes their veto.

Then they all sing that pathetic old throat gargle: "When Shall Veto Meet Again?"

A veteran spots his congressman on the street and says: "Wattcha doing for me?"

The congressman replies, "Well, the weather's getting warmer, aint it?"

That's something. But

That needy cases will receive the first consideration, Shortly issued an appeal to veterans. He said:

"It would be considerate of those veterans who are employed or not in immediate need of loans to delay making application for several weeks. This will give the bureau an opportunity to provide loans to the needy cases without delay."

Warner Recovering, Plane Brings His Kin

HAVANA, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Lewis Warner, 22-year-old son of Harry M. Warner, motion picture producer, who has been seriously ill at the Anglo-American Hospital, was reported nearing recovery today. Hospital officials say the tooth infection which menaced young Warner's life has been localized.

AID PLAN PUTS MORE TO WORK

The list of city improvement projects on which laborers supplied by the Allegheny County Emergency Association will work, was increased to 11 yesterday when City Engineer Charles M. Reppert sent a requisition to the association for 20 men to remove rock from the Mt. Washington roadway under the Monongahela incline. The work will start Monday.

The Pittsburgh plan for stabilization of employment, as advanced by the association, was put into effect yesterday when 188 men went to work on public improvements. This number was increased to 200 today and on Monday 200 more will be added. By Thursday there will be 644 men working, it was said at association headquarters.

Preliminary to the actual operation of its work program, the association provided funds for those

Queen Breaks Rule In Gift to Bride

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Queen Mary has broken her rule about wedding presents.

Usually brides in the court receive from the Queen a piece of jewelry set with the royal cipher. But to the Hon. Imogene Grenfell, who, yesterday, married Viscount Gage, a captain of the Coldstream Guards, she gave a beautiful dressing case.

Lady Gage is the younger daughter of Lord and Lady Desborough, who, for many years, has been a lady-in-waiting to the Queen.

Club Alabam' Open Again With New Clark Permit

Lithe dancers swayed to the rhythm of tropical music. The beat of the tom-tom, Africa's savage war call, issued from the depths of a bass drum made in Weehawken, N. J. A handful of couples responded to the call of the "St. Louis Blues."

Joe Reuben, manager of the Club Alabam', proudly displayed, last night, a license issued to his club. It was signed—James M. Clark, director of the Department of Public Safety.

The Club Alabam' was closed following New Year's Eve celebrations and its failure to close at 2 a. m., as provided by city ordinance. In effect, Director Clark said at the time:

"It shall not reopen."

But it did. With a brand new permit, with Olive Lopez, queen of Negro dancers, back again, the Club Alabam' is waiting again for Pittsburgh's night-owls, despite the original Clark dictum.

Clark explained that he granted a new permit to two Third Ward citizens on their promise t abide by the laws.

County Gasoline Contract Given Kenna Concern

The County Commissioners today award the county gasoline supply contract to the People's Service Station, reported to be owned by Edward M. Kenna, head of the County road Department.

The award was made after Charles C. McGovern, member of the board, objected, and Joseph G. Armstrong agreed to lay it on the table.

Although the People's station offered the same bid as the Standard Oil Company, and in addition a 2 per cent discount if paid within 10 days, McGovern said:

"This People's company is a corporation in which a county employe is principal owner. I don't think that it's right to award this company anything, although I understand it's been going on for two years. I suggest we table it."

Armstrong agreed, but explained:

"But I think Mrs. Kenna is the owner."

McGovern said:

"In that case, I'll agree to give them the contract. I'll take Armstrong's word that Mrs. Kenna is the owner."

Mr. Kenna, in commenting on the discussion, said:

"The company is a family proposition, but Mrs. Kenna owns the property."

Mrs. Kenna said she owned the property, as it could easily be found in the records.

The Commissioners awarded the oil contracts to the Atlantic Refining Company. The Gulf company's bid was about 1 cent higher.

QUIZ POINTS TO DRASTIC CHANGE IN STATE UTILITIES LAWS

COMMISSION SHAKE-UP LIKELY

Msgr. Curran to Lead 1,200 Complainants at Hearing Before Probers Wednesday

By J. W. PRENDERGAST,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 27.—Pennsylvania is assured of drastic changes to strengthen public service laws and an upheaval in the personnel of the Public Service Commission as an aftermath of the Senate investigation into utilities, conservative observers today believed.

They accredited that although the probe is scarcely started, such effects have begun.

The Senate committee will reconvene Monday at 2 p. m. to take up further the probe into the commission, the utilities and other relevant matters.

THREAT VOICED

Before it closed yesterday afternoon the Rt. Rev. Msgr. D. J. Curran, of Wilkes-Barre, interested in a municipal ownership following the 200 per cent raise in water rates in his district, directed a defiant threat to the legislators and the commission. He said:

"The superior court can grant the appeal and confirm the service commission, militia can be sent in, the army can follow, but my people will not pay those exhorbitat water rates."

The rates referred to are those granted the Scranton-Spring Brook Water Service Company, one which several years ago merged nearly 80 utilities in Luzerne and Lackawanna counties and immediately put high rates into effect. After two years before the public service commission, which finally granted the rates, the consumers refused to pay. One of the provisions granted the company was permission to inflict a 50 cent penalty in the event the water bills were not paid on a date three months in advance of consumption of the product.

TO LEAD COMPLAINANTS

While Msgr. Curran appeared alone before the senate committee yesterday, next Wednesday he will lead an army of 1,200 others from his home district to appear before the house investigation committee, which will be inaugurated, it is expected, by this complaint.

Another priest is expected to be on the public advisory committee of the House committee in the person of father James R. Cox of Pittsburgh. Morris L. Cooke, of Philadelphia, will be the second representative of the public. The third has not been considered finally, although the Governor has not stamped officially either Father Cox or Cooke as yet.

D. Glenn Moore, of Washington, will be chairman of the committee of House members to sit as investigators. The Senate committee will continue on, however.

Court Fixes Water Rate Hearing for April 20

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The superior court today fixed the week of April 20 at Pittsburgh for the hearing on the appeals from the rate-fixing opinion of the Public Service Commission in the Scranton-Spring Brook Water Company case.

The appeals were filed on the commission's opinion by the cities of Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and Pittston and also by the water company. The superior court allowed a petion to hear the four appeals at the same time in Pittsburgh in order that an earlier decision could be obtained instead of the hearing of the appeals of the three cities in the ordinary course which would mean that a decision could not be had probably until the spring of 1932.

THE CODE OF THE SEA :-: By Quin Hall

legislation, Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), of Michigan, defended his break with the President and dissected the latter's veto message as debate began.

Referring to the President's statement in his message that the legislation did not give the relief to the veteran that its proponents intended, Vandenberg said:

"But we were importuned not to make this aid any greater or any more liberal."

Criticizing the presidential reasoning on the financing involved, the Michigan member of the "Young Guard" group declared making the bonus loans would "mean no new tax because we are told every loan is backed by collateral in form of securities" for the purpose. He continued:

"This bill merely recognizes an existing debt and transfers it from one form to another.

SEES FUND AVAILABLE

"The President says there is not 'one penny' in the Treasury to meet it. This is only true to the extent that there is not a penny in any trust fund composed of perfectly sound securities."

Vandenberg quoted Frank T. Hines, veterans' administrator, in defense of this assertion, pointing to Hines' statement that there is $735,000,000 available in the veterans' maturity fund, an additional $50,000,000 still available from the war risk insurance fund and in addition another $112,000,000 as the annual contribution to the maturity fund which if the House accepts the Senate's amendment to the first deficiency bill, becomes available July 1 next—a total of $879,000,000.

Senator Hastings (Rep.), Delaware, replied to Vanderberg, as senators called for a vote.

READS LETTER

Reading a letter from a veteran constituent threatening to vote against him if he aided in sustaining the President's veto, Hastings said there were two forces back of the bill, the threat and the "sympathy aroused that the service men may be properly protected."

He depreciated the paying to a veteran who returned from the war without injury, saying he would give all he had in material wealth if he had the record of some of the veterans.

Hastings suggested that some veterans would "steal the certificates" from their wives and go out and buy automobiles.

Senator Berkley (Dem.), Kentucky, asked if Hastings knew of any veterans who had borrowed under the present law, who had stolen the certificates from their families and used the loans to buy automobiles.

The question aroused open applause in the crowded galleries which caused President Pro Tempore Moses to warn that the galleries must be quiet.

Veterans' Bureau Ready To Start Granting Loans

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Expecting President Hoover's veto of the loan bill would be overriden by the Senate, Veterans' Bureau officials today had made of the roll call on Capitol Hill a signal to start loaning money.

Instructions to the regional offices of the bureau were prepared in advance, making it possible for them to start handing out cash to long lines which officers predicted would form at the doors of the 52 branches. Money was expected to be in the hands of the ex-soldiers within hours of the Senate action.

Officials here expected there would be a big rush for two weeks, and that virtually all the loans to be made would be out within six months. The principal problem they contemplated was that of bookkeeping.

Some $30,000,000 was on hand to start making payments, enough officials believed, to last until further funds were available. They cut the usual procedure of waiting until the State Department sent formal notification of the congressional action, to start paying immediately.

The procedure followed in the past in making loans on certificates was made to govern, with the same blank forms pressed into service. If needed, the regional offices were instructed to turn out more by mimeograph.

CAUCUS SHOWS G. O. P. SPLIT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Republican control of the next House was threatened today by a rising tide of insurgency which includes a movement for a coalition of western Republicans and southern Democrats to attack tariff protection of the industrial East.

The first threat of liberals to bolt the party organization in a fight for liberalization of rules has been followed by the revolt of western backers of an oil tariff.

Speaker Nicholas Longworth was renominated for speaker and Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, for floor leader at a caucus of House Republicans last night, but it was a minority caucus.

Illness accounted for some absentees, but others announced they remained away because they would not pledge themselves on the organization.

HOOVER OBTAINS NAVAL BILL PEACE

President's Move Averts Extra Session Threat; Shoals Bill Signing Asked

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The intercession of President Hoover today brought peaceful solution of the unexpected controversy that tied up the huge $358,000,000 naval appropriation bill for three days and removed a last-minute threat of a special session of the new Congress.

After breakfasting with the President, House and Senate conferees returned to the Capitol and in short order settled all their differences regarding ship construction and midshipmen quotas at the Naval Academy. The Senate won a sweeping victory in its battle for public construction of 11 new destroyers, while the House won in its demand for a reduction in the number of midshipmen.

NEW CONFLICT

Meanwhile a new conflict between the legislative and executive branches of the government arose today with the adoption by the Senate of the Glass resolution, calling upon the State Department to "desist from the dangerous practice" of passing upon the flotation of foreign loans in this country.

The resolution slipped through the Senate late last night with only a handful of Senators present. It was sponsored by Senator Carter Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, a former secretary of the treasury, and a long-time foe of the State Department's practice of advising with international bankers on the desirability of their foreign financing operations.

SHOALS BILL

Congressional delegations also continued today to exert pressure upon President Hoover to sign the Muscle Shoals bills providing for government operation of the power plant and lease of the fertilizer works.

While it has been generally accepted that the President would veto the bill, it was said at the White House today that he has not yet reached a decision.

Drought Loan Delay Explanation Asked

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Secretary of Agriculture Hyde was requested by the Senate today to explain why the $20,000,000 drought relief loan appropriation has not yet been made available, and when he intends to start making loans to destitute farmers from the funds.

Thompson Ridicules Hoover's Promises

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Mayor Thompson, of Chicago, named President Hoover, in testimony before the House Flood Control Committee, as having "outpromised everybody" in connection with works to alleviate the danger of floods, but not having the works put ahead as rapidly as possible.

Invited to appear because of his work at the flood control conference in Chicago last January, the Mayor outlined the program of the Mississippi Valley Waterway and Flood Control Association.

TEXT OF FOOD QUIZ DEMAND BY WOMEN

Letter Scores Flippancy' By Public Servants When Citizens Air Complaints

The Friday Morning Club's letter to President of Council John S. Herron demanding an investigation of city food purchase contracts reads:

"At a special meeting of the executive board of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters held Wednesday morning, February 25, the following resolution was passed.

"That a letter be sent to the president of City Council, asking that a complete public investigation be made of all supply and food contracts made during the past six years by the Department of Supplies.

"The executive board passed this resolution unanimously, and stated that they felt that since council was the appropriating body, that it should also be the body to make a rigid investigation of any irregularities or dishonesties that might occur in the expenditure of any of the city's moneys.

RETURN MONEY

"Council should see that the money is returned to the treasury and the culprit receives the full penalty of the law. Since both the Mayor and the director of the Department of Public Supplies in this case are involved, it would seem both impossible and absurd for the Mayor himself to investigate himself, as executive head of the city. Should the present state of things continue in this department of supplies, Council itself becomes a party to the flagrant misuse of funds.

"The Mayor in a statement to Council has given no hint as to the type or extent of the irregularities which he charges against the former head of the department, Mr. Succop. However, his honor drags a 'red salmon' across the trail by stating that no one would be so hard hearted as to deprive the inmates of nourishing food.

"Pathos in usually the resort of one who has no jutifiable excuse to make, and we have all heard it used many times in our courts and legislative halls. After scanning the Mayview menus and the money that has been expended for food for the same institution, we certainly cannot feel that the citizen has been hard hearted, but that a little more wit, at least, might have been used in making up the menus, so that they were varied and appetizing.

REDUCE EXPENSES

"The expenses when such large numbers are to be served could be reduced to a very low minimum and the meals themselves be kept nourishing and welcome.

"The executive committee felt that in these times of great unemployment and suffering, that our public servants in every capacity should be conserving the resources of the city whenever possible, instead of squandering them with the apparent audacity that has been used in this particular instance.

"Since Council may not be prepared or able to make the kind of an investigation that will reveal all the irregularities or dishonesties that have occurred, we would suggest that a firm of experts or accountants be put in charge.

"The League of Women Voters is prepared to recommend such a firm if Council so desires.

HOUSTON LAUDED

"The executive committee instructed me as chairman of the league, to write a letter of appreciation to Mr. Houston for the very courageous and commendable stand he has taken in this matter. It requires courage for a citizen of Allegheny County to bring before any of our public bodies evidences of irregularities and dishonesty, even though this dishonesty is based upon incontrovertible facts. There is and has been a tendency on the part of some of the servants of the city and of the county to attempt to make that citizen a culprit in a case of this sort."

"In this and in similar cases we have noticed a tendency of certain public servants to become not only flippant, but insolent, when a citizen asks for the redress of grievances."

the hero. He ran his elevator up and down the six floors, shouting:

"Fire! Out this way."

He carried a dozen persons to the street and left the elevator only after firemen had ordered the power shut off.

WOMAN BURNED

The fire originated in the rear apartment, on the second floor, of 87-year-old Mrs. Madeline Curtin. She spread the alarm, then ran to the street, overcome by smoke and burned on the hands. She was rushed to Pittsburgh Hospital.

On the fourth floor Miss Alma Degenhart, a stenographer, of Rodman street, and Estelle Vogel, who was in bed in her apartment when she heard cries of fire, climbed out a window and were taken down a ladder by firemen.

A side fire escape which led to the Cameraphone Building was the means of escape for several, including the janitor, Jack Herron, and Mrs. Herron, two other women with a baby, and Mrs. J. J. Debresen.

SAVES PICTURE

Mrs. Lorain Smith, 48, who was working in a downtown decorating shop, rushed to East End when notified of the fire, and ventured into the burning building to have a photograph of her late son in her apartment. She reached the street with the picture in safety.

Miss Agnes Watterson, who conducts a beauty parlor on the third floor, was giving a customer a permanent wave when the alarm spread. Both escaped.

The flames reached the fifth floor before they were checked by firemen, the damage being confined to the rear office on each floor. Water soaking through the second floor damaged the kitchen of the Sheridan Square restaurant on the street floor.

Battalion Chief C. L. Conley estimated the damage at between $20,000 and $25,000.

Fire Chief Richard L. Smith received a cut hand from flying glass.

Philadelphian Gets Publications Post

HARRISBURG, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Announcement was made yesterday of the appointment of A. Nevin Detrich, Philadelphia, as director of publications in the auditor general's department. Detrich was personnel director in the Governor's office during the Fisher administration.

FOOD PROBE PRESSED BY WOMEN

expected to present it at the next meeting of Council.

The League of Women Voters represents more than 3,500 women, according to Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, its chairman. Aside from demanding an open hearing, the petition to be presented by the League will ask a formal inquiry into the Department of Supplies.

The publicity given Succop's office has been followed closely by the League for more than three weeks, or since charges were brought by John D. Houston, president of the James W. Houston Company, that Succop showed favoritism in awarding contracts.

The movement for a petition was started yesterday at the League's quarterly meeting in the Congress of Women's Clubs. Members said they thought if city money had been used improperly it should be restored to the public treasury.

Although Mayor Kline would not, in an interview to which he invited newspapermen, indicate the probable identity of the new supplies director, he was exceedingly affable and said he was devoting much time and effort to making the right selection.

MANY PRESENT CLAIMS

Many ward politicians and job seekers waited in the Mayor's office yesterday morning for their turn to tell him why they should be selected for the job.

The Mayor commented:

"I'm separating the wheat from the chaff. I expect to have the man named within a few days. I'm getting tired being both Mayor and Director of the Department of Supplies since I fired Mr. Succop. It's too big a job for one man. When the applicants tell me why they should be selected, I just sit and listen, then do my thinking on their qualification afterward."

CHANGE PROPOSAL SEEN

Included in the Bureau of Governmental Research report is the recommendation, it is believed, that the specifications for bidders' use in making quotations be modernized. Bidders have complained that they cannot estimate properly because specifications are so meager. Mayor Kline and Controller Kerr have admitted the method is faulty.

PARK AWAITS FOOD EVIDENCE

District Attorney Andrew T. Park has announced he will prosecute charges of irregularities in the city Department of Supplies in connection with the food contract investigation if someone prefer accusations which can be substantiated.

The prosecutor said:

"I know nothing of the facts in the case of the Department of Supplies. If there is an information made by anybody, I'll prosecute, provided evidence on which to base a prosecution is brought before the grand jury."

INQUIRY POSSIBLE

A grand jury investigation is possible, provided substantial evidence is presented to the court by a responsible citizen or group of citizens, attorneys point out. Park explained that without a clear indication of violation of the law his office lacks authority to act.

Mayor Charles H. Kline in his report to Council said there had been "visible irregularities," but neglected to say what they were. The act of assembly creating the office of director of the Department of Supplies specifies some of the duties of the director but provides no penalties for infraction.

AUTHORITY DIVIDED

The act stipulates contracts shall be awarded by the director, or the Mayor or both. The responsibility cannot be pinned directly on either, attorneys say.

The act provides that contracts amounting to more than $500 be advertised and awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. It is recalled that one of the largest orders awarded to the L. H. Parke Company was split into $500 lots, thus complying with the letter of the law.

Coolidge Warns Farmers Against Over Planting

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Feb. 27.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The coming season will test the ability and the disposition of agriculture to co-operate with the farm board. As a temporary expedient the board stepped in under the law which seemed to justify it and supported the price of wheat and cotton produced last year. Probably it prevented a real panic in wheat. But members of the board have constantly made it plain that they do not propose to continue a policy which is dangerous and unsound and, in the end, bound to fail.

Calvin Coolidge

Beginning months ago both the Secretary of Agriculture and the board gave constant warning that the sound solution of the surplus problem lay with the farmers themselves. Unless they solve it no one can provide a permanent solution for them.

The results of government action have emphasized that the only way to deal effectively and permanently with a surplus under present world conditions is to reduce acreage. The planting time is beginning. The farmer will have to decide whether he wants 10 acres of production costing at the rate of $10 and selling at the rate of $15 or whether he wants 20 acres costing $20 and selling for $18. No government can make an oversupply profitable.

Japan Awaits Royal Baby May Be Heir to Throne

TOKIO, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—An "interesting event" of paramount concern to the 90,000,000 subjects of the Emperor of Japan is expected within a few days, for the birth of an infant that may become the sovereign of the empire should take place about March 10.

The Empress Nagako is about to present her consort, Emperor Hirohito, with a son or a daughter, and in the imperial palace preparations for the expected arrival have taken precedence over everything else.

Even if the little mite of the blood imperial is a girl there will be nationwide rejoicing for the safety of the empress and her baby, but the celebrations will not be so extensive as if it is a prince to be welcomed.

Imperial messengers will carry the tidings to the sun goddess at her main shrine at Ise.

To the nation the happy event will be announced by radio broadcast. Tokio will be told about it as soon as the baby arrives, a certain number of blasts on the municipal sirens meaning a prince and so many a princes. The official gazette will issue an "extra" immediately after the birth.

Although to the orthodox believers in the divinity of the imperial line—and this includes the majority of the Japanese—the baby will be immortal if it is a manchild, every precaution known to science has been involved to safeguard the mother, who is 28, and child.

THE FORMER U. S. NAVY O-12, NOW "NAUTILUS," IN WHICH POLAR TRIP WILL BE MADE

WORLD MERGED WITH RIVAL

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The combined New York Telegram, Evening World and Morning World made its first appearance today.

The first edition carried the mastheads of all three newspapers, thus signalizing the end of the World newspapers as separately conducted by Joseph Pulitzer and his heirs for almost half a century, and sold to the Scripps-Howard interests shortly after midnight.

In its new story of the change, the combined World-Telegram announced that the Morning World and the Sunday World would not be published hereafter. The World-Telegram carried Associated Press dispatches and carried many of the departments that oppeared in the old World.

The city room of the World on the twelfth floor of the golden-domed Pulitzer building was thronged with leg men, rewrite men, copy readers, beat men, special writers and copy boys when the last big story broke at 2 a. m. They stood about as Lindesay Parrott sat at his typewriter to write the obituary of the newspaper on which they all worked when news of the sale of the Worlds to the Scripps-Howard interests was flashed.

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 27.—Mrs. Teresa Hess Dague, former Marshall County (W. Va.) school teacher, widow of Walter Glenn Dague, who with Irene Shrader, Wheeling waitress, was executed for the murder of Corp. Brady Paul Monday, will get about $1,000 in insurance, according to the Rev. H. O. Teagarden, who acted as spiritual adviser at the execution.

Mrs. Dague will get $450 from the government for Dague's soldier's bonus. Dague allowed his war insurance policy to lapse. He also carried a policy for $500 with an insurance company and she will receive it, along with accumulated dividends.

Friends of Mrs. Dague here are going to communicate with Congressman Carl G. Bachmann, in an effort to procure for her a pension. She has two minor children to support and has no source of income, having lost her schoolteaching job when the board refused to reappoint her.

Wilkins, Guest Here, Tells Plans for Broadcast From Arctic Bases

When Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins noses the 175-foot submarine Nautilus under the Arctic ice this summer, Pittsburgh will probably fill the important part of broadcasting several international talks from the North, it was revealed here today by the famous Australian explorer.

Capt. Wilkins, who will establish the first two-way voice broadcasts from the North for daily communication exclusively to Hearst newspapers, including the Sun-Telegraph, will be the principal speaker tonight at a testimonial banquet in the William Penn Hotel to Thomas M. Heard, Jr., newly-elected potentate of Syria Temple Shrine. The explorer will speak on "Flying the Ends of the Earth."

GREETED IN CITY

He was met at the Pennsylvania station by Arthur H. Wilharm, chairman of the Shriners' committee, Past Potentate Joseph N. Mackrell, George E. Meyers, and Fred A. Fichtel. Mayor Charles H. Kline, scheduled to deliver an address of welcome tonight, greeted the distinguished visitor at the City-County building shortly after his arrival.

During the day, Capt. Wilkins was to meet KDKA officials to discuss the possibility of three to five broadcasts through the local station. The three important occasions for such broadcasts would be when the submarine arrives at the ice, then at the North Pole and when the Bering Sea is reached, he said.

Capt. Wilkins declared the exploration that will take himself and crew under and around ice will be the most important meteorological survey ever undertaken. The submarine is the only means of travel that makes possible such a trip through the entire Arctic region. The Nautilus was the $1,000,000 Navy Submarine O-12, which is being converted for the trip at a cost of $175,000.

STATIONS PLANNED

Describing the purpose, Wilkins said:

"Our ultimate objective will be the establishing of 32 permanent stations, with seven men at each one, for daily observation and study of winds, atmospheric and other conditions. The start of the survey will be made from Spitzbergen about July 1, and it is expected we will reach the Bering Sea about September 1. It will be two years after the survey before we probably can establish the stations.

"Daily reports of our trip will be broadcast to the Hearst radio stations in New Jersey and Station KUP, San Francisco Examiner, for news purposes. Construction of the submarine has been such that when traveling under the ice, the craft will automatically rise as clear water is reached. The survey will relate to the entire region, the North Pole itself playing but a small part in the study."

Asked if Mrs. Wilkins would accompany him, the explorer said no.

Detailed description of the submarine, Nautilus, which Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins will use for the exploration survey in the polar region this summer, will appear as a feature in the March of Events section of the Sun-Telegraph Sunday.

Written by Lieut. Com. Sloan Danenhower, former United States Navy submarine officer, who will command the undersea craft on the trip, the article gives a vivid outline of the former O-12 as prepared with new devices and modern scientific equipment.

MAN SEIZED IN GRIFFITH SUIT

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Earl W. Taylor was taken into technical custody at the district attorney's office late yesterday as an investigation was started into the $601,000 damage suit filed against D. W. Griffith, noted film director.

Mrs. Fern Setril, an extra actress, who filed the complaint, accused Griffith of unwelcome attentions. Taylor was paroled from San Quentin prison October 20, 1929, after serving a 14-month sentence for grand theft.

District Attorney Buron Fitts has ordered his men to bring in Mrs. Setril and a San Francisco woman, now in Los Angeles, whose name was withheld, for questioning.

Marguerite Shearer, at whose home Mrs. Setril lived, told Harry M. Owens, an investigator, Fitts said, that Taylor, last July, said he was going to see to it that Fern Setril "sued Griffith to the limit."

Taylor, Fitts said, had attempted to sell the story of the pending Setril-Griffith suit to Los Angeles newspapers.

Girl, 19, Arrested As 'Bandit Queen'

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Louise Brown, aged 19, of Detroit, is being held by police here today as the alleged "bandit queen" of the so-called "Owl Bandit Gang" in the Michigan city.

Arrest of the pretty blonde is the ninth in the police roundup of members of the clique, which is alleged by authorities to have committed more than 50 holdups.

Constable Elected Arnold Police Chief

In a police department shake-up at Arnold, Sherman Hill, a deputy constable, today was preparing to assume his duties as chief, having been elected to office at a meeting of borough council last night. Hill succeeds Fred Matthews, who had been police head a year. James Lemmon, Jr., was elected patrolman, succeeding Samuel R. Zannetti.

DECLARES LOVE FOR GUN VICTIM

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 27.—(INS.)—"I loved her and had no reason to kill her."

That was the statement of William H. Frazer, of Rahway, N. J., who arrived here today from Raleigh, N. C., in the custody of Prosecutor Abe David, of Union County, to face a charge of murdering Mrs. Phoebe Stader.

His immediate indictment for the murder was expected.

Although an autopsy showed Mrs. Stader was shot in the back of the head, Frazer insisted to officers that her death came accidentally.

Frazer has admitted his gun killed Mrs. Stader, but said it was an accident and he had "not meant to."

In his story he revealed that 10 days ago Mrs. Stader had decided to go with him to Florida, and they started in his car. After she was killed, Frazer said, he drove all the way to Virginia with her body in the car.

Trouble 'Natural Thing' for Butler

READING, Pa., Feb. 27—(AP.)—He doesn't get into trouble to get into the newspapers nor to attract attention, Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, of the Marine corps, told an audience here last night, but "because I can't help it." Then he added:

"I wasn't much of a success as Director of Public Safety in Philadelphia. You can't blame the policeman. It isn't his fault. It is the fault of politicians when thugs run to town. You can clean up any town over night if the mayor of the town really wants it clean."

PASTOR CALLED TO AID WIDOW

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Calling as its last witness the Rev. G. Bickley Burns, pastor of the Logan Methodist Episcopal Church, in the choir of which Mrs. Clara Grace Prophet sang prior to the slaying of her husband early one morning last November, the defense rested today at the woman's trial for her husband's slaying.

Mr. Burns, the last of several character witnesses, testified that the woman's character and reputation were "very good." Five women neighbors asserted she was a "very conscientious worker." Others said she had "a splendid reputation."

Mrs. Prophet on the stand yesterday denied that she had planned to kill her husband or had conspired with her brother, Harold E. Williams, to kill him. Williams was convicted about two weeks ago of murder in the first degree, with death as the penalty for his part in the killing.

Instead of plotting to kill her husband, Mrs. Prophet said she had contemplated suicide because of the life she led with her husband and his conduct toward her and their children.

MAN NAMED AS ONE SHE FEARED

Victim Believed Killed to Balk Testimony Against Policeman for 'Frameup'

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Aroused by the greatest tumult since the killing of Herman Rosenthal in 1912, 100 policemen today sought the strangler of Vivian Gordon, attractive night club habitue, who was found murdered shortly before her scheduled appearance before the Seabury Appellate Court division's inquiry into cases of police framing of women.

Authorities said the present crime recalled the one 19 years ago, which sent Police Lieut. Charles Becker to the electric chair. Both came at the peak of drives against police corruption.

The body of the woman who had written to the Seabury investigators that she had important information for them was found yesterday in Van Cortlandt Park, where it had been dragged or thrown.

DIARIES REVEAL NAMES

Three diaries found in the woman's apartment were said by police to contain names of "important people." From information obtained from the books police took into custody two men and held them for questioning. They gave their names as John Radeloff, of Brooklyn, attorney for Mrs. Gordon, and Sam Cohen, a client of the attorney.

According to Police Commissioner Mulrooney, Cohen, alias Charles Harris, has a police record. Mulrooney also said Radeloff had stated he had told Mrs. Gordon not to reveal information to the Seabur investigators.

According to Mulrooney, one of the diaries said:

"The only man I have to fear is Radeloff. He could get Cohen or henchmen to do away with me."

Mrs. Gordon, it was revealed, was arrested in 1923 on a charge of immorality, which resulted in her being sent to a reformatory. Patrolman Andrew J. McLaughlin, who made the arrest, was expected to return here tomorrow from a vacation in Bermuda. Mulrooney said he wanted to question McLaughlin.

Radeloff told Mrs. Gordon, he said, that her case was eight years old and urged her it would do no good to bring it to the attention of the investigators at this time, according to Mulrooney. Mrs. Gordon, Radeloff was quoted as saying, then declared she was "going to get McLaughlin."

Mrs. Gordon had been strangled by a clothes line. She had been dead about five hours when the body was found by a passerby.

Frank Ryan, a taxicab driver, told police that at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning he had witnessed a struggle in another cab between a woman and two men. He heard the woman scream several times. He said he followed the cab, but lost sight of it.

$2,000 COAT MISSING

McLaughlin is a partner of Officer Richard B. Ganly, who is now under suspension on charges of having framed a woman in a vice arrest.

Mrs. Gordon, who was about 32, was said to have lived at times in Philadelphia and Chicago. She was believed to have been married to A. J. Bischoff, of Philadelphia. A daughter was reported to be or to have been until recently in a Chicago convent.

The woman had considerable wealth. She was known to own a diamond ring worth $2,500. A mink coat, said to be worth $2,000, was reported missing from her apartment.

PART OF DAMAGE TO THE HODELL HOME, 532 ALLENBY AVENUE: THREE WERE INJURED

Swedish Prince Denies Betrothal Is Cancelled

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—In a telephone conversation with the London Evening News, Prince Lennart, of Sweden, grandson of King Gustav, today denied rumors prevalent in court circles in Stockholm that his proposed marriage with Miss Karin Nissvandt, a commoner, had been cancelled. He said:

"It's absolutely untrue. We are going to be married in a year or so, no matter what happens."

The prince was informed of reports from Chicago that a friend had quoted his mother, the Grand Duchess Marie, of Russia, as announcing receipt of a cablegram advising her the engagement had been broken.

He replied:

"You musn't believe that.

"The date of the wedding has not yet been fixed, but the engagement will not be broken."

At the time the engagement was made known it was understood King Gustav opposed the match chiefly because Swedish constitutional law required him to do so.

Prince Lennart announced at the time he would surrender his royal prerogatives and live the life of a farmer on a German estate once owned by his grandmother, the late Queen Victoria, of England.

Charlie Chaplin Mistaken For Holdup Man in London

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The constant pursuit of Charlie Chaplin by London street crowds led today to his being mistaken for a holdup man.

He was walking down Westminster Bridge Road with two companions, revisiting the scenes of his impoverished youth, when some one spotted him and a crowd gathered. Chaplin and his companions, anxious to escape, fled into a candy shop.

Mrs. Powell, the elderly proprietor, was having tea in the back room when she saw the trio rush in and close the door. She feared they intended a holdup, and rushed out.

Offers of as high as $50 have been made to the management of the Dominion Theater to secure seats for the premiere of Chaplin's "City Lights" tonight, it was learned today.

persons who were in dire need of relief, Mark Philip Mathews, director, said. The recipients of this direct relief were those who were not normally on the lists of the local welfare agencies, but who were forced to seek aid because of continued unemployment.

The special assistance was administered through the various relief agencies which have been taking care of their usual charges with the regular funds established for that purpose.

Rosslyn Farms will begin street improvements requiring 10 men for several months.

Several projects on the city's spring street repaving schedule stood tentatively approved today following a special councilmanic committee meeting yesterday. Half of the work will be done by men furnished by the association and paid for by the organization. The city's expense for tools, materials and equipment is set at approximately $192,000, with the money coming out of the regular repaving fund.

Private contractors will do the remaining half of the work on the streets when Public Works Director Edward G. Lang awards the contracts. The cost of the improvements is set at approximately $292,000.

The streets to be improved by the men furnished by the association are:

Fifth avenue, Vine to Gist streets; Spring street from Clover street, $21,000; Center avenue, from Morewood avenue, eastwardly, $11,000; Center avenue from Ohio street to North avenue, $6,000; Blackhawk street, $6,000; Camfield street, $3,500; Penn and Liberty avenues from Eleventh street to Eighteenth street, $10,000, and Penn avenue, Eighteenth street to Thirty-second, $30,000.

Frank C. Harper, edior of "Greater Pittsburgh," official publication of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, explained the plan at a meeting of the Pittsburgh Shoe Retailers last night in the Fort Pitt Hotel. About 400 persons were present. He emphasized the far reaching benefits that will accrue to the city through the operation of the plan and declared that all citizens of the city and county should support it.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Authorities continued their search today for Edna May Cooper, motion picture actress and co-holder of the world's endurance flight record for women.

Miss Cooper was first reported missing two days ago by her mother, who said she had left their home Tuesday and had not been seen since. The aviatrix was wearing $4,000 worth of jewelry when she disappeared, police were told.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Three more raided brokerage houses and 28 persons held for questioning was the record today of the flying squad of bucket-shop warriors after their second day's campaign. In all, six houses have been invaded and 50 persons arrested. The campaign against the bucket shops, reported unusually active because of stock market gains, will be continued, the attorney general's office announced.

The latter three apealed to the state supreme court, and the respite to Parse was granted pending decision of the high court.

Chicago Law Class Fears 'Lie Detector'

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Efficiency of the "lie detector" as a crime deterrent was proved at the University of Chicago today with the sudden return of 10 valuable law tomes to library shelves.

Prof. Rodney Mott threatened to bring the lie detector into use on his class in constitutional law unless five stolen books were returned. The five volumes, together with five others stolen last year, reappeared shortly after the ultimatum.

Swope Lauds Job Relief Here

The Pittsburgh Plan for stabilization of employment as advanced by the Allegheny County Emergency Association was compared with the unemployment insurance fund of the General Electric Company, at a conference between Gerard Swope, president of the company, and Edgar J. Kaufmann and Frank J. Chesterman, of the association, in the William Penn Hotel yesterday. The Pittsburgh plan was put into operation yesterday.

The General Electric Company's plan is regarded as one of the most forward looking devised, and representatives of the local emergency association are pleased that Swope not only cordially indorsed the Pittsburgh Plan, but declared that in one respect it is superior to any with which he is familiar.

LEARN POINTS OF PLAN

Swope spoke yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce. Kaufmann and Chesterman explained to Swope that the understanding they had gained from his address on the company plan was as follows:

First—The employe contributed to an unemployment insurance fund 1 per cent of his wages, which was matched dollar for dollar by the company. This is the equivalent of three days' wages as compared to the Pittsburgh Plan as set up at the present time for one day's wage from the employes and one day's wage from the employer.

Second—That when a General Electric employe became unemployed the fund would be used to give him half his wages, but not exceeding $20 a week. The employe under the plan agrees to accept work as offered by the General Electric Company in whatever capacity it directs at the wages paid for that particular work. If the unemployment of the company is greater than it can absorb, employes remain unemployed and receive 50 per cent of their wage as relief, again not exceeding $20 a week.

OPPOSE PAY TO JOBLESS

Kaufman and Chesterman called Swope's attention to the fact that the Pittsburgh plan differs by regarding any payments to unemployed as uneconomic, and by undertaking to provide them employment outside the plant as the sounder economic policy. They asked Swope that if there were in Schenectady some central employing agency such as there is here, would he rather not pay the men from his fund and give them actual employment on public works.

His answer was:

"I frankly like the essential principal of your plan, and approve it with one qualification, that I would not want our employes so employed by public or semi-public works to receive from the General Electric Employment Fund a sum greater than 50 per cent of what they had earned at the General Electric Company. If this amount were not sufficient for the wage standard established by the employing agency such as the Pittsburgh Plan sets up, then the fund provided by the Pittsburgh Plan should make up the difference."

Swope was asked if he did not believe that during times of great business activity and prosperity, only public improvements immediately necessary should be made, while plans were worked out for the deferred improvements, so that during hard times men could be put to work on them. He answered he believed public improvements should be planned that way.

PITTSBURGHERS LAUD PLAN

Comments from other prominent men regarding the plan follow:

THE REV. S. C. MICHELDERFER, superintendent, Lutheran Inner Mission Society: Having seen a constant recurring stream of 1,200 destitute families coming to our agency for aid in the past months, I am convinced that simply supplying the necessities of life is merely postponing the real problem from week to week. Having carefully studied the plan of the Allegheny County Emergency Association, I am convinced that it is going to solve the real problem. When men may earn their own living they are saved the demoralizing influence of the dole. For the Lutheran Inner Mission Society I pledge our wholehearted co-operation.

THE REV. LAWRENCE A. O'CONNELL, director of Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Pittsburgh: This is a little word of appreciation from the Conference of Catholic Charities for the great amount of relief this organization has been able to extend to the 2,459 needy families just because of the generous allowances received from the Allegheny County Emergency Association. Without this financial assistance we never could have brought cheer to so many needy families. Better than the aid thus rendered, is the association's employment stabilization plan, which apart from its industrial aspect caring for the employes in time of need, the value of which is incalculable in this time of class agitation; and the wonderful benefits accruing to city and county in jobs done at reduced cost to the taxpayers, is its tremendous asset in community social work, extending relief through work, while the receiver retains his sense of respectability, the acme of all true social service.

H. W. SHEPHERD, secretary and general manager, the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor: The plan of the Allegheny County Emergency Association in my mind is the most outstanding of any plan now in operation in any city of the United States. It is a constructive, workable plan, that I believe will soon relieve conditions in this city, and relief-giving by the charitable organizations will be greatly decreased. I have talked with a great number of men (whose families are being helped by the issuing of food, clothing and coal orders) and they are eagerly looking forward to the day when they may have the opportunity of earning the money to buy the necessities of life, instead of being carried by a charitable organization.

MRS. ENOCH RAUH, Director, Department of Public Welfare: The plan of the Allegheny County Emergency Association is a complete and practicable expression of modern social philosophy as applied to the unhappy problem of unemployment. "We are our brother's keeper" is truer today and more properly so, than at any time in history. The plan, as conceived, enables men to retain their self-respect by earning such income as they receive—and at the same time it gives opportunity to the more fortunate to contribute to a fund for the alleviation of the present acute distress. The plan is orderly, sound, safe and altruis

A. M. OPPENHEIMER, President of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of Pittsburgh: On behalf of the Board of Trustees and Directors of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, I take this occasion to express to you our deep sense of obligation for the magnificient co-operation and generous help that we have received at your hands in connection with a number of Jewish dependents whose dependency is and was due exclusively to the misfortune of unemployment. Had it not been for the timely and splendid help rendered by your excellent organization, I am very frank to say that our federation would have been confronted by a serious and embarrassing situation. May I express to you our hope that your association may meet with a liberal response on the part of the general public.

LIEUT.-COL. C. B. CAMPBELL, Divisional Commander, The Salvation Army: The seriousness of present conditions is obvious to us all but these conditions would be much more serious were it not for your fund. The budget plan and the present working of the scheme seems to be a good arrangement and we all sincerely hope with the strong effort that is being made to secure employment that the load will gradually decrease. In fact our organization could not possibly from the funds available think of carrying on the present volume of relief work being done.

Ship Captain Goes On Trial in Killing

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 27.—(INS)—The trial of B. O. Higdon, purser of the dollar liner President Hayes, charged with manslaughter, will open at the American consulate Monday, it was announced today.

Court will be held under the penal code of the District of Columbia. Higdon accidentally shot Colin Campbell, an Englishman, in the stomach at Alexandria last Monday.

Daisy Demands Bail In Appeal Action

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Counsel for Daisy De Voe, attacking the refusal of Judge William Doran to free her on bail, carried the case to the appellate court yesterday in hope of obtaining her release pending decision on an appeal for a new trial of charges she stole $825 from Clara Bow, film actress. An original application for release on bail was filed in the appellate court on grounds Judge Doran had overstepped his authority in refusing to free her and he had denied her a proper hearing.

Bandits Intercept Police Radio News

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Buffalo's scout car system used by the police department and employing low wave radio sets to get crime information from police headquarters is only a partial success.

Six boys arrested were found to use an automobile similarly equipped with a low wave set which let them listen in on police information and helped them to escape after committing robberies. Two of the prisoners, police say, were identified as members of a gang which has robbed drug stores.

Ask Court if Plane Is Motor Vehicle

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The Supreme Court has been called upon to decide whether an airplane is a motor vehicle.

The question is in a case of a stolen plane being transported from Illinois to Oklahoma. The defense argued Congress did not have airplanes in mind when it passed the motor vehicle theft act in 1919.

The court pointed out a provision of the act which specifies that it apply to "any other self-propelled vehicle not designed to run on rails."

SECOND PHILA. CLUB RAIDED

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—(Universal)—The police blotter here today gave promise of taking on the appearance of a social register, what with the descent yesterday of a raiding squad headed by Safety Director L. B. Schofield on the clubhouses of two of Philadelphia's most exclusive social organizations.

The clubs visited by the vigilantes were the Philadelphia Club, oldest and most exclusive of the Quaker City's social bodies, and the Manufacturers' Club, an organization which enjoys an almost equally select patronage. Safety Director Schofield, himself, was a member of the Manufacturers' Club, but resigned after the raids.

The Philadelphia Club was the last raided by the agents. There they turned the personal belongings of members topsy-turvy in lockers and seized a small quantity of liquor. Some of the lockers were broken open, members said.

Schofield said warrants would be sworn out for every club member in whose locker liquor was found.

WIFE TESTIFIES TO BEATINGS

Two black eyes were given her during one of numerous beatings inflicted upon her by her husband, according to Mrs. Mabel Marie Teeple, of 436 Boggs avenue, piano player in a downtown department store, testifying before Judge Joseph Stadtfeld in Common Pleas Court in her suit for divorce from Thomas E. Teeple, of the Wellington Apartments, Sycamore avenue and Maple terrace.

They were married July 5, 1921, and she left him in 1929 after his cruel treatment due to frequent intoxication, she testified.

Dissolution of a marriage contracted 25 years ago was asked by Mrs. Ethel Mackie, 1021 Ridge avenue, in her suit, for divorce from Walter A. Mackie, Irwin and Western avenues, filed in Common Pleas Court. She charged she was deserted without justification October 30, 1916. They were married January 16, 1905.

RICH SCOTSMAN SEEKS BAIL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—After a night spent in custody of federal officers, Sir Charles L. Ross, wealthy Scottish baronet, today was arranging a $100,000 bond set in a suit for maintenance brought by his wife, Lady Patricia Ross.

Sir Charles was served with papers in the suit last night at his Washington home. His attorneys, Breckenridge Long, once assistant secretary of state, and Walter Guy, were unable at that hour to raise a satisfactory bond, so the baronet was taken to a fashionable hotel to spend the night under guard.

In bringing suit Lady Ross, daughter of Andrew Ellison, of Louisville, Ky., said her husband was a multi-millionaire, had 300,000 acres of land in Scotland, extensive holdings in Canada and the United States and was the manufacturer-inventor of the Ross rifle, once used by the Canadian Army.

PERU PREPARES REBEL DRIVE

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Military preparations against the rebels in Southern Peru were rushed today on information that the insurrectionists were concentrating armed forces against an expected offensive by the northern government.

According to information, the "Southern Junta" has practically completed organization of its own governmental machine and is endeavoring to cement its civil as well as military strength.

Dr. Samanez Ocampo is expected in Arequipa within a few days, and probably will immediately assume the provisional presidency of the rebel faction.

Mary Lewis Named In Suit for $3,050

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Mary Lewis, grand opera singer who a few days ago brought suit against a film company for $22,500 for alleged breach of contract, was herself made defendant in a claim for $3,050 for legal services.

The plaintiff, Attorney Charles W. Cradick, charged the singer owed him the amount as the balance of a $4,250 fee for services in connection with a $75,000 property settlement with her husband, Michael Bohnen, opera singer.

Is There a Difference in Clothes?

If you believe that one suit of clothes may be better than another, we would like to prove to you that

Steelcraft Suits

With TWO Trousers

at $37

are better-wearing clothes than the ordinary standard of men's clothes at this price. This is only because we have deliberately set out to make them so; choosing sturdier fabrics, specifying better-wearing linings, reinforced seams, and hand-worked buttonholes, and providing EXTRA trousers with every suit.

Where do we come out on this proposition? Just notice the increasing number of Horne labels in men's clothes, and you will see!

POLITICS DELAY NAVAL ACCORD

By PRINCE PGNATELLI
Universal Service Special Cable

ROME, Feb. 27.—France and Italy will become signatories to the London naval treaty as soon as negotiations here solve the political aspects of the Franco-Italian naval question, it was learned on high authority today.

Great Britain, acting as mediator, has been able to bring France and Italy together on an adjustment of tonnage figures, Universal Service was informed, and settlement of the political quandary is being viewed with optimism.

Although certain tonnage difficulties have been overcome, experts are even now toiling to evolve a formula that will be acceptable to both nations and remove all technical obstacles from the way of political accord.

An authoritative spokesman told Universal Service that full results of the conversations here depend on the talks between Foreign Secretary Henderson, of Great Britain, and Premier Mussolini.

M'Keesport Father Of 7 Hangs Himself

John Monich, 42, of 257 Mercantile street, McKeesport father of seven children, was found dead hanging from a beam in the cellar of his home early today, according to a report to the coroner. Monich, a tin-mill employe, had been in ill health, relatives said.

American Found Safe in Earthquake

The Apple and the Bonus

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

weather is like parsley on lamb chops. Nobody ever eats it.

When we try to figure out the workings of legislators we get as silly as a giraffe trying to scratch his neck on a well rope. We know that the bonus bill is going through. Mr. Hoover knows. Congress knows it and Andy Mellon suspects it.

Couldn't bills be rushed through quicker if the Chief Executive signed them in invisible ink?

Radio promises us television in 20 months. Which means that we all must become beautiful if we don't want to be mistaken for a new recipe for making spinach palatable.

From then on everything will be broadcast up against your parlor wall and you can find out what's happening in Hong Kong by just getting your head jammed in Section G of your filing cabinet.

While Harvard is playing Princeton in a studio the South American revolutionists will be trying to hire a hall for the next rebellion.

News reels and television have changed everything. We go to the news reel theater every day just to hear what Corny Vanderbilt said to Mussolini.

We don't understand Mussolini, but his gestures are a college education in any university.

When the television telephone comes in a husband had better be where he says he is. Or else.

No more of those evasive conversations over the telephone. No more can you tell the leader of the dance orchestra to pipe down because you are phoning the sweet woman that you are on the operating table in the dog and cat hospital.

They can't start flashing that pan of ours through the air without destroying animal and bird life in the government game sanctuaries.

We don't want television. But it's coming on, head over tincups, and there is no way to avoid it.

In the old days of blind telephoning the voice with the smile was tops. But now they can see you and the voice with the smile doesn't mean anything when you've got ears like crown fenders and a nose that makes the ants rush for their bomb-proof shelters.

Television is still 20 months off. We might be like the lady who had her face lifted so often she parted her hair with a smile. But we have already had our face lifted so many times that we can bite our hat without taking it off.

But television is progress. And we got to take it even though it leaves us in the same spot where airplanes left the canal boat.

Bandit Raids Home Of William Haines

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 27.—(INS.)—An armed bandit gained admittance to the home of William Haines, motion picture comedian, bound and gagged a colored maid, and made away with a number of autographed $1 bills gathered by Haines for souvenirs, according to police.

WOMAN HELD IN BUCKLEY DEATH

DETROIT, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—New information on the slaying of Gerald Buckley, crime-crusading radio announcer, whose violent death the state is attempting to avenge by the trial of three alleged gangsters for the murder, was revealed today after a secret session of the special 22-man grand jury which is probing crime conditions here.

Mrs. Lucille Love, daughter of a policeman and a former guest of the La Salle Hotel, where the murder occurred, who, with her husband, Harry, is held incommunicado, admitted to police, they said, that she was the driver of the automobile which stalled in front of the hotel and blocked traffic, preventing police chase of the killers. The stalling of the car was accidental, she insisted.

Canada Finds Fraud In Customs Patrol

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Reorganization of the Canadian customs patrol at the international border here was indicated today after an official investigation of smuggling conditions here. Dismissal of several Canadian officers is expected, according to reports emanating from the office of Inspector H. J. Jackson, of Ottawa, who conducted the probe.

The Population of An Empire Saves at Grant's —Especially During Jubilee Year

Mr. Grant's first store served approximately 75,000 people, when he opened it in Lynn, Mass., in 1906.

In 1931, our 25th Jubilee Year, Grant's will serve a conservative estimate of 50,000,000 people—the population of an Empire.

And the savings brought to each person by Grant's low prices, if multiplied by the number sharing in the savings, would equal a king's ransom.

It is this saving which Grant's celebrates in its Silver Jubilee Year.

REFRIGERATOR SALES GAIN

There is no depression in the electric refrigerator business according to George W. Mason, president of the Kelvinator corporation, and H. W. Burritt, in charge of sales, who are attending a meeting today at the Standard Talking Machine Company, distributors for this area. Nearly 200 dealers from the surrounding cities are in session.

Mr. Mason.

Both officials said they were highly pleased with business within their organization. They pointed out that 1930 was a good year in the refrigeration business when more than a million household and commercial refrigerators, valued at $280,000,000, were sold.

Mr. Burritt said:

"Our shipments last year exceeded by 31 per cent those of 1929, Kelvinator's former peak year. Even now, despite the season of the year, our factory is running on a five-day production week with a full quota of workers. We are manufacturing considerably more units than at this time in 1930."

He said the greatest sales increase would be in the domestic field, with less than 15 per cent saturation at present. A. M. Taylor, director of advertising for the corporation, will speak at the meeting. Charles Armstrong, vice president of ReDisCo corporation, is also attending.

Mr. Burritt.

Reserve Officers' Unit School Set

Lecturer Discusses Revolts vs. Trade

The effect of South American revolutions on trade between the Latin-American states and the United States will be discussed by Wallace Thompson, author, editor, diplomat and authority on South American conditions, at a meeting of the Foreign Trade Council of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce at noon today.

Winter Epidemics

Many Thousands Stricken in Europe and Japan. Now in Eastern United States.

If you have a cold, knock it out at once. If not, then use every protection against colds. They are dangerous.

Each little cold you have leaves a few germs in your system. You may not be aware of it and then are an easy victim of even the mildest epidemics that occur during the winter months.

Millions are now using the famous Pure Herb Laxative Tonic called Bulgarian Herb (Blood) Tea to break up colds quickly and strengthen and fortify the system. The rich juices brewed from these barks, roots, leaves and plants, taken steaming hot at bedtime, are instantly effective.

Prevention leaves no regrets and Bulgarian Herb Tea taken by the whole family at least twice a week will keep you in good physical condition. The cost is small and your druggist will honestly recommend Bulgarian Herb Tea.

ROBBER KILLS BARBECUE MAN

above his head, told the bandit who covered him:

"Don't shoot. My money is in my hip pocket. Take it."

The thug reached for the purse, but instead discovered a revolver. He took the weapon, then, without apparent cause, shot McGreevy in the back, the bullet passing through the victim's heart. McGreevy fell dead. The bullet, from a .32-caliber automatic pistol was found later in the slain man's shirt.

TAKES CAR'S NUMBER

The bandits, each aged about 20, drove to the barbecue shortly before 1 a. m. Patrons were seated at tables in a room adjoining a lunchroom, and the trio delayed giving their orders for food until the other visitors departed.

McGreevy became suspicious of them and went outside to obtain the license number of the car. He gave the number to his wife, Mrs. Annie E. McGreevy, 36, telling her to remember it, as she might have cause to use it later.

Mrs. McGreevy and the couple's two children, Donald J., 8, and Frank, Jr., 14, retired soon afterward and were in bed when the shooting occurred, Keplar said. Keplar's wife, Margaret, 30, an employe of the barbecue, had returned to the kitchen after attending the order of the three youths when McGreevy, who was standing behind the counter in his shirt sleeves, was held up and slain.

ROBBER FINDS GUN

Charles C. Rodgers, of Irwin, a deputy coroner of Westmoreland County who investigated the shooting, said there was no indications of a struggle. He said:

"McGreevy had his purse, containing $15, in his left hip pocket, but the robber, in reaching for it, searched the right hip pocket and found the revolver instead."

Keplar told Rodgers he was standing in the doorway between the kitchen and lunchroom, but had no opportunity to help McGreevy because the shooting occurred so quickly. The bandits fled in the stolen car after robbing a cash register of $6.

The barbecue is in North Huntingdon Township, Westmoreland County, a short distance from the Allegheny County line. State police from the Greensburg barracks searched through the night for the bandit trio, with police of McKeesport and other towns assisting.

HILL, RULERS' FRIEND, DIES

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Samuel Hill, 74, friend of royalty and internationally-known railroad builder, is dead. He succumbed here Wednesday night after an 18-day fight against intestinal influenza.

His illness developed suddenly February 9, while he was en route to Salem, Ore., to discuss good roads before the State Legislature. Last week he underwent an operation, but he failed to rally. His son, James Nathan Hill, was called here from his home in Washington, D. C.

Besides his son, Hill is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Hill, the oldest daughter of the late James J. Hill, the "Empire Builder."

Hill was known to may European rulers and statesmen. Queen Marie, of Rumania, to whom he was host when she toured the United States several years ago, called him "a great builder and dreamer."

It was he who sent Samuel Lancaster, engineer, to Europe to study that the Columbia River highway might be engineered along the lines of the most beautiful continental roads. At the time of his death he was looking forward to an extension of the Pacific highway into Alaska.

LAME DUCK BILL THREATENED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27. (Universal)—Passage of the Norris "lame duck" constitutional amendment was seriously threatened today as Senate and House conferees battled disagreement over the Longworth amendment to limit the short session of Congress to four months.

Although willing to compromise on the other House amendments to the bill, Senator Norris (Rep.) of Nebraska, author, insisted holding the short session of Congress to four months would merely produce further ill-considered legislation.

The conference will meet again today, but there is little indication that a satisfactory will yield. Unless this is done the amendment will not get to passage before March 4.

The "lame duck" amendment provides that Congress shall meet on January 3 of each year, with presidential inaugurations on January 24. The amendment must be ratified by two-thirds of the states to be constitutional.

GIN DEATH TALE COMBATED

VALPARAISO, Ind., Feb. 27. (INS)—Judge Grant Crumpacker today was to rule on the admission of a purported confession made by Virgil Kirkland, Gary high school gridiron star, on trial for the murder of 18-year-old Arlene Draves, who died in a liquor party revel November 30.

The confession, the focal point of a clash between prosecutors and defense attorneys yesterday afternoon, describes in detail the liquor orgy which ended in the girl's death, authorities say. Kirkland is the first of five youths to go on trial for the girl's death.

Kirkland's defense suffered a severe blow yesterday when Coroner's Physician James V. Burcham testified that he did not consider it likely that the girl would have died from a bruise on the head, caused, Kirkland's attorneys assert, from a fall.

SAVINGS STOLEN FROM SCHOOL

More than $135 in pennies, nickels and quarters, the savings of several hundred children of Wilkinsburg's Kelly School, was stolen from a hall cupboard where it awaited the arrival of the bank collector, it was learned today.

L. R. Hagan, secretary of the school board, is conducting an investigation to learn who broke the lock on the steel door closet.

The theft was discovered by Thomas McClain, post-graduate student of Wilkinsburg High School, who also collects the school children's bank deposits. Hagan announced that the money was insured by the bank, and the children would lose nothing.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright 1931, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Query

I wander with monastic mien
Down many a crowded city street
With bearing cool and gaze serene,
Though eyes are gay and glances sweet.
As I review my wastrel days
I swear I've broken folly's reign.
(But can I stem my vagrant ways
When April trips to town again?)

I prate that I am done with girls,
A wretched waste of precious time,
Before my eager eyes unfurls
A world devoid of silly rhyme.
Stern lad indeed is this one now—
A model of propriety
(I wonder if I'll keep my vow
When April whispers, "Follow me!")
—Kid Kazanova.

Anecdote

The passing of Louis Wolheim reminds us that it was "What Price Glory?" (in which he excelled) which did so much to "educate" audiences to tolerate plays that contained "highly-seasoned" slanguage.

The "Nicest" people were trained to accept profanity on the stage by that play, and the gag at the time that best pointed out the fact, went like this:

The son of an 80-year-old woman (who never cussed in her life took her to see the show.

The boy blushed and squirmed in his seat every time Wolheim or others in the cast mouthed an ugly word. As the first act curtain fell at intermission the old woman was under her seat looking for something.

"What's the matter, mother?" asked the boy.

"Oh," she barked. "I can't find my handkerchief—damnit!"

Telegram

"Dear Walter," affectionately wires Richy Craig, Jr., from Chicago, "the crowds in the streets out here confuse me. Yesterday I went to a moving picture theater and stood in a long line for over an hour. Finally, when I got to the head of the line, they handed me a sandwich and a cup of coffee. Things are so tough, the apple peddlers on the corners are giving away two pair of pants with every apple."

Markey vs. Marquis

It is Leo Townsend's argument that Gloria Swanson is running around with Gene Markey because she thinks Markey is a title.

Types I'm Glad I'm Not

Leo Townsend nominates for oblivion the pill who encounters a guy on stilts and inquires: "How's the weather up there?"

And the cluck who always halts you to say: "I have a funny story for your column, but I can't remember how it finishes," and the dope who asks you to stop him if you've heard it before, but doesn't when you do.

Oop!

Then there's the one about the dumbbells who had been snapping at each other for seasons. They met the other afternoon after a long spell and for a moment appeared to have buried the hammer.

"Mitt me, dear, mitt me," said the first as she offered her paw, "give me your congratulations, I just got my divorce!"

"Yeah?" flipped the other, "who's the lucky man?"

Ruse

Let his name go. Suffice to report that he was one of New York's most distinguished maitres d'hotels (head waiter to you!) up to four years ago.

For four years, it appears, he has worked in lowly jobs here, there and anywhere. In Hollywood, Los Angeles, Miami Beach, Palm Beach, etc. And under an assumed name, too, which brought down his wages. He ran away to dodge paying the stiff alimony to his wife, and for four years he suffered pangs that go with the longing to return to New York. Not to get his job back, but to see old friends and Broadway. He missed it so.

The other day in a Florida cafe he pealed when he saw his wife approaching. It was too late to run. She greeted him excitedly, and then introduced her new husband. Later she told him she had been re-married for two years.

Two hours later he was on a New York bound train, without even a tooth brush. He was so thrilled. She followed by plane, ready to greet him at the Pennsylvania depot with her "husband"—a detective.

He will see the New York he loves so—from the inside of the alimony jail.

Description

Palm Beach: Seventy-second street with a beach.

Observation

It is Izzy Elinson's report that Einstein and Charlie Chaplin have become great pals. Those little feet, says Izzy, and the big shoes convinced the professor that Charlie has some novel ideas about space himself.

Plea for Normalcy

If I turned to joyous things,
You would love me even less:
Humorous imaginings
Never earned your sweet caress.

Though I hope to be sublime,
Scorning motor cars and money,
Darling, don't you know that I'm
So pathetic when I'm funny?
—Roberta B.

Sidewalk Wit

First critic—"What do you think of the show?"

Second critic—"I asked you first."

The Sheik of Claraby

Clara Bow, perhaps, makes the front page more often than any other movie star via the man-trouble route. Yesterday she was linked with Harry Richman. The day before with Rex Bell. The chin-ema magazines offer page photos of Miss Bow along with likenesses of her numerous flames. The "It" girl, it appears, simply must be exploited in a manner that will arouse the younger degeneration.

Then along came a Hollywood newspaperman, who tells this pillar that in spite of all her "lovers" there is only one photo of a man in her boudoir. It is on her dresser—an autographed picture of Valentino!

Night Club Blah

Some of the drivel the girls tell their gen'men frens in the hotspots midnight and yawning:

"I'm the sole support of my mother" . . . "I like you because you're not fresh" . . . "Your gray hair makes you look so distingwished" . . . "Do you think I have the chorusey look?" . . . "I don't like the boys, I like men like you—who have lived" . . . "Of course, I'm true to you, dear, you are such a child!" . . . "Put some more ginger ale in it, I really hate the taste of liquor."

All the news is not in the news articles. There's lots of news of bargains in the Classified Columns. Turn there now.

When LIFE - literally is in the balance

MORE than drugs are weighed in the pharmacist's balance. Sometimes they measure the difference between life and death. When your prescription is prepared there must be no deviation from your doctor's orders. When it is filled at May's & Liggett's there is none. It is compounded exactly in accordance with your physician's instructions.

Here at May's & Liggett's, accuracy and safety are guarded by every possible precaution. Prescriptions are compounded and rechecked only by licensed pharmacists. All drugs and pharmaceuticals are standard, fresh, and potent as they should be, and as the doctor expects them.

Right now our prescription business is the largest in our history. It is a splendid tribute by the physicians of the country to our rigid rules and ethical practice.

An Added Protection

In the May's & Liggett's stores, these precautionary measures for the public health are carried beyond the prescription department. At the fountain, all cold drinks are served in clean, crisp, individual Dixie Cups. It is a considerable extra expense to us, but it means added safety and cleanliness for you.

"Puretest" and "Rexall" Products

Our own factories supply us with the finest of standard remedies, toilet needs, rubber goods, etc. We especially recommend "Puretest" and "Rexall" products for their purity and quality.

Safety, Quality—and Value

All goods at May's & Liggett's are priced as reasonably as is consistent with fair and just business conduct. There is no other drug business so competent to give you unquestioned safety with utmost value.

We consider no transaction complete unless you are entirely satisfied.

The Loudspeaker

—By LOUIS REID—

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Music librarians are the most unhonored and unsung members of the radio battalion. Yet they play a vital part in the making of radio programs.

Their hours are long and irregular and their routine is harassed by interruptions. Upon them falls the burden not only of supplying the demands of a program, but the responsibility for its success. They cannot take chances. If, for example, the program calls for the Maine Stein Song they have to find the Maine Stein Song, even if it means, as is probably does at present, ransacking the whole studio.

Human interest, so far as it is concerned with important public figures, is strangely neglected on the microphones. Tradition may prevent its airing in connection with a foreign potentate, but there is not tradition to deter the broadcasters when Hoover clears his throat.

This department has often cupped an ear to Hoover on the air, but it has never caught a syllable of how he looks, whether his double-breasted coat is buttoned or not, whether he is nervous or calm—in short, the sweet and lowdown on a Presidential broadcast.

Europe is now hearing regularly the Sunday morning concerts of the Roxy Symphony Orchestra. American broadcasters could not offer abroad a better sample of their wares . . . Morning programs are improving. It is about time. It is about time some more attention was paid the little-woman-in-the-home . . . Fork Frick's mircophonic enthusiasm made the Tilden-Koseluh tennis match almost as exciting to the ears as a pawing of the more ponderous palokas. . . . Democratic senators continue to lead their Republican colleagues a merry pace to the microphones. It speaks well for Raskob's general publicity campaign for the 1932 stakes.

Dreams are now being interpreted on the air. What isn't being interpreted on the air? I can think of nothing save the merits of patent medicines . . . Visiting English novelists are least patronizing to America when they address us from London broadcasting studios . . . Broadcasters have yet to sponsor an hour dealing with American cuisine—the cuisine of New England, New York and the South with special attention to New Orleans . . . Progress note: Broadcasts of testimonial banquets are becoming more and more infrequent . . . The most original comedy on the air at present is offered by the team known as "Sisters of the Skillet."

Blues, quiescent for a period, are creeping back to the loudspeakers. When it comes to blues writing no one is in a class with W. C. Handy . . . Wonder how hot a blues trumpet can get without exploding? Whatever, apropos of blues, became a Gilda Gray? . . . A wisecracking debate between Pat Harrison and George H. Moses would be an attractive item on the radio schedules . . . Radio men are as eager as the cameraman in watching the ocean liners for Hollywood-bound sirens. Strange activity! The most frightened voices we ever encountered on the air were those of screen stars.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

Baby Rose Marie, Belle Baker, Bernice Claire, Lillian Taiz, Billy Jones and Ernie Hare, Raymond Knight and Jessica Dragonnette, are eight good reasons for a pleasant Friday night in the radio armchair. We single from this group the name of Lillian Taiz. She is to be the central character in a new hearthstone series sponsored by the company that gave us the Dutch Minstrels for four delightful years. When the series opens over WJAS at 8:30 tonight Lillian is to be found in the role of "Freda Zorn," daughter of "Peter Zorn," tobacco dealer. She is in love with a boy named "Emil." What transpires in their little romance is the background for a musical series that looks to us like another winner. Miss Taiz is a "find" of Dr. Leopold Stokowski and George Gershwin.

Lillian Taiz.

You'll hear "The Maine Stein Song" at least once if you tune WTIC at 8 o'clock for the Intercollegiate Glee Club Contest. Eight Eastern colleges are to compete in a two-hour songfest worth dialing.

It's about time we give a break to the Two Troupers—Marcella Shields and Helene Handin—for their story sketches on WEAF-WCAE. Tonight at 9:45 they describe an airplane trip to New York from Montreal. Give the little girls a hand. They're novel!

Who are the boys in the saxophone quartet on KDKA?—Myrtle D., Uniontown.

Answer—It's a trio, Myrtle. The boys are Charles Fisher, Teddy Ruta and Charley Klug. Russ Merritt plays the piano. Their saxophone arrangements have caused a sensation and if we know anything they're headed "places." It may interest you to know that Klug gets the effect of a bass clarinet by leveling his high pitched instrument into the inverted cone of Dick Powell's megaphone.

A Squirrel Hill woman just bought a radio. Hurriedly she called a neighbor to find out what station carried "Sisters of the Kettle."

While you laugh that off may we ask if you have listened to the "Sisters of the Skillet" lately? It's jollity personified.

Recently the boys impersonated "Amos 'n' Andy" almost perfectly. Their mystery serial with "Hurry Holmes, the detective" and "Dr. Datson" was an excellent burlesque of "Sherlock Holmes."

In this latter sketch Dr. Datson said to Hurry Holmes:

"Holmes, how did you know they had a butler in that house?

With arched brows the wise Hurry Holmes cogitated a moment, then replied:

"Why, my dear fellow, by the shape of the house I knew they had a butler's pantry."

Amos 'n' Andy faltered by introducing the voice of "Madame Queen" in their sketches but they more than made up for it last night with "Brother Crawford" on the witness stand. We believe that "Madame Queen" has spoken for the last time—unless the boys follow the only logical path and take a Negro woman into their cast.

ALMA RUBENS SAW HOPE OF CURE DASHED

STAR PUNISHED FOR 'FLIRTING,' DRINKING

Unable to Get Dope in State Hospital, But Nurse Provided Whisky Instead

By ALMA RUBENS

CHAPTER XXV

Just as the Doctor was about to trample on me, bound and helpless as I was, in rushed good old Billie, author, playwright, all-round, good fellow and long a friend of the family.

He had seen my mother, and she had told him, that she suspected me of getting dope, from my good friend, The Reputable Physician.

Good old Billie took in the situation at a glance, there I was on the floor, bound to the leg of the cabinet. The Doctor was towering over me, his foot already drawn back to trample me.

With one leap Billie was upon him, he floored the doctor with one blow. He picked him up by the collar and threw him down. he did this again and again until that arrogant rogue, who wore the cloak of a noble profession to hide his villainy, begged for mercy.

Miss Rubens

Then Billie unbound me, carried me to the street, took me to the hospital where it was found my injuries were not serious, and then drove me home.

All this later came out in court.

By the time I reached home I forgot all about my disgrace and terror, and all about my degrading encounter with the doctor.

I remembered nothing because I had that precious little packet of dope—and that was all I wanted.

Soon after that I went to the ranch, and when I was there I promised my poor mother that I would never again touch dope.

Driven by Pain

I tried to keep my word, but soon afterward I had a recurrence of the old trouble with my hip. The infection had returned, and besides the pain of that infection I was suffering from the awful agony that attacks any poor victim who is trying to get away from "dope."

My mother called a new doctor, and he telephoned for an ambulance. I was frightened almost to death. I thought they were going to take me to an insane asylum.

They told me afterwards that on the way to the hospital I broke away from the ambulance twice, and once I hid in some woods, and it took the ambulance men and several policemen more than three hours to find me.

At the hospital they lanced my hip, and that pain improved, but in a few days I was a wild woman because my nerves were screaming for my dope, and my mother had to take me home again.

As soon as I got home I got in touch with a woman who sold me some of my precious snow. I kissed the package she sold me. I knelt down on my knees, and prayed to it, like a poor demented woman.

I was just crazy enough to know that I was crazy, and my family and I were on the verge of despair.

Good News!

Then out of a clear sky came good news.

Great news! Good news! News of hope.

A very influential man who had long taken an unselfish interest in my pitiful case, came to the rescue.

He interceded with Gov. Young to put me in the State Hospital for drug addicts at Spadra.

I was the first woman ever sent there for treatment, but Gov. Young made a special ruling in my favor.

I applied for commitment myself, and it was a happy day to me when my husband and my mother took me to Superior Court Judge McCohn's chambers.

The judge was kind and helpful in every way, he signed the writ, and we went home and packed my bags. My heart danced with happiness—maybe there was a real cure after all. Maybe there was another chance, even for me, poor, pitiful, unhappy wretch that I was. I would try, oh, how eagerly I would try and when I was well again how good I would be, how kind to my dear mother. How gentle to my husband, and how I would try to be good to everyone who was poor or sick or despised.

Hope Lost

Before I had been at Spadra a week, I realized that I could never get well—there.

Dr. Thomas Joyce was in charge of Spadra. He was a good man and good doctor, and I think he and his wife did everything they could for me, but I could not endure with any degree of patience the entire lack of freedom. I had a day nurse and a night nurse. I was never out of their sight, and oh I did get so tired of them, so dreadfully tired. I suppose they were tired of me too.

But I made up my mind to make friends with them if I could, and when I did make friends of them I found that one of them was susceptible to bribery. She couldn't get dope for me, but she could—and did—get me plenty of whisky.

I was not accustomed to drinking, but whisky was better than nothing at all, and the nurse drank more of the whisky than I did.

Some of the male patients saw me walking with my nurse, and one or two of them sent me poppies, which grew in abundance on the institution grounds.

Of course, when I saw the men who sent me the poppies, I smiled at them, and my nurse made the report that I was incorrigible. I flirted with the men.

My mother wrote me every day, and sometimes sent me money and I gave my nurse the money and she bought whisky and gave me about a third of what she bought.

One day we had a quarrel, and I guess I was pretty violent. Anyhow the nurse reported me as difficult, and there was an investigation.

The authorities found an empty bottle outside the window of my room, and as punishment I was put in solitary confinement.

Alma in solitary! Alma gripped by horrible nightmares! Read of her sufferings and their consequences in tomorrow's installment.

350 Gallons 'Bonded' Whisky Destroyed

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 27.—Following usual custom after each term of county court, more than 350 gallons of contraband whisky were destroyed here.

The "pour" included moonshine, "Three Star" cognac, "Golden Wedding," "Early Times Canadian Whisky," and other alleged bonded brands.

Fighting Blaze, Man Uses Gasoline; Hurt

HUSBAND SEEKS MISSING WIFE

Blanche Carothers, wife of Harry Carothers, of 130 South Twentieth street, has been missing from her home since Christmas, according to the husband, who has asked the Missing Persons Bureau to aid in locating her. Carothers said:

Mrs. Carothers

"I am sure my wife would return home if she knew that our two boys, William, 10, and Raymond, 4, have been put in the Juvenile Detention Home. Only our daughter, Mabel, 13, is at home now."

Carothers said his wife's maiden name is Blanche Twigg and that she was last seen in the East Liberty district February 19.

Mahoning Span Bill Passed by Senate

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill authorizing construction of a bridge across the Mahoning River near New Castle, Pa.

For COLDS

We all catch colds and they can make us miserable; but yours needn't last long if you will do this: Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin just as soon as possible after a cold starts. Stay in the house if you can—keep warm. Repeat with another tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin every three or four hours, if those symptoms of cold persist. Take a good laxative when you retire, and keep bowels open. If throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in a quarter-glassful of water and gargle. This soothes inflammation and reduces infection. There is nothing like Bayer Aspirin for a cold, or sore throat. And it relieves aches and pains almost instantly. The genuine tablets, marked Bayer, are absolutely harmless to the heart.

BAYER ASPIRIN

STYLE DISPLAY AT FOOD SHOW

A style show and cooking of an old-fashioned Southern dinner will feature tonight's program at the Food Show at Motor Square Garden. The dinner will be cooked during the domestic science class by Miss Helen S. Wadekamm, of New York. When finished it will be served to those attending the class. This afternoon Miss Wadekamm was to give practical illustrations of household economics.

The style show is an innovation on food show programs. Twenty models will display suits and practical dresses made by themselves. The program also includes a parade of children wearing dresses made by their mothers.

For Your Daughter

Daughter of Mrs. Victor H. Call, Route #4, Box 76, San Antonio, Texas
"My daughter Kathleen is fifteen years old. For the past three years she suffered with pains as many young girls do. One day we saw an advertisement about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the San Antonio Evening News. She has been taking it regularly and is now completely relieved and able to attend school every day. You may use this letter because another woman's letter first told us about your medicine."—Mrs. Victor H. Call.

Daughter of Mrs. Floyd Butcher, R #2, Gridley, Kansas
"My thirteen year-old daughter Maxine was troubled with backache and pain when she came into womanhood. I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would help her because I used to take it myself at her age. Now she does not have to stay home from school, and her color is good, she eats well and does not complain of being tired. We are recommending the Vegetable Compound to other school girls who need it."—Mrs. Floyd Butcher.

THE CAMELLIA IS BLOOMING TO MEET MILLINERY MODE

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, Feb. 27.—The lady of the camellias is with us again, but fortunately she is a much more cheerful and delightful creature than ever Marguerite Gautier was. This is, of course, to tell you that the lovely and decorative flower, the camellia, gives fair to being the prime millinery blossom favorite of the season. It will be seen on tailored hats, as the only ornamentation, and will also be used to make a frame for the convenient small hat when it wants to be more formal.

SOME OF THE larger hats are placing camellias on the under brim, a most flattering note, especially is this so when the flower nestles against a brunette head.

The creamy tones of the camellia are so gracious and lovely that it is little wonder that that flower has won such universal popularity as a hat trimming.

BOTH DRAWINGS shown today are of hats that are new and bright and full of spring. The first is quite unmistakably an Agnes model. Agnes has made many of her nicest hats out of her beloved silk tricot and the model sketched here is also in that medium. An edging of red camellias outlines the face. At each side, over the ear, the flowers are rather larger and so give an effect of width to the rather close-fitting bonnet. The flowers stop at the sides, the back being unadorned.

THE OTHER HAT is also from the Agnes and is considered to be one of the most successful models of her advance collection. It is already being ordered by some of her most fashionable clients. It is a small cloche, worn well back off the face, and has a brim of navy blue picot and a supple crown formed entirely of transverse bands of navy taffeta ribbon with tiny pin dots in white. A crisp little bow of the ribbon is poised at the left side and the white effect is refreshing in its charm and gay appeal.

WALES LEADER IN NIGHT LIFE

VINA DEL MAR, Chile, Feb. 27 (AP).—Crowds of Chileans who gather unabashed about the presidential summer palace these days have seen David Windsor, Prince of Wales, in some of his more intimate moments.

The Prince, when he arises, goes into the garden and does a round of calisthenics entirely oblivious of the staring eyes already awakened to wonder by the habits of a man who waits until nearly noon to leave his bed.

While toning down his polo and riding to suit his advancing age, he still is the leader of them all at night life. Few of the circle in which he has moved have had more than three or four hours sleep nightly since he arrived.

The Chilean papers are making a daily rite of publishing his daily whirl of social and recreational activities. They express amazement that a man of his small stature is able to withstand the strain of an endless round of champagne toast, noon functions, afternoon polo, cocktail parties, business conferences, heavy dinners, dances and baccarat and go to bed only when the sun is arising.

Deer Promenades Undercliff Street

A full-grown deer, a doe, was seen yesterday by Mrs. H. F. Cox, of 1100 Orvis street, Undercliff. The deer was seen shortly after 3 o'clock when it walked down a street of the community. It became startled a short time later and ran to a hillside. It was seen by other persons who watched it for a time while it roved about the hillside.

EINSTEIN VISIT ON COAST ENDS

PASADENA, Cal., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Dr. Albert Einstein having bade farewell to fellow scientists here with a smiling "till we meet again," leaves California today to return to Berlin.

Two months of intensive study at the Mount Wilson Carnegie Institution of Washington Astronomical Observatory, and the California Institute of Technology physic research work have given him much to think about, Einstein said.

The Einstein party will spend tomorrow at the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, in Arizona, continuing by train direct to New York after making a motor trip Sunday through the petrified forest of Arizona. No appearance will be made in Chicago.

The party will embark on the liner Deutschland for Germany upon arrival in New York, March 4. Einstein is to appear at a Jewish banquet there before sailing.

NEW PUMP AIDS WATER SUPPLY

Augmenting the old steam driven pumps, a new 28,000,000-gallon electrically-driven water pump was in operation today at the Brilliant Pumping Station, near Aspinwall, James H. Kennon, chief engineer of the Bureau of Water, announced.

Started yesterday by city officials, including Public Works Director Edward G. Lang, Kennon and Councilmen Robert Alderdice, C. B. Connelley, John S. Herron and George Kambach, the pump began delivering water to the No. 1 reservoir. The apparatus was installed at a cost of $25,000.

When the new electrically-equipped Brilliant plant is completed about January 1, 1932, the pump will be removed to the new quarters. The Bureau of Water estimates the new plant will have a daily capacity of 160,000,000 gallons. The present plant has been in operation more than 50 years.

PRIEST ASKS AID FOR NEEDY

Plea for the rich to share with the poor featured the Lenten lecture series sermon by the Rev. John A. McClorey, S. J., of the University of Detroit last night at St. Paul's Cathedral.

Father McClorey, who will preach each Thursday night until March 26, has based his sermons on the church and Bolshevism. Contrasting the life of wealth and plenty as enjoyed by Dives to the suffering of Lazarus, Father McClorey said:

"Artificial industrial life has created an economic disparity between man and man which neither God nor nature intended should be. Clever manipulation of supplies afforded by Mother Nature to all her children has concentrated them in the possession of a few. To the rich I would say that if there be any element of Dives' character in heart, remove it immediately lest you share his fate."

OPHELIA VOGEL, COMPOSER, DIES

Mrs. Ophelia Averman Vogel, composer and concert pianiste prominent in Pittsburgh musical circles, died this morning at her home, 1402 North Negley avenue, of pneumonia.

She was born in Pittsburgh. After graduating from Seton Hill College, Greensburg, where she received a Bachelor's degree, she was given a Master's degree in music at Bush Conservatory in Chicago. Later she studied in Germany for two years.

She was a director of the Tuesday Music Club of Pittsburgh and a member of the College Club and the Sacred Heart Church, East End.

She leaves her husband, J. Pierre Vogel; one daughter, Mary Ophelia 9; her mother, Mary E. Averman, and two bothers, Edmund and Walter Averman, of Pittsburgh.

Funeral services will be held from the Sacred Heart Church Monday morning. Interment will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

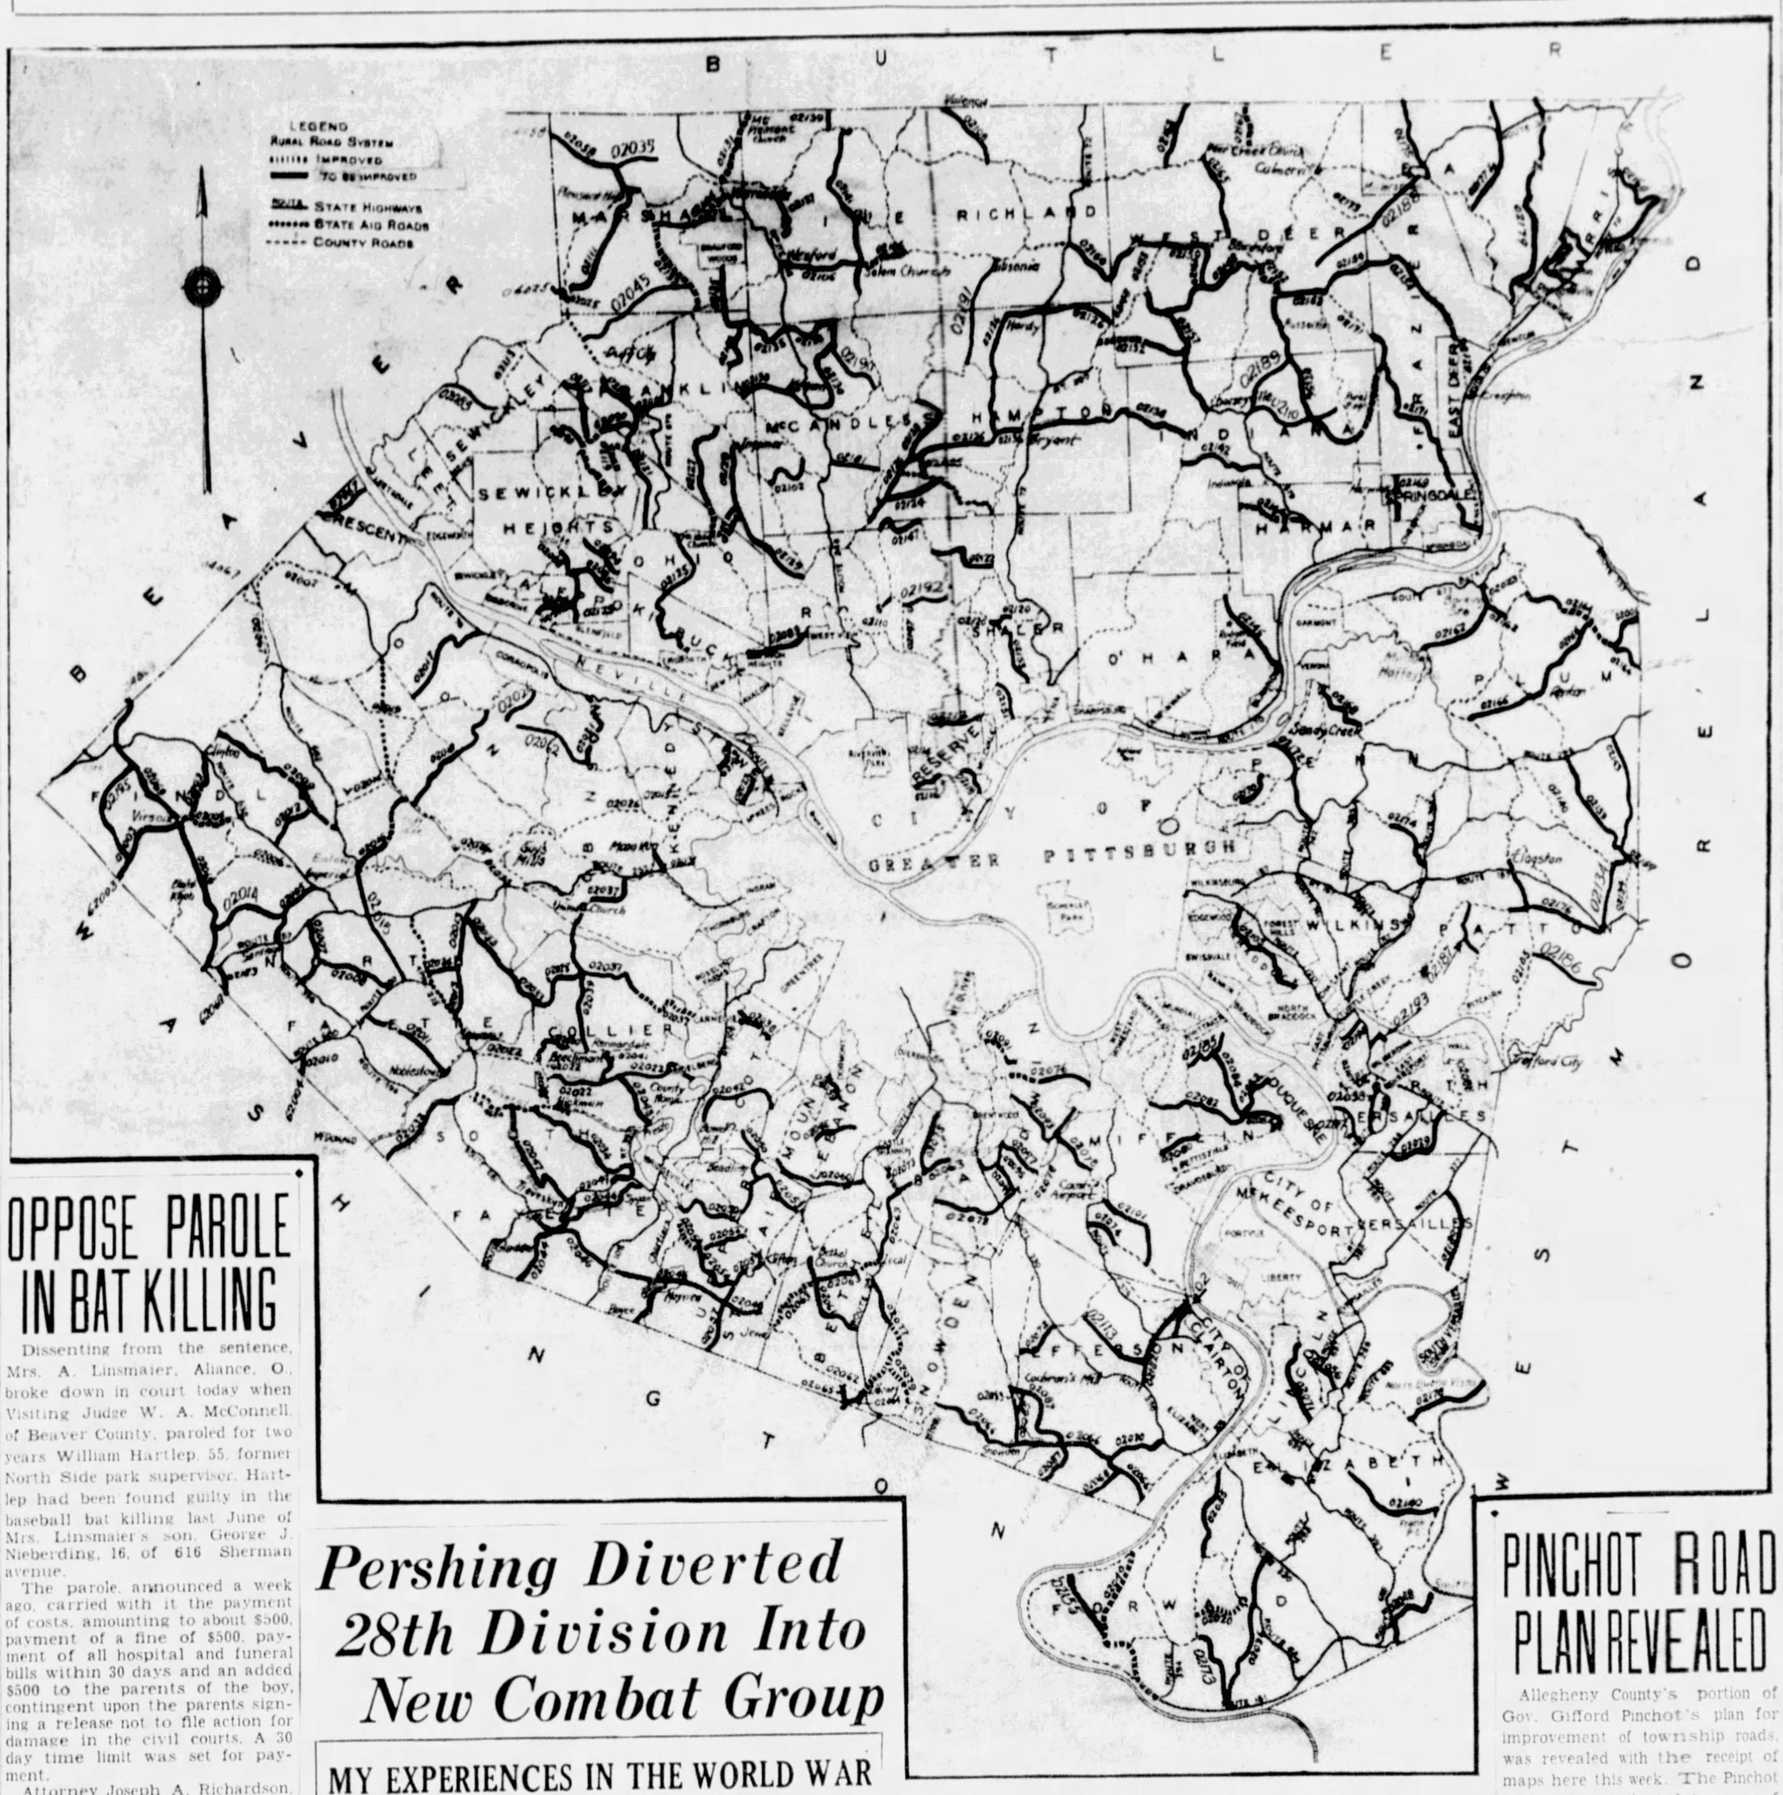
NEW BIDS ON VOTE MACHINES OPENED

400 Miles of Allegheny County Roads to Be Improved to 'Get Farmer Out of Mud'



ROADS TO BE IMPROVED IN PINCHOT DRIVE TO AID FARMERS

The 400 miles of Allegheny County roads (show as heavy, black lines) to be improved as funds are available in carrying out the Pinchot program to improve 20,000 miles of Pennsylvania roads to "get the farmer out of the mud." The state has released maps.

Senator Harris Points Out Omitted Stipulations; Fall Delivery Required

The County Commissioners today opened bids on voting machines which are to be provided in time for the September primaries.

The Automatic Voting Machine Company, of Jamestown, N. Y., bid $1,106.31 for each of the 1,100 machines. The Poole Engineering and Machine Company, of Baltimore, whose previous $1,000,000 vote machine contract with the county was nullified by the State Supreme Court, bid $1,019 for each machine.

BABCOCK ABSENT

Commissioners J. G. Armstrong and C. C. McGovern, with County Controller R. G. Woodside, opened the bids. Commissioner E. V. Babcock was absent.

Two companies had asked that opening of bids be delayed to permit them to prepare estimates, as they wished to submit bids. They were the Central Records, Inc., of Chicago, and the Shoup Voting Machine Company, of Union City, N. J.

McGovern asked that a letter from Edward Rogal, president of the Chicago company, be considered before the contract was let, out of courtesy to Edgar Kaufmann, who had asked that publication of specifications be held up.

HARRIS SEEKS LIGHT

State Senator Frank J. Harris, representing the Citizens' Voting Machine Association, asked why a number of specifications contained in the previous proposals had been eliminated. County Solicitor M. B. Lesher explained this was done in conformity with the Supreme Court's decision.

Among the omitted specifications, according to Senator Harris, were provision requiring financial rating of bidders; description of location and size of factory; that no machine be accepted unless demonstrated in commissioners' office and that no bidder awarded a contract be allowed to sub-let his contract.

Commissioner Armstrong said no contractor would be permitted to sub-let his contract without consent of the county.

Award of the contract will be made soon, it was said.

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Mr. Pfarr

Mental wanderings of somebody trying to decide what to write about:

Say something about the view from the Koppers Building . . . But first see the view . . . What's the history of that landmark at Seventh avenue and the boulevard that's being torn down . . . It'll be a parking lot . . . Why does Gen. Atterbury, Gov. Pinchot's pal, wear nothing but dotted ties? . . . And when Vic Faust comes back will Capt. Menke bill him, "Direct from Broadway?" . . . Why not write about that lawyer who, in a suit for divorce, is supposed to have testified: "I only know two people worse than my wife—her parents." . . . A downtown barbershop has tossed away the shaving brushes and is using a mechanical device which sprays the lather . . .

The lawyers and dentists are complaining . . . They say there's as much work as ever but the bills remain unpaid . . . In fact, there's more law work than in boom times . . . and that's because people will sue on the least provocation these days . . . Young Eppy, the well-known socialite, is hoping the government never builds that postoffice because he uses the site for a parking lot which makes more do-re-mi for him.

Andy Cherry, the moving picture man, used to be advance man for Charlie Chaplin and Marie Dressler, and he can tell you how Chaplin lacked confidence in his own ability in those days . . . The Pennsylvania Railroad can boast that not a single train was late while the Communist demonstration was going on outside the station . .

You forgot to answer that inquiry as to whether Duse died in Pittsburgh . . . She did, in the Hotel Schenley . . . And that sign in the speakeasy, "We'll even watch the baby while you're out but we won't cash your check" . . . And find out from Ed Rook, the William Penn hotel man, where Jakie Klein, one of the guests, has been and what he's been up to . . . The town's without a good tap dancer, now that Charlie Doyle, the baseball man, has gone to Paso Robles . . . When Ed Wynn discovered somebody who also liked frankfurters, he exclaimed, "Well, well! it's a small world after all" . . . And now Wynn, having injected more comedy into "Simple Simon" is going to take the show back to Broadway . . . He bought it from Ziegfeld when it failed to do so well in New York . . .

Jim Rooney, the youngest legislator at Harrisburg, has a great sense of humor . . . He says the Governor will sign his beer bill, but he smiles when he says it . . . Jim and Johnny O'Donnell are in the insurance business . . . What's become of Max Leslie? . . . And where are the old-fashioned eight-cylinder automobiles? . . . Why not announce all bids for city food contracts over the new police broadcasting station? . . . Bert Sisson, the railroader, has turned his paycheck over to his wife every week since they were married.

Spring is here . . . The kids in Bellevue are shootin' commies alongside the bank already . . . The New York World, which the Pulitzers want to sell is the paper on which Bill Beazell, the Pittsburgher, was an exectutive until he resigned a year or more ago . . .

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 27.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The stock market is picking up, so that makes the rich boys feel a little better. Lot of appropriations bills for government expenditures have been passed. Business in general in the last four or five weeks looks better, but all that has nothing to do with the folks that the Red Cross has to feed. U. S. Steel can go to a thousand and one, Auburns to a million, but that doesn't bring one biscuit to a poor old Negro family of 15 in Arkansas who haven't got a chance to get a single penny till their little few bales of cotton are sold next fall. That some places haven't reached their Red Cross quota, just doesn't seem possible. Just because it's getting warm doesn't help these folks' appetite any.

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

OPPOSE PAROLE IN BAT KILLING

Dissenting from the sentence, Mrs. A. Linsmaier, Aliance, O., broke down in court today when Visiting Judge W. A. McConnell, of Beaver County, paroled for two years William Hartlep, 55, former North Side park supervisor. Hartlep had been found guilty in the baseball bat killing last June of Mrs. Linsmaier's son, George J. Nieberding, 16, of 616 Sherman avenue.

The parole, announced a week ago, carried with it the payment of costs, amounting to about $500, payment of a fine of $500, payment of all hospital and funeral bills within 30 days and an added $500 to the parents of the boy, contingent upon the parents signing a release not to file action for damage in the civil courts. A 30 day time limit was set for payment.

Attorney Joseph A. Richardson, counsel for Mrs. Linsmaier and the boy's father, Joseph Neiberding announced when the case was called today that the parents dissented from the sentence which the court had indicated.

Attorney George J. Kambach appeared for Hartlep.

Funds to aid Hartlep in meeting the conditions of his parole were being raised today by employes of the Department of Public Works. Leo J. Kirch, chief clerk in Director Edward G. Lang's office is custodian of the fund. Director Lang said the contributions were voluntary.

Pershing Diverted 28th Division Into New Combat Group

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By JOHN J. PERSHING

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

CHAPTER XLVII.

The demands for American divisions were pressing. The 1st, 2d and 3d had already become actively engaged, the 1st being slated to go to the reserve near the Chateau Thierry salient when relieved from Cantigny. The 2nd was still in line at Belleau Wood, and the 3d south of the Marne.

Gen. Foch had asked for five of the divisions recently arrived that were training with the British. Of these the 4th and 28th, while en route to the quiet Vosges sector to relieve French divisions, had been diverted to the reserve near the western face of the Marne salient.

Gen. Pershing.

The 35th had moved to the vicinity of Epinal, and the 77th was about to enter the trenches in the Baccarat sector to replace the 43d, which was to re-enforce Gourad's army east of Rheims. The 82d had started for the Toul sector to relieve the 26th, which in turn was soon to relieve the 2d.

Thus there were three American divisions in quiet sectors, and seven either in the battle line or held in readiness to meet any eventuality which might result from further activity of the Germans in the great wedge they had driven toward Paris.

The British were displeased at the transfer of our divisions from their area, claiming priority to retain them by reason of having brought them over. When Gen. Foch inquired of the conditions under which these troops were serving with the British, my reply made it clear that he had entire authority to direct where they should go in the emergency, as without it the theory of a supreme command would fail.

The rapid succession of German offensives had seriously crippled the Allies, and not only materially reduced their powers of resistance but had depressed their morale and caused the darkest misgivings among them.

Pessimistic Attitude

They grew more and more fearful lest the enemy might still have untold reserves ready to swell his forces. That the morale of the Allies was low was shown by the conclusions of many of their soldiers returning from the front to the rest areas.

Reports from the British front were no better. Their troops continuously told our men who were with them for training that we had come too late and that our entry into the battle would only postpone Allied defeat.

This attitude seemed so alarming that I took steps to prevent such a spirit from affecting our army by promptly reporting the Hourly each officer punches his clock. Each evening Police Chief C. M. Lowell collects the slips.

Cleansing 'Gas' Blast Causes Fatal Burns

Mrs. Spasia Tiaiche, 32, of 55 Millford street, Duquesne, died last night in McKeesport Hospital from burns suffered in her home several hours before in an explosion of gasoline, the coroner's office reported.

Mrs. Tiaiche was reported to have been cleaning a hat with the gasoline when one of her children struck a match, causing the explosion. The blaze ignited the woman's clothing. Other members of the household extinguished the flames and took the victim to the hospital.

TRAFFIC SIGNAL FUND AWAITED

Contract ordinances for street traffic equipment and its installation at a cost of not more than $45,000, approved by Council's Finance Committee and awaiting final action by Council, are to provide funds for installation of through traffic signs along 13 new through highways and of stop-and-go signals in various parts of the city, City Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre announced.

The 13 new through highways will provide trunk boulevard connections between the downtown and other business districts of the city.

PINCHOT ROAD PLAN REVEALED

Allegheny County's portion of Gov. Gifford Pinchot's plan for improvement of township roads, was revealed with the receipt of maps here this week. The Pinchot plan embraces the taking over of approximately 20,000 miles of township road in the State to get the farmer "out of the mud." Of this vast improvement Allegheny county townships will surrenderer about 400 miles for state improvement.

Maps released show the extent of the undertaking in Allegheny county. While it has not been announced what improvements will be made, it is believed that some will be started in time to aid in the unemployment situation.

Lebanon, asked $25,000 damages from the East Liberty Coal and Supply Company in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court, alleging he was seriously injured and rendered permanently crippled when he was struck by a truck of defendant company while he was attempting to cross the street at Liberty avenue and Thirty-second street July 5.

URGES CHANGES IN VOTE LAW

Amendment of the personal registration law to require the signature of each voter opposite his name on the registration lists made up for use of the election boards, was advocated yesterday by Judge George V. Moore, in Criminal Court. Judge Moore was hearing pleas of guilty by members of an election board, who declared they could not know every voter in a large district.

Four members of the election board of the Twenty-first district of the Fourth Ward, Oakland, had pleaded guilty to conspiracy to return a false count and negligence in performance of duties.

The defendants were Max Adler, judge; John K. Casey and Patrick Higgins, inspectors, and Joseph B. Kelley, clerk. The other clerk, Milton Cohen, has not been apprehended. The indictments grew out of the special recount board's investigation after last May's primaries.

At the conclusion of the hearing Judge Moore said that only negligence had been shown by the evidence, but that the gravity of the case demanded court action. He held the case under advisement.

BOWMAN FORBIDS NEW 'LIBERAL' CLUB AT PITT

DEAN OF MEN SHIFTS BLAME TO COUNCIL

Ex-Student Says Chancellor Fears Duplication of the Disbanded Organization

There will be no club at the University of Pittsburgh, which even slightly resembles the disbanded Liberal Club in membership or purpose. This fact has been made clear by Chancellor John G. Bowman's veto of a proposed Social Science Club.

Dr. Bowman refused to discuss the events leading up to his veto, when interviewed yesterday. But it was understood from reliable sources that the chancellor believes the Social Science Club would simply be a duplication of the old Liberal Club.

According to Louis Teitlebaum, a former member of the Liberal Club and the principal exponent of the proposed club, Dr. Bowman will not approve of any such club as long as there are any students in the university who were members of the Liberal Club.

NO PROBLEM, DEAN SAYS

Dean of Men Robert C. Clothier said yesterday:

"There's nothing new about this thing. There's no problem. The attitude of the university is the same this year as it was last year. The student council conducts all that sort of thing."

But Teitlebaum feels that there is a problem. He explained:

"I was graduated in January, but shortly before that a number of students, about 30, asked me to talk to Dean Clothier about forming the Social Science Club. I did, and Dean Clothier told me to take it to the student council.

"On January 7, the student council approved of the club. The next morning I was called into the Dean's office and told that Chancellor Bowman had not approved the club and until he did, it could not be into effect.

"Later Dean Clothier told me that Dr. Bowman would not approve of the club. Wednesday night I appeared before the student council and discussed the plan. They could not go ahead inasmuch as Dr. Bowman considered that they had approved something which he had disbanded two years ago."

PURPOSE OF CLUB

Teitlebaum explained the purpose of the club as being:

"A matter of self education of students, an extension of what they can get in college and having some degree of independence."

Charles Edwards, president of student council, said, in explanation of that body's approval of the club and its later action:

"After we approved of the club, which is made up of about three students and Teitlebaum, it was vetoed by Dr. Bowman. At the Wednesday night meeting, the student council turned down the club because we felt that there was not sufficient student body demand for it to warrant our fighting for it."

Students about the campus do not appear to be vitally interested in the outcome of the club plan. Ten students were picked at random and not one of them knew there was any such club being organized.

Saw Mill Run Raid Nets Rum, 5 Arrests

Three men were arrested in the store and two in the club, the agents reported. They were held for the United States commissioner.

Cigarets valued at $16 and two cases of cheese valued at $5 were stolen from the store of William Sullivan, 408 Strawberry way, last night.

RUNAWAY TRUCK HITS STORE

When the brakes became loosened on a five-ton truck and trailer parked in the 1000 block of Fifth avenue at 7:30 this morning, the truck careened wildly down the street and over the curb and sidewalk at 1038-40 Fifth avenue.

It caromed off a telephone pole, swerved sharply across the street, and crashed into the large plate glass window of Trau & Loevner Company, wholesalers, at 1029 Fifth avenue.

Herbert Taylor, 40, of Castle Shannon, is being held on a charge of reckless driving. Center Avenue police say he is the driver of the truck, and that he left it to go to a restaurant.

The truck and trailer were heavily loaded with foodstuffs destined for Weirton, W. Va. It belonged to the Harrison-Shields Transfer Company, of 1607 Center avenue.

According to police, the truck narrowly missed plunging into the cellar of the Trau & Loevner establishment.

Council Seeks Fund For Curb Setbacks

City Council has instructed City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt to prepare a councilmanic bond issue of $50,000 for curb setbacks, as recommended by the Better Traffic Committee. Curb setbacks are a safety factor, Council and the traffic committee believe. It is probable that Council will receive the ordinance next Monday.

SUSPECT HELD IN SHOOTING

Thaddeus Bell, 25, Negro, of 1717 Webster avenue, was held for court on a charge of felonious shooting at a hearing before Justice of the Peace William J. Frenz at West View last night.

Alleged to have snatched a gun from Police Chief William Kaesmeir, of West View, as he was being taken in the side car of the latter's motorcycle to the home of Nicholas Ali for questioning in an alleged stabbing threat, Bell, police say, fired four shots at Kaesmeir. Turning the gun on Ali, he fired one shot, police say, and fled.

Cornered by a posse after a chase through the borough, he is alleged to have fired the remaining shot in the pistol before captured.

At the hearing Bell said:

"That tear gas gave me a fit. I didn't know what I was doing."

Hoover Children Romp by Rule

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—In one of the country's bigger back yards, Peggy Ann and Herbert Hoover, 3rd, get plenty of play in the approved educational way.

At 11 in the morning, and again at 3 in the afternoon, their nurses bring them from the third story playroom to the White House grounds and lucky loiterers glimpse them through the shrubbery.

They wear bright-colored play suits with caps all-of-a-piece, the kind the Bureau of Home Economics advocates as an aid in teaching children how to dress themselves.

About the curving, cinder paths they pedal on tricycles, exercise recommended as muscle-building by child health experts. Other playthings are of the type indorsed by the Child Research Center.

BEATEN, WOMAN SAYS IN SUIT

Mary Louise Hale, of Bayard street, former proprietor of a ladies' shop at Center and Melwood avenues, has filed suit for $100,000 damages against Joseph M. Kenny, of the Fairfax Apartments, Fifth avenue and Craig street, as a result of two alleged beatings.

According to Miss Hale's accusations, Kenny attacked her in the Fairfax Apartments, February 26, 1929, striking her on the nose and throwing her against the wall, inflicting a cut on her left hand, which left a scar.

Again on November 12, 1929, Miss Hale charges, Kenny entered her rooms in the Melwood Apartments and beat her, causing her to require services of a physician. Kenny formerly operated a bowling alley in Oakland.

PENNSYLVANIA OFFICIALS APPROVE
free wheeling

ATTEMPTING to capitalize on the tremendous popularity of Studebaker Free Wheeling, a device has been placed on the market for adding Free Wheeling to conventional cars. It does not have Studebaker's great advantage of positive gear control. Unlike Studebaker Free Wheelers, cars equipped with this device cannot utilize the braking power of the engine at the will of the driver. Therefore, motorists have been warned against it by the Pennsylvania Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

Pennsylvania state officials, on the other hand, have approved Studebaker Free Wheeling as a contribution to safety. Months before Free Wheeling was offered to the public by Studebaker, a Studebaker Free Wheeler was driven to Harrisburg for inspection and test by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles. As a result of this test, Deputy Commissioner W. W. Matthews wrote Studebaker as follows:

"I believe that these features will not only add to the comfort and convenience of drivers but will also provide an additional safety feature, especially by reason of the ease with which the shift can be made to second gear in descending inclines, thus providing additional deceleration which is highly desirable in some sections of the country where the highways traverse hills and mountains."

Studebaker Free Wheelers also were submitted to the highway departments of all other states for their approval before this great advancement in automotive safety, economy and performance was placed in production.

His Excellency, The Governor of Pennsylvania, and Captain Wilson C. Price, of the State Highway Motor Patrol, drive Free Wheeling Studebakers.

Studebaker Free Wheeling with positive gear control, which is identical with that of Pierce-Arrow, Lincoln and Hupmobile, should not be confused with any other form of Free Wheeling. Studebaker cars are engineered as to brakes, generator and in all particulars for the efficient, economical operation of Free Wheeling.

All Studebakers now have Free Wheeling. The Studebaker Six ($795 to $995). The Dictator Eight ($1005 to $1250). The Commander Eight ($1585 to $1785). The President Eight ($1850 to $2600). All prices at the factory.

HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM TALK; FILM REVIEW AND THEATER NOTES

Hollywood's Star System Triumphant, Verdict Of Theater Men

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Pegasus Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 27.

On every side one hears of the triumph of the star system. Pathe has just announced 21 starring pictures for the coming year. Back of this program lies the verdict of theater men all over the country. When polled by the Pathe sales department they answered that they want to sell the star first, last and all the time.

They even hesitate at booking all-star productions because in the past, these have brought them secondary prominence.

As a result Pathe will bill a star in every picture of its next year's program.

Incidentally Constance Bennett's "The Common Law" will be the first of the new series to get under way. This actress, whom Warner Brothers has agreed to pay $30,000 a week for 10 weeks, will make three more films, inclusive of "The Common Law," for Pathe this year. She has just completed another "Lost Love." As you may recall, "The Common Law" is Robert Chambers' novel, which twice was made as a silent film. Clara Kimball Young and Corinne Griffith starred in the earlier versions. Lew Cody, who is much in demand these days, has been engaged for the second masculine lead in the talkie.

Miss Bennett

IT'S A WISE PRODUCER

This one came too late to be included in Moss Hart's and George Kaufmann's "Once In a Lifetime."

A Hollywood agent recently suggested to a producer that he had made a mistake in letting a certain actor go.

"I think you could have built him into a star," he said.

"Is that so?" replied the producer. "I wouldn't have him on the lot at $100 a week!"

Doug Fairbanks

It's a big lot, but if he had scanned the production sheet, he would have found that the actor in question had been re-engaged and was working in one of the company's many pictures for $1,000 a week.

LATEST GOSSIP

When studios issue a call for fashion models the applicants usually show up wearing a bathing suit covered by a big coat. . . . Robert Lord's new story at First National boasts the title, "Merry Wives of Reno." . . . An R-K-O director recently had an embarrassing experience. He chose a spot for a location scene and asked for permanent plumbing to be installed. In some way, it came out that the lot which had been rented from a real estate company actually belonged to him. . . . France Edward Farragoh, who wrote the scenario for "Little Caesar," has a Russian wolfhound which won't pay any attention to the command "Sic-em," but which attacks at the mention of the word "supervisor." . . . Arthur Caesar is to become an actor in Edward G. Robinson's new film, "Smart Money." He plays a gambler. . . . The King of Siam is putting on a celebration for Douglas Fairbanks, and Doug will have it photographed. . . . Here's something for the stars to worry about. A newly created director has installed a microphone in the spare bedroom, which also is used as a cloak-room in case of parties. Any conversation will emerge from a loud speaker downstairs.

Admiral Defies Sun To Learn Baseball

PANAMA CITY, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Admiral Sir Michael Hodges, commanding the British Atlantic forces, now has an idea what baseball is. In a hot sun he sat half an hour while Admiral Jehu V. Chase, commanding the United States fleet, explained what some of our gobs were doing on a diamond.

Western

Ernest Torrence, popular character actor, has a featured part in "Fighting Caravans," coming to the Aldine today.

NOTES ABOUT SHOWS FOR STAGE, SCREEN

Grace George will bring the comedy, "The First Mrs. Fraser," to the Shubert-Alvin for a week's engagement, beginning Monday evening. This is a comedy of modern life by St. John Ervine, the English playwright, which ran in the Playhouse, New York, for a year.

Seats are now on sale in the box office of the Nixon for the return engagement of "Strictly Dishonorable," which played to capacity audiences last November, and which will play another week beginning Monday. Those playing the principal roles are Florelle Fairbanks, Jerome Daley, Lino Manzoni, Ralph Locke, Paul Gilmore and Lynn Root.

Betty Bryant, daughter of the showboat man, Billy Bryant, will portray little Mary Morgan in the George Sharp presentation of "Ten Nights in a Barroom" in the Pitt next week. Mr. Bryant also will be in the cast.

OTHER BOOKINGS

Tom Patricola, former dancing comedian of George White's Scandals, and Ada Brown, co-star in the late "Brown Buddies," will headline the vaudeville program in the Davis, opening Saturday. "Resurrection," with Lupe Velez and John Boles, will be the film.

"The Criminal Code" will be on view in the Harris, beginning Saturday. Walter Huston is starred, with Phillips Holmes and Constance Cummings supporting him.

Manager George Jaffe, of the Academy, next week will celebrate his twenty-fifth season as a burlesque producer in Pittsburgh by presenting "Moonlight Maids." Billy Hagan, Lou Costello and Nick Bloom will be featured.

The new picture opening in the Enright today is "Resurrection," co-featuring John Boles and Lupe Belez. It is a talkie version of the Tolstoy novel.

BLACKMER BECOMES FREE LANCE PLAYER

Just at the time when contracts are being signed by many prominent persons of the film industry, Sidney Blackmer steps forth with the announcement that he has asked for severance of his Warner Brothers' contract, and expects to free lance.

"Much better things come to the free lance player than to contract actors. I want to have something to say about what work I do," explains Blackmer.

Mr. Blackmer came to Hollywood after a successful stage career. Some of his appearances in New York were in "Scaramouche," "Carolinian," "Love Child," "Love in a Mist," "Springboard," "Mima," "The Mountain Man," "Trimmed in Scarlet," and "The Moon Flower."

Some of the pictures in which he has appeared are "A Most Immoral Lady," "The Love Racket," "Strictly Modern" and "Sweethearts and Wives." His current release is "Kismet."

Mr. Blackmer is married to Lenore Ulric, who is now starring on Broadway. She has received offers from several companies for picture work this summer.

JUNGLE STREET SCENE IS FILM, 'RANGO,' SHOWING HERE

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

It is a long cry between city and jungle. Yet the drama of both is much the same. There is comedy and there is tragedy. If you know the one, you can "feel" the other. The truth of this is demonstrated in viewing "Rango," the new picture in the Fulton and Sheridan Square theaters.

"Rango" turns its back on Africa and centers on a different jungle locale—primitive Sumatra, frying to the crackle of many sinister noises under a tropical sun. And in this atmosphere of thrill and danger, the picture builds, with uncanny simplicity, the everyday life of a jungle into a climax of gripping proportions—a water buffalo and a tiger battling to the death.

HUMANS AND APES

Against a panorama of seething wild life the film unfolds the drama of existence of four individuals. Two of them are humans, a Malay tiger hunter and his young son. Two of them are apes, also father and son. The humans live in a hut, stuck up on bamboo poles, and the apes live in trees—both having the same common enemy, the tiger.

There is no birth control here. The tropical forest is overrun with animals. Hundreds of monkeys scamper to the trees when their posted sentinel sounds the alarm of approaching danger. These monkeys, chattering like visiting firemen on convention, are more fun than a tent full of Barnum and Bailey clowns. And they are better pantomimists!

EYES OF THE WILD

The picture boasts impressive photography. The jungle sun fades and the dawn comes with a realistic flare. And some of the camera shots are uncanny. There are closeups of wild-animal eyes, bulging with fear, simpering with delight.

The film has been embellished with a prologue, descriptive talk and music and sound—Hollywood made. Otherwise, it appears as the real thing—an assemblage of film footage that took Ernest B. Schoedsack a year in the jungle to get.

And this Mr. Schoedsack is more than an adventurous cameraman. He is a dramatist. He sees the jungles through the eyes of an Elmer Rice. His "Rango" is a jungle "Street Scene."

Beryl Mercer Cast In 'Always Goodbye'

Beryl Mercer has been added to the cast of "Always Goodbye," Fox picture.

Walter Winchell Will Be Found on Page 13

Doris Kenyon Plays In Arliss Picture

Doris Kenyon will play the role of Betsy Schuyler, who married Alexander Hamilton, in Warner Bros.' forthcoming picture dealing with the life of the great American statesman. George Arliss is starred in the title role.

The casting resources of Hollywood are being ransacked for actors to portray George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, James Monroe, John Jay, Gen. Philip Schuyler (father of Betsy) and other colorful figures of the early days of the republic.

Of especial importance is the story of "Alexander Hamilton," as originally written for the stage by Mr. Arliss and Mary P. Hamlin, is the part of Mrs. Reynolds, the siren whose relations with Hamilton produced serious complications in both his public and private life.

BLONDES OUTNUMBER RED HEADS IN FILMS

The redheads are a small, although far from silent, minority in the talkies, and blondes, preferred or not, predominate in Hollywood.

Statistics compiled by Fred Datig, casting director for Paramount, showed that of 2460 girls listed at the studios, only 20 are titian haired. Others were classed as follows: Blondes, 1,022; light brown hair, 518; dark brown hair, 421; black hair, 479.

Datig said Joan Crawford, Clara Bow and Janet Gaynor notwithstanding, the proportion of flaming haired actresses among the stars was even smaller.

J. Murray Anderson Makes Second Film

John Murray Anderson has been assigned by Carl Laemmle, Jr., to direct "Lilies of Broadway," original by William Hurlbut, which Universal recently bought. This will be Anderson's second screen production, his first being the Paul Whiteman musical, "King of Jazz." Anderson's work for the stage was entirely musical.

Paramount Band Sanders' Feature

During the next few weeks, prominent bands will feature the Saturday night programs in the new Sanders' Inn, Freeport road, Aspinwall, according to an announcement by Fred Sanders, proprietor. The first of the visiting bands will be the Paramount Orchestra of New York, which will be the featured attraction tomorrow night. A floor revue also will be presented.

FOR MOTORISTS WHO LIKE TO save money

gives you better performance . . .
yet it sells at regular-gas price

HERE's the motor fuel for thrifty people—it has extra quality in every gallon, yet sells at regular-gas price! Try it, today. Learn how thousands of motorists have found this new way to save money, and at the same time get better performance from their automobiles than ever before.

You'll be amazed that so superior a gasoline can be sold at no extra cost. ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH gives you more miles than you would have believed possible. It has truly remarkable "anti-knock" characteristics. It gives you instant starting . . . a shorter warming-up period . . . flashing pick-up . . . extra power. These things not only add to your driving comfort, but they mean that you use less gasoline.

Why deny yourself the economy—and pleasure—of this sensational new motor fuel? ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH is crystal-clear in color. It has no objectionable odor . . . an important point if you drive a closed car. Fill up your tank, and put your car to the hardest tests you know. You'll soon convince yourself that ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH has no equal!

TROOPS OF 28TH DIVISION HURRIED INTO COMBAT UNIT

3 MILLION MEN NEEDED TO WIN WAR

facts to Allied authorities. The presence of such sentiments was another important reason for opposing any form of amalgamation.

Gen. Robertson

Far short had we fallen of the expectations of the preceding November, when Foch, Gen. Robertson, of the British and I had joined in an urgent appeal for 24 trained American divisions by the following June. It is small wonder that the Allies were now so insistent in urging increased and continuous shipments of men, trained or untrained.

So serious was the situation regarded that it was no longer a demand for 24 divisions, but for 100. It is probable that the vastness of this request was not fully realized, or else the Allies had greatly exaggerated ideas of our power of accomplishment, surprising as it actually proved to be.

Estimates 3,000,000 Men

A brief calculation of these demands of the prime ministers showed that they were asking more than 2,500,000 combatant troops by the following spring, which, augmented by those required for the services of supply, conservatively calculated for a well-balanced force situated in a foreign country under the circumstances that surrounded us, would amount at least to 4,000,000 men.

The American combatant force would thus have equaled 200 divisions of the Allies, and their apprehension may be imagined when we realize that this was greater by one-fourth than the combined Allied armies of 162 divisions then on the Western Front.

Although no such number as this could have been considered feasible, as it is unlikely that it could have been either transported, equipped or supplied, it was necessary, in view of the situation, to lay plans for bringing over all we could.

After giving the question careful study, it seemed to me that 3,000,000 men would be the limit we could hope to reach by the spring of 1919.

This roughly, would provide at least 66 or possibly over 70 combatant divisions, the rest being necessary for the noncombatant services.

As we had hitherto made estimates based upon a total force of 2,000,000 men, it was quite imperative that calculations should be made on the increased basis and that work everywhere in the A. E. F. should now have that end in view.

Rely on Americans

A cable I sent June 21 set forth the reasons for fixing the program for the future definitely at 3,000,000 men as a minimum, and urged upon the War Department the utmost effort to meet our immediate requirements for the expansion of port facilities and railroads. A detailed study of the troop shipments and tonnage required was included. The situation as viewed at that time can perhaps be best shown by quoting part of my cable:

"The present state of the war under the continued German offensive makes it necessary to consider at once the largest possible military program for the United States. The morale of the French government and of the High Command is believed to be good, but it is certain that the morale of the lower grades of the French Army is distinctly poor.

"Both the French and British people are extremely tired of the war, and their troops are reflecting this attitude in their frequent inability to meet successfully the German attacks.

"It is the American soldiers now in France upon whom they rely. It is the moral as well as material aid given by the American soldier that is making the continuation of the war possible.

"Only the continual arrival of American troops and their judicious employment can restore the morale of our Allies and give them courage.

"The above represents the views of the Allied military leaders as told me in person by Gen. Foch himself, and I believe it is also the view of the civil leaders. We must start immediately on our plans for the future and be ready to strike this fall in order to tide us over till spring, when we should have a big army ready.

Urges Special Efforts

"The war can be brought to a successful conclusion next year if we only go at it now. From a purely military point of view it is essential that we make this effort especially for the reasons above stated, and on account of the grave possibility that the enemy will obtain supplies and men from Russia before next year.

"To meet the demands imposed by the above plan our minimum effort should be based on sending to France prior to May, 1919, a total force, including that already here, of 66 division (or better if possible) together with the necessary corps and army troops, service of supply troops and replacements.

"This plan would give an available force of about 3,000,000 soldiers for the summer campaign of 1919, and if this force were maintained would, in conjunction with our Allies, give us every hope of concluding the war in 1919."

The cable also set forth in detail the numbers and classes of troops to be shipped each month from August, 1918, until May, 19, inclusive.

The enlarged program gave rise in Washington to the question whether we should be able to handle the increased tonnage of supplies.

Realizing that any expression of doubt on our part would certainly cause a slowing down at home, from which it might be impossible later to recover, and which would cause far more embarrassment to us than the delays that existed in the dispatch of freight, I did not at all hesitate to urge the department to send over cargo as rapidly as possible, giving no hint or statement which might be used later as a reason for not sending along everything they could.

Stresses Need of Speed

To emphasize further the urgency of beginning on the expanded plan and to put it before the secretary of war directly, the following paragraphs were included in a letter I wrote him:

"I wish to take up a subject of very great importance. That is the burning one of getting troops over here and forming an army as rapidly as possible. I think it is imperative that our whole program for the next 9 or 12 months be reconstructed. The Department's estimate of 91,000 men per month after August is not nearly as much as we must do.

"I cannot emphasize this point too forcibly. We should have at least 3,000,000 men in France by next April, ready for the spring and summer campaign. To achieve this will involve the shipment of 250,000 men per month for the eight months ending April 1. This is the smallest program we should contemplate.

"The situation among our allies is such that unless we can end the war next year we are likely to be left practically alone in the fight. If further serious reverses come to us this year it is going to be very difficult even to hold France in the war.

Favors Offensive

"The morale of both the French and British troops is not what it should be. The presence of our troops has braced them up very much, but their staying powers are doubtful. Our 2d and 3d Divisions actually stopped the Germans. The French were not equal to it. I fear that I must put some of our regiments into the weaker French divisions, temporarily, to give them courage.

"After checking the German offensive we must be prepared to strike as soon as possible. The German divisions are growing weaker and their man-power is running low. The German people would be inclined to make peace if they felt a few heavy blows. We should be ready to give them.

"On the other hand, if we do not hasten and the war is allowed to drag along during next year and the year after, we shall run a very great risk that Germany will recuperate by conscripting man-power from the Western provinces of Russia. The British and French governments are alarmed about this, as you know, and I consider it a real danger.

"Then, we must bear in mind the effect of a long war upon our own people. The idea seems prevalent at home that the war is going to be finished within a year and our people are wrought up and wish to see a big effort at once.

"But if we do not make ourselves strong enough on this front to assume the offensive and push the war to a finish, there are going to be criticism and dissatisfaction at home and a general letting down of our war spirit. Moreover, by using a large force and ending the war we shall avoid the large losses that have so dreadfully depleted our allies. Let us take every advantage of the high tide of enthusiasm and win the war.

"I think that with proper representations as to the necessity for shipping, the British would do all they could to assist us. On our side, we should demand a greater amount of American tonnage than has hitherto been allotted to the Army from the sum total of our available shipping which is constantly increasing.

"Our shipping advisers here say that several hundred thousand tons can be added to the Army allotment by proper paring.

Warns Against Delay

"As to the preparation of this new army, may I not beg of you to consider a draft of 2,000,000 men by December 1? My recent cable asking that 1,500,000 be called out should now be increased to 2,000,000. They should be called out, beginning now, at the rate of 400,000 per month for the next five months.

"We should not again be without trained men as we find ourselves now. Every possible means should be exhausted to train, clothe and equip this force by the end of the year. These are strong words and the force looks large, but we are face to face with the most serious situation that has ever confronted a nation, and it must be met at any sacrifice and without any delay.

"I think we must bring women into our factories, transforming the whole country into an organization to push the war. The British could help on clothing. As to munitions, it matters little whether we have a particular kind of artillery; if we cannot get the French we should take the British.

"The same can be said of small arms and personal equipment. If our ordnance cannot furnish them, the French and British have them. So in equipment and armament, there should be no delay.

"As to handling everything that must be sent over under this program, I stand ready now, without waiting for detailed study, to say that we can do it.

"There is nothing so dreadfully important as winning this war, and every possible resource should be made immediately available. Mr. Secretary, the question is so vital to our country, and the necessity of winning the war is so great that there is no limit to which we should not go to carry out the plan I have outlined for the next 10 months, and we must be prepared to carry it on still further after that at the same rate or maybe faster."

Different Views Voiced On Petting Question

Prentis said he wouldn't marry a Big Time Necker—not that he didn't believe in necking himself . . . he did plenty of it . . . But according to him girls were different. And he didn't want one, so he said, who'd been mauled or mishandled.

A sweet little Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire who had waited patiently with folded hands for him when I crept of the Primrose Path—that was his idea of a wife.

"Oh, yeah?" snorts Marie, giving him a dirty look. "And when you find her how do you know she'll want you? What little modest violet will want a man who has been womanhandled? What makes you think you can get away with such stuff.

Dislikes His Type

"I know if I'd stayed home and never petted in my life, I certainly wouldn't pick on your type. I'd be looking for as good as I could give.

"And I wonder if you ever stopped to ask yourself what a group of girls have to say about petting fellows when they get together and talk. You just ought to listen in on a bunch of us talking about you big boy, and see how many would be anxious to marry you.

"As a matter of fact, I've petted myself, and so has my fiance. We both own up to it. He didn't try to act like a little innocent lamb and neither did I. We've both of us seen enough of others to know our own minds, and know how to treat each other. And personally, I don't see anything so dreadful in petting . . . if you don't go in for too much of it. And I can't see why any guy who does pet should set himself up as any little tin god who won't marry a girl who pets."

Says He's Selfish

I'll say that's handing it to them. But if it isn't strong enough, tune in while Stewart tells 'em a few.

"I'm writing this to answer Prentis," he begins. "So he feels, does he, that he has a right to do as he pleases, but his fiance must do as he pleases too! He's what you'd call a 'Holier-than-Thou,' I'd say.

"I'm 23 and, while I've never petted myself, I am engaged to a girl who has . . . and do I think less of her? I do not. She has led her life as she saw it . . . and I have led mine. Now we are on the threshold of another life together, where both of our interests will be welded in the good of the home. And I know that I can trust my woman . . . Because she knows life in a way that no 'shrinking violet' could know it. She is in a better position to raise a family, for she has no childish illusions . . . She knows life is not a bed of roses . . . nor a bed of thorns, but simply a tough proposition that takes love and perseverance and hope and faith to overcome.

"All I hope is that some day I can have a chance at a heart-to-heart talk with a gentleman . . . like that, Prentis. He amounts to about 50 degrees below zero on the social scale . . . the kind that'll sully others . . . but who wants his own unsullied. Selfish! The kind that would ruin someone else's home, but rave if his own piano is scratched. So I hope when he marries his little Shrinking Violet she turns out to be the world's worst nagger. It would be good enough for him."

Cites Women's Honor

Paul, however, has other ideas. "Women," says he, "have always been the ones to carry the honor and virtue of the world. And men have always looked up to them . . . the good ones . . . on that account. Are we to lower our standards now, and say that a woman can be as wild as she pleases, and then be treated like an honored member of society? No! A thousand times, no! We must never lower our standards like that! We must demand that our wives be of the highest character. Men can 'step' without doing a great deal of damage. But women—the mothers of the race—No! Certainly I wouldn't marry any Big Time Necker."

Well, well! And what makes you think that any girl would consider you a prize?

If stepping around damages their morals, it damages yours, too. And you're every bit as bad as the gals who step with you!

Sure, this world needs good women . . . but it needs good men, too; and it's just as much up to you to be regular as it is up to the girl. It takes two to make morality . . . so why try to put all the burden on the female side of the team?

Be Worthy Yourself Before Boasting of Ancestors, Fay King Advises

By FAY KING

Unless you can be a credit to your religion or illustrious ancestors, the less said about them the better.

Too many wasters go about the world wearing crosses and telling about their converts when their very lives, speech, environment and actions are a discredit and insult to the worthy teachings they have had in youth.

How often one meets persons who drag in, either by outright boasting, or by a round about belittlement, the importance of their noble ancestors.

One feels so sorry for the ancestors.

I like to remember the man who came to a small western town and worked and made friends on his own. Not until he died did they discover his important connections.

First—be worthy yourself!

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Comes Through With Flying Colors in "Explaining"

At Dicky's ultimatum my mental temperature began a journey toward the zero mark. He evidently was determined to force the issue of my wearing his flowers or those of Philip Veritzen to Mary's party, although he apparently had forgotten the choice which had been his a few moments before at overhearing my colloquy with my employer.

I was facing now, I knew, what Harry Underwood would have laughingly described as a "crew-w-ci-al moment." But I am afraid that my spirit was aroused not so much by the fear—absurd, but poignant—that the future welfare of Noel and Mary might hang on my decision, as by the knowledge that Edith Fairfax was responsible for Dicky's cognizance of Philip Veritzen's plan.

I was able, however, to let my common sense rule my resentment, and I threw my little grenade with a smiling face.

"May I ask where you secured this apparently exclusive information about my wearing Mr. Veritzen's flowers?"

Dicky is never Machiavellian, and therefore is easily caught off guard. At my question he started and, patently forgetting the important fact that he had overheard Mr. Veritzen ask me if I had decided whose flowers I meant to wear, he blurted out: "Why, Ede—" then stopped short, his face crimsoning with angry chagrin.

"Exactly," I said coolly. "I knew she would as soon as she heard of Mr. Veritzen's plan to send flowers to all the women of the party old and young. But really, Dicky, I acquitted you of falling for her little scheme until you telephoned me."

"What scheme?" Dicky growled.

"To force me into a position where I should have to decide either to accept the compliment offered to every woman of the party, and offend you, or to make myself conspicuous, refuse Mr. Veritzen's bouquet and wear the flowers which you in all probability would not have sent save for Edith's suggestion."

"I suppose I never sent you flowers for a party before," he said hotly.

"Of course you have. You are always most lavish—and considerate." I answered with emphasis. "But this party is for school and college youngsters. You know as well as I do that no one of the chaperones would have thought of wearing flowers if it had not been for Mr. Veritzen's flamboyant gesture."

I tried to make my voice derisive, knowing that Dicky was always absurdly pleased when I said anything derogatory of my employer. That the ruse had worked I saw when his next words ignored entirely the subject of Mr. Veritzen, and instead were querulously defensive, with no trace of the ill-suppressed fury which had been in them before.

"All right, all right, have it your own way," he said impatiently. "But why is it that you always have to pick on Ede? She had no 'scheme,' she simply was so delighted at the prospect of one of old Phil's nosegays for herself that she blatted about it. But why should she want to know especially that you were going to wear his flowers, too?

Dicky never had been guilty of a smirk, but the second cousin of that expression was undeniably touching his lips. I knew that a successful formula for placating him—letting him think that I was jealous of Edith Fairfax—was working.

I looked at him steadily and gave an airy little laugh.

"If you do not know the answer to that I surely am not going to tell you," I said. "But you do know it, ever better than I. However, that has nothing to do with it, so suppose we forget that part of it. Indeed, the whole affair isn't worth the hint of a quarrel between you and me, Dicky."

"Right you are," he said quickly, reaching out his hand and catching mine, regardless of Purnell at the rear of the room busily sorting the blossoms into piles of each variety, as I had instructed him to do. Despite the tenseness of our colloquy, we had spoken in tones inaudible to anyone but ourselves, and I indicated Purnell with a warning glance.

"Dicky, dear," I said softly, "I want to talk to you for five minutes or less. There are things I must tell you, and something I want to ask you. Won't you sit down at one of those tables over there." I indicated one at the corner of the room, farthest from Purnell, "and listen to me without comment until I have finished. Then I'll listen to you."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Indigestion a Factor in Epilepsy.

Nothing is more startling than to be seated in a theater and have your neighbor suddenly slump in his seat, "throwing a fit," as the slang would have it. That is exactly what happened in a theater the other evening. You can imagine the excitement and furor caused by this incident. One of the theatergoers had an attack of epilepsy.

Dr. Copeland

Epilepsy is a disturbance of the nervous system, in which there are more or less regular attacks of unconsciousness. These attacks may be associated with or without convulsions.

When there is loss of consciousness without the convulsions, the doctors give the condition the name, "petit mal." If the loss of consciousness is accompanied by general convulsions, it is known as "grand mal."

These names are not important to most of us. But since they are used occasionally in general conversation, I merely mention them.

Epilepsy still remains one of the great unsolved mysteries of medicine. The doctors understand its mechanism and readily recognize the disease. But it is extremely difficult to find the cause of many of the cases.

Of late, there has been a tendency to look upon this condition, not as a disease, but as a symptom of disease.

It has been noted in many cases that digestive disturbances of a severe nature appear to be factors in producing epileptic attacks. When these disturbances are controlled, there is likely to be a reduction in the number and severity of attacks, even though they do not disappear altogether.

Undoubtedly, fatigue and nervous excitement are factors of great importance. Severe physical exertion and possible atmospheric changes and residence in high altitudes have their part in producing this undesirable condition.

Birth injuries, chronic alcoholism and hereditary tendencies are factors that must be considered. Unfortunately little in the way of prevention has yet been discovered.

Never become excited if you are near one who is having an epileptic spasm. The condition is easily recognized by the sudden loss of consciousness, frothing at the mouth and the twitching of the body. These are the common symptoms.

Try to help the victim. If you will keep cool you can do so and perhaps prevent the damage the patient may do himself.

During the attack, a cork, a piece of wood, even a lead pencil, should be placed between the teeth. This is done to prevent biting of the tongue, which frequently happens. Loosen the clothing and place the patient on a couch or the floor.

The attack passes off quickly and no special treatment is necessary. Usually it is followed by a period of quiet sleep for an hour or so. If the convulsions persist, a physician should be called. He will give the proper medication.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

When Being Introduced to a Young Lady

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When you are introduced to a young lady, is it proper to shake hands as though you were being introduced to a young man, or should you remove your hat and say, "How do you do," or some other words to that effect?

2. If a young lady should thank me for sending her a Christmas card, what would be nice for me to say in answering her?

3. Is it proper for a young man to thank a young lady for allowing him to take her out for the evening when leaving her at her door? PUZZLED.

1. A man, when he is being introduced to a woman, waits for her to make the first move in this question of shaking hands. That is, it is the privilege of the woman to indicate to the man that she wishes to shake hands, and so she is the one who first extends her hand.

If the woman shows no sign of wishing to shake hands, the man bows, says "how do you do," and makes no move to extend his hand.

2. "Something like this: "It gave me great pleasure to send the card, and I am delighted that you liked it," or "thank you so much for telling me . . . I am so happy that you liked it."

3. Yes, this is the courtly and polite thing to do. The well-bred woman expects a man to do this, just as she expects to tell him too what a delightful time she has had, and how much she has enjoyed the entertainment that he has planned.

When Presents Are Not Desired

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am about to send out invitation cards to a birthday and confirmation party. As is the custom, friends and relatives who attend usually bring presents. I have discussed this with my family at home, and have decided, on account of the present financial difficulties, to have the presents eliminated. Would it be proper to have printed in the lower left corner of the invitation: "Presents not accepted," or what would you suggest?

READER.

This is an excellent impulse of yours, but I never can figure out just how this sort of generous and thoughtful impulse can be carried out. Our friends, I am sure, would find it difficult to understand such a request . . . at least a request made in this way.

You might, of course, subtly let it be known that you would genuinely prefer not to be given presents . . . it would be easier to tell your friends, I think, than to write a peremptory "Presents not accepted," which doesn't sound a bit warm or friendly, instead, it's cold and curt.

As a matter of fact, what your friends would probably prefer to do is to modify the budget to be spent on your present and buy a simpler, less consequential present. Then they will, as friends would wish to do, make a congratulatory bow to you, for your birthday and for your confirmation, and still make it in a simpler way.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Heavy powders won't do for oily skins. Oil and powder combine into a calcimine smear. A light powder should be fluffed on, patted in with the finger tips. Any surplus that remains should be removed with a soft camel's hair brush. Seelah!

With the chapeau stuck back far from the brow the fore arrangement of the coiffure is important. Little curly-cues fill out blank spaces. The water wave or marcel forms a lamberquin atop the visage. Hairdressers find the change in hat pose advantageous. Very different from the period of the boyish cut and the skull cap pulled down to meet the eyebrows. Coiffures are themselves again. They're sumpin!

In combating wrinkles, it pays to make an early start. With the wear and tear of modern life it's easy enough to let the phiz get so-so. It takes time to attend to beauty rites. But the oiling of the complexion every night is not something to forget. It should be done from the age of 18 up to 80. Oil keeps the cutaneous surface smooth. Friction stimulates blood streams, tones tissues, keeps fibers firm. And don't overlook the astringent effects of cold water.

Alternating oilings and washings will gradually dislodge dandruff. Pour on hot olive oil, friction it into the scalp for five or 10 minutes. Next morning have a rousing shampoo. Repeat once a week.

She who likes to compound her cosmetics can make a nail bleach easily enough. Get a small quantity of powdered oxide of zinc. Take a portion the size of a large pea, mix with a drop of water and push the paste under the nail eaves with a sharpened orange wood stick. The mixture will remove grime and stains. Use the stick carefully, so as to outline the nail ends clearly and evenly.

Household Hints

An occasional bath in soda and hot water is splendid for the flat irons.

Saucepans of all sorts will last longer if they are dried after having been washed. They may be dried on the fire or with an old tea towel—but dried they should be.

Be sure that the floor is even and the boards secure before the new linoleum is laid in the kitchen. If the foundation is not even and secure the linoleum cannot help but wear out over the defects.

If you find the dinner is going to be delayed for some time and the potatoes will have to stay in the boiling water too long, either mash or rice them and they will be much more palatable than water-sogged boiled potatoes.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, February 28

A day of very important events, with very large opportunities for success and great achievement as well as difficult situations to overcome, is the augury based upon a set of what astrologers denominate "mixed influences." However there is much promise of advancement, preferement, honors and help from those in places of position and power and in employment, but the setbacks and oppositions must be met with resolution and wise action, with many disruptive forces vanquished. Sign all writings cautiously.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very important year with much opportunity for advancement, promotion, gain favors and help from employers or those in power, but attended by some disruptive and opposing forces to be stubbornly resisted and wisely manipulated. Sign papers carefully and change discreetly.

A child born on this day may be versatile, clever and ambitious, although inclined to be restless and adventurous. With discretion and determination to resist obstacles it should rise to splendid place and achievement in life.

TILDEN'S CLEAN-UP RUINS NET TOUR

THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT Karel Kozeluh was so fatigued he would be forced to abandon, temporarily, his professional tennis tour with Big Bill Tilden, bore out the predictions of many net experts that it would be a question of only a short time until Tilden's honesty and zeal killed Promoter Jack Curley's newest enterprise. Instead of being physically fatigued by a week's activity in a game which he has been playing all his life, and which until now has been a mere pastime for him, Kozeluh perhaps is mentally tired of taking a licking every night. Possibly it's his pride that's worn out.

Karel Kozeluh

And in all probability Mr. Curley figured that the public soon would become equally tired—tired of seeing the same thing from night to night, and of paying to witness lopsided matches that could have only one result. Curley has found that not all sports are like wrestling, and his private view of the thing probably is that in spite of his turn to the professional ranks Tilden still is very much of an amateur.

CURLEY'S DREAM OF a properly-conducted enterprise of the sort would be a tour on which first one and then the other player would be the winner, with close results in all sets and matches, and the outcome of the nine-match series for the "world professional championship" being kept in doubt right up to the end of the ninth and final test. That is what sustains public interest and packs arenas.

In view of that, Jack must get a headache every time he thinks of what Tilden has done. One, two, three, four, five, six times in a row Big Bill trounced the Czechoslovakian star. He walloped Kozeluh in every match on the tour from the curtain raiser in New York until Karel became "fatigued" in Chicago. Kozeluh won only two sets, and in most other instances the scores were not even close.

THAT'S ALL FINE for Tilden, who, like any other honest athlete, does not know how to do anything else but play his best at all times and try to win every match instead of making the thing close. But it must look disastrous to Curley, when he views the early ruins of the widely-advertised tour which he had expected to produce close matches and yield enormous profits.

Of course it will help the future of professional tennis by proving that it's honest, but Curley probably isn't interested in the future of professional tennis so much as in the financial success of the present tour which he is promoting. It must be a strange experience to him to see his tour ruined by honest playing effort after years in the wrestling game where it seems possible to get close matches all the time and new champions as often as desired just by pulling a string.

A GOOD IMPRESSION has been made so far by the newest set of brothers in the major baseball leagues, the Walkers, who are training with the Detroit Tigers in Sacramento. Stanley Harris pronounces them fine prospects after working them in both the infield and outfield. Harvey is the better fielder and thrower, and Gerald is the better hitter and baserunner. Harvey is far superior to his brother in the outfield, where Gerald has several faults that must be overcome.

Bus Albright

THE GREAT WORK done for the Pitt basketball team this season by Bus Albright, who is expected to shine at center tonight, as usual, against Carnegie Tech, led Henry E. Rodney to write as follows from Uniontown:

"Do you know that Bus Albright, star center for the Pitt quintet, could not make his high school team? It was no wonder—Les Cohen, of recent Pitt fame, was holding down the regular berth. Also, a little boy named Charley Hyatt, then only a junior, was a forward.

"MARKIE RANKIN formerly in the athletic limelight for Grove City, and now coach of Sharpsville High, was playing guard," the correspondent continues. "This all happened on the Uniontown High School team of 1925, suite champions and national runners-up. Coach Everhart, the miracle man of Uniontown High, developed these players."

It might be added that another Pitt floor star who is shining today after a drab start is Timmy Lawry. Little was heard of him last season as a sophomore, but now, as a junior, he is the leading scorer of the team, with 103 points to his credit.

THE MEN ATTACHED to the Pittsburgh office of Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers, who wired Jim (Rube) Ferns, former welterweight ring champion, a copy of the erroneous report of his death sent out from New York, received the following reply from the old fighter yesterday: "Excelsior Springs, Mo. Dear Friends—Your wire sent me to Heaven. Please send your flowers to Heaven also. I am up in the gallery among the rest of the Irish. We have a special section apart from all others. I am going to play a harp in the orchestra, and you can hear us over KDKA radio station. I will sing on Sunday night at 8:30, eastern standard time. Tell all the boys to get hooked up and hear our program. Yours in Heaven, as I was on earth. James R. Ferns, the Light of Truth."

HAVING BEEN KNOCKED out in 24 seconds when they last met, Bill Petrolle probably will be particularly wary of King Tut during the first round of their sixth encounter in New York tonight. Unlike many fighters who require a round or two to get started, Tut is most dangerous in the first three minutes.

In addition to Petrolle, Johnny Macey, Babe Ruth and Don Long, whom he has knocked out in the opening innings, the King has scored first-round knockdowns against Billy Wallace, Jack Thompson, Honeyboy Finnegan, Stanislaus Loayza, Danny Kramer, Sid Barbarian, Billy Townsend, Russie Leroy, George Balduc, Pinkey Kaufman, Joey Kaufman, Tommy Cello and Doc Snell.

PETER F. KELLEY, business manager of the Pittsburgh baseball club 15 years ago, writes from Boston: "I was shocked by the sad news of the death of Sam Dreyfuss. He was a fine man. I had not seen him for some time, but I'll always remember how nice he was to me when I was with the Pirates in 1916. He was in his first year at Princeton. He was smart as a steel trap and a real baseball fan. What I really liked about him best was his intense loyalty to his father.

"Please remember me to Senator Frank J. Harris, Les Constans and the Pittsburgh sports writers. Also, of course, to Sam Watters, a good scout. How's Honus?

Pete Scott

THE AVERAGE ball player on any old club will assure you at this time every year that "there's nothing to it but us." However, letting part of his salary hinge on a pennant victory is a different proposition in his eyes. Ex-Pirate Pete Scott received a contract from the Rochester club calling for a cut of $1,200 with this note from President Warren G. Giles: "Of course you know we win the pennant every year, and the extra money you will make at the end of the season off the little world series will more than make up the cut I am making in your salary." Pete turned it down, saying he had played ball long enough to know that pennants are not won in the winter. He did not carry his point, for Rochester promptly sold him to Jersey City and now [illegible] has sent him a contract calling for the same reduction.

BUC TWIRLERS EAGER TO GET INTO ACTION

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Feb. 27.—The Pirate pitchers today had reached a point in conditioning where it would be possible for them to bear down a bit if it were necessary, but as he led his big squad of sharpshooters on to the ball ground this morning Manager Ens cautioned his hurlers against letting loose with their stuff. The second guard is due to reach camp tomorrow afternoon, and on the following day the skipper intends to put his full squad through the first complete session of the training season.

The athletes en route will find a bunch of pitchers rarin' to go when they land at the camp site. The recruit hurlers especially are eager to cut the ball over the plate. It is a waste of energy to attempt to prevent a show of his stuff on the part of a rookie pitcher and so it goes. Ens has five or six kid flingers who seem to be able to go to the mound in a regular way at this early period.

STEVE WORRIES ENS

The Pirate manager is a bit worried over the injury to Steve Swetonic's arm. Steve is in Los Angeles taking treatment for a sore spot close to his pitching elbow.

The North Side boy is said to have hurt his right arm near the close of last season. He underwent treatment from at least two celebrated healers during the winter months, but when he essayed to throw at Paso Robles, something snapped in the tender region, and Steve hustled to a doctor in Los Angeles who holds a reputation for righting wrongs.

Aside from Swetonic and Larry French, who is a holdout absentee, the Pirate staff of first-stringers appears to be approaching form in a satisfactory manner. Remy Kremer, for instance, is showing up well at this early period of the season. Remy does not have the excess baggage he displayed last season, when he seemed a bit fearful of getting on the scales. He was out in the woods hunting or in the fields playing golf during a part of the cold months and, as a result, he reported in a satisfying manner.

MEINE IMPROVED

Heinie Meine is another right-hander who gives comfort to Manager Ens. The St. Louis Dutchman is about a dozen pounds heavier than when he left the Pirates in mid-summer last year. Meine's health was in decline at that time, but he appears to have checked up at the right time. He is the picture of strength now and should be a regular starter right from the time of the opening gong.

Ervin Brame also is impressive and Charley Wood is getting stronger each day on top of his attack of influenza.

Glenn Spencer is going along in such a way as to indicate he will be a serious contender for one of the regular jobs of the slab.

Larry French's absence is to be lamented, but Ens is confident the Coast lefthander will be along in time to secure the benefits of spring training.

Another two-hour workout is scheduled for today, batting again to feature the session.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: DR. JOHN DUNLOP, HORSE DOCTOR, HELPED PUT THE HORSE OUT OF BUSINESS—On July 23, 1888, after he had been practicing his profession of veterinarian for 24 years, Dr. John Boyd Dunlop first conceived the idea of a pneumatic rubber tire. The idea of an air-cushion tire came to him while watching his son riding a solid rubber tired tricycle bumping over cobblestones on the streets of Belfast. His own bicycle, the first vehicle to be equipped with his invention, is one of the prized exhibits of the Royal Scottish Museum. SERGT. YORK—WORLD WAR HERO—WAS A CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTOR—Prior to Sergt. Alvin York's enlistment, in November, 1917, his objections to serving in the Army were so sincere that he wrote a personal letter to President Wilson asking to be exempt. Despite his objections, he became one of the most renowned heroes of the World War. His notable achievement, pronounced by Marshal Foch as "the greatest accomplished by any private soldier of all the armies of Europe," was performed in the Argonne, October 8, 1918. Armed with a Springfield rifle and an automatic revolver, he killed 20 Germans, captured Hill 223 and compelled the surrender of 132 enemy soldiers (including a major and three lieutenants) and 35 machine guns. He was awarded the U. S. Medal of Honor and received the Croix de Guerre from Marshal Foch personally. Sergt. York's home is Pall Mall, Tenn.

GAMES TOMORROW.

North Braddock vs. Dunbar, Greensburg.
Washington vs. McDonald, Pitt Stadium.

BY JESS CARVER.

The entrance of the defending champion, New Kensington, into the second round of the present W. P. I. A. L. championship elimination tournament in the Pitt Stadium last night was unimpressive, despite a 26-15 victory over Swissvale, representative from Section XI, but it was not without individuality.

Regular patrons of W. P. I. A. L. tourneys for years have been looking forward to watching a befuddled player score a goal for the opposing team. It happened last night, right off the bat. On the very first tap-off, Groat, Swissvale forward, obtained possession of the ball while heading for the New Kensington hoop. He stopped, took a shot, followed in, took a second, and, in doing so, set his own team so goofy that Ross Emerick, usually cool as a cucumber, jumped the ball in, scoring two points for New Kensington and an unearned field goal for the Ken-Hi captain, Whitey Wilson.

It was the champion "boner" play of the year, or, for that matter, of any year.

WINNERS UNIMPRESSIVE

New Kensington went on to win, but certainly did not look like a championship outfit. The team was not steady, as a team. Capt. Wilson and Bell, the Negro guard, being the only consistent performers. Babe Dayoub, who last year was a whizz of a center and a good hard-working basketballer, was cocky to the extent of becoming obnoxious, played just so-so ball and might have been the cause of his team's losing. Ill fortune attended the Swissvale marksmen, who were able to pierce New Kensington's defense with comparative ease, but who missed shot after shot under the hoop and from corners that should have salted the game away in the Swissvalian larder.

After Wilson received his gift goal at the start, Dayoub and Susek flipped one each and Krisliet made good at the foul line to give Ken-Hi a 7-to-2 advantage at the end of the first period. Swissvale's two points were credited to Herring, who tossed a long one.

CHAMPS HOLD LEAD

New Kensington managed to retain its lead in the second period, despite a brave rally by Swissvale. Herring contributed four more points to his team's total by sinking four out of five fouls, and Groat and Casillo each flung field goals and Casillo added a foul to bring the Swissvale total to 11 at the half. Wilson and Krisliet dropped goals from the court for Kensington and the captain and Dayoub marked up single pointers. New Kensington led by 13 to 11 at the intermission.

There was little scoring in the third quarter, and less worth while play. Fullen scored a field

CITY LEAGUE RACE CLOSES

GAMES TODAY.
Section I.

South at Schenley.
Fifth at Westinghouse.
Allderdice at Peabody.
Section II.
Allegheny at Langley.
Perry at Oliver.
Carrick at South Hills.

The City League's helter-skelter basketball race comes to a close this afternoon, three games in each of the two sections providing the action. After today, however, some of the leaders will have to remain in training, for play-off games are going to be necessary in both divisions before champions can be crowned and primed for the annual series for the league title.

In Section I, Schenley and South offer the banner game of the day. This game will break wide open the three-way tie which exists for the lead, and the winner will meet Westinghouse for the section crown, probably next Tuesday.

In Section II, where Allegheny, Perry and South Hills are deadlocked, the odds are that all three will win, necessitating the staging of two play-off tussles. Perry meets Oliver, Allegheny takes on Langley and South Hills engages Carrick today.

Other Section I games includes the Peabody-Allderdice and Fifth-Westinghouse games.

A last remaining W. P. I. A. L. sectional title will be decided tonight as Coraopolis and McKees Rocks clash for the honors in Section IX. Coraopolis could have taken down the crowd Tuesday, but lost in an extra period to the Rox outfit.

THOMAS BOYD DIES

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Thomas Boyd, former president of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, who was known as the father of amateur athletics in Western Canada, died yesterday. He was 61 years old. He had been in ill health for some time.

Tilden is Injured, But Tops Pare In Five Sets

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Emmet Pare, Dayton, O., youngster, carried William T. Tilden II to five sets in their tennis exhibition here last night, but lost. The scores were 3-6, 7-5, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

Tilden turned his right ankle at the end of the fourth set, and limped throughout the fifth. Pare replaced Karel Kozeluh, professional champion, in the troupe.

M'BRIDE QUITS SCHENLEY POST

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang has announced the resignation of Al McBride as golf professional at the Schenley Park municipal links, effective March 15. McBride has resigned the city post to take on the same berth for Allegheny County in South Park. While McBride has not been officially appointed to the post it is understood that following a conference attended by the commissioners last week his official appointment remained only a formality.

It is not thought likely that, after seeking McBride's services, the County Commissioners will fail to appoint him, although several candidates have put in applications for the job by way of opposition. It is reported Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and E. V. Babcock and Director of County Parks Paul B. Riis are eager to place a man with McBride's vast experience in public links golf at the South Park course, and few men in ranks in this district have had that particular experience.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUGS

By THE BENCHWARMER.

PASO ROBLES, Feb. 27.—Well, folks, we had a great time out there yesterday, but I'm kinda sore over it and I guess all the other rookies are the same way. Jule is goin' in for a lot of things this spring and when he asked for volunteers for some races I gave him a thrill when I told him to enter me. I wish you could have seen his eyes pop when I stayed right up close to Hemsley, Mosolf and the others.

We have a lot of time to ourselves as we have only one practice a day. About six or eight of us Yanigans went down to a ridin' school to do a little horseback ridin'. I guess some of the kids have done all their ridin' on the farm without any saddles. The boss of the joint came out and looked at one fresh rookie and said:

"What do you want to use, bo—a horn saddle?"

The fresh kid looked at him a minute and shot back:

"Never mind that horn saddle stuff—I know the traffic rules around here."

YANK HOLDOUT SIGNS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 27.—Dewey Sturd, outfielder and the last remaining New York Yankee holdout, has announced he has forwarded his signed contract to New York and will leave today for the Yankees' training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Bobby Jones Gets Sullivan Medal

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Bobby Jones added to his premiership in golf last night the gold medal of honor for championing amateurism. The James E. Sullivan medal was formally pinned on the shoulders that bear the four great titles in golf.

The plaudits of admirers still dinned in his ears as 1,500 persons saw Avery Brundage, of Chicago, president of the National Amateur Athletic Union, award the trophy to the Atlantan at the Medinah Athletic Club.

PIRRUNG STOPS SPARKY EWALT

George Pirrung, of the H. T. Little Club, Homestead, handed Sparky Ewalt, of the Pastorius Club, McKees Rocks, his first knockout last night in the feature bout, a heavyweight setto, of the amateur boxing show staged by the Pastorius Club in Lithuanian Hall. The kayo, of a technical nature, came in the third round. Ewalt's handler's tossing in the towel after he had been knocked down. The summary:

112-pound class—Tony Marino, Twenty-seventh Ward A. C., defeated Tom Dooley, Woods Run A. C., in three rounds.

126-pound class—Johnny Sheplar, Hogan A. C., defeated Dominick Bufalini, Ambridge A. C., in three rounds.

118-pound class—Herbie Chicos, Hogan A. C., knocked out Wally Mieke, Ambridge A. C., 1 round. Time 1:22.

125-pound class—Johnny Bird, Pittsburgh Lyceum, defeated Fighting Dick Pritchard, Pittsburgh Lyceum, in three rounds.

147-pound class—Ray Mindessen, Superior A. C., knocked out Czechoslovak Mike Evanko, Pastorius A. C., 2 rounds. Max Elling, Pittsburgh Lyceum, defeated George Sebler, St. Boniface Lyceum, in three rounds.

Heavyweight class—Pete Pirrung, H. T. Little Club, knocked out (technical) Sparky Ewalt, Pastorius A. C. Time 1:52.

PIRATES SIGN COMOROSKY

Adam Comorosky, holdout outfield star of the Pirates, signed his 1931 contract today, following a conference with club officials here.

Commy had been offered a raise in the contract tendered him, but though he should get more, as a result of his good work in past seasons. No announcement was made as to the terms under which he signed. The contract is for one year.

The outfield star has been in the city since Tuesday undergoing treatment for a rash on his skin. The condition is about cleared up and he will leave for the Paso Robles (Cal.) training camp probably Sunday.

President Barney Dreyfuss today denied report that the local club is for sale as a result of the death last Sunday of his son, Sam Dreyfuss, who was vice president and treasurer. The elder Dreyfuss said he had not even considered the matter.

Central League Disbands for Year

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The death knell to the Central Baseball League, for this season at least, was sounded today with the tabulation of a mail vote of the four clubs remaining in the circuit.

Operations in the league will be suspended for one year with plans for the resumption of play in 1932. After tomorrow, players in the Central loop automatically become free agents and are at liberty to sign wherever they get a chance.

By CARL W. SHATTO

If Roy D. Schooley today was to outfit his Yellow Jacket icemen in uniforms best suited to their feelings and their fortunes the jersey, trunks and stockings would be of a nile shade of black, and the lettering across their chests would be in whatever color represents bitter misfortune.

The Jackets are in mourning because they lost to the Windsor Bulldogs, 3-2, in an extra-period thriller at Duquesne Garden last night. They are in mourning because their nine-game success string is broken. They are in mourning because they lost a golden opportunity to wrest second place in the International Hockey League standings from the Bulldogs, and because they lost valuable ground in the fight to capture a title play-off berth.

Of the thousands of enthusiastic fans who witnessed the Jackets' setback there possibly is one who will contend that misfortune played no part in the local skaters' defeat. To take issue with the lone fan one need only state the following facts:

SCORE ON LONG SHOT

1—Haynes, the Bulldogs' center, scored 15 seconds after the opening face-off on a shot from the center of the rink. Albie Cox, local goalie, would stop 999 out of 1,000 similar long, looping drives started in the center-ice zone. Every fan in the arena was stunned when the puck glanced off his skat and rustled the strands of the net, but no one was more surprised than was Cox.

2—After the Jackets had gained a 2-1 lead in the second period, they saw the outplayed Bulldogs cash in on another long shot, after 48 seconds of play in the third stanza. Robinson, Windsor wing, this time was the boy who annexed the gift tally. Standing on the Pittsburgh blue line (far out from the cage) the invaders' front line ace lifted a long shot in the direction of a group of Jackets and Bulldogs assembled in front of the local net. There were some eight skaters in the group, so many that Cox was unable to see Robinson, to say nothing of his shot. Albie knew that someone had shot, however, when the rubber disc miraculously found its way through the mass of skaters and into the Pittsburgh goal.

The Bulldogs' tally in the extra period was an honest, untainted goal. True, in ringing up the score Duncan located the only inch of space which Cox left unguarded—a spot an inch from the top and an inch from the side of the cage—but Duncan possibly is an expert marksman.

BULLDOGS OUTPLAYED

The effect of the Pittsburgh defeat may be far-reaching. The Jackets outplayed the Bulldogs during 60 minutes of the 70-minute fight, and no team can decisively outplay a rival and accept defeat with unshaken morale. The setback left the locals stranded in fifth place, one notch below the money circle, and furthermore, the Jackets fought so spiritedly, willingly and persistently that they skated themselves into exhaustion. The weary athletes dropped to the floor and the benches when they reached their dressing room at the close of the fray, too spent to remove the sodden garments from their tired bodies. To no avail they drained themselves of reserve strength that may be sorely needed when they battle the London Tecumsehs at the Garden tomorrow night.

Although the Jackets are only one point removed from a play-off berth, the great race is so nearly ended that a single point represents a severe handicap. Windsor has played one game more than has Pittsburgh, and the Jackets can clamber back up to within a game and a half of the second-place Bulldogs by downing London tomorrow. Unless the Bulldogs play better hockey than they did last night they are likely to be the team that is out in the cold when the play-offs begin. Dame Fortune cannot smile on 'em so generously forever.

Although all of the Jackets performed brilliantly and worked tirelessly, Gordy Fraser and Milt Halliday can claim a major portion of the laurels as a result of their successful scoring efforts in the second period. Both tallied from wild scrimmages in front of the Windsor cage, Fraser at 12:58 and Halliday at 15:12. White and Proudlock were credited with assists on Fraser's goal, and passes by Rodden and Gregg paved the way for Halliday's score.

BIG CROWD ATTENDS

Disputes and fights among the players added to the excitement. Three arguments were occasioned by the flashing of the red light, indicating Pittsburgh goals. The Jackets won one of the three arguments, a new high average in the disputes league. Heretofore the local skaters had lost every debate.

The game with London here tomorrow night will go a long way toward deciding whether the Jackets' hopes of getting into the play-offs are dead ashes, or whether the ashes contain a spark that can be fanned into flame. The lineup:

BELMONT WINS OVER TRIPPE

Jimmy Belmont, rugged Braddock welterweight, slugged his way to a decisive 10-round victory over Joe Trippe, Buffalo veteran, last night, in the main bout of an all-round excellent card presented at the Palisades, McKeesport.

Belmont was the more aggressive during the entire bout, landed the cleaner and harder blows and excelled in the infighting. Several times during the 10 rounds, Trippe rallied, but the flash was short-lived and Belmont invariably came back to show that the Italian's punches had little or no effect on him. Trippe weighed 147 pounds and Belmont 148½.

In a bout that was replete with thrills, Billy Flanagan, of Braddock, was given an undeserved verdict over Buddy McArthur, of McKeesport. Flanagan, who substituted for Sunny Jim McVey on short notice, floored McArthur in the first round, and nearly got credit for a knockout when the Tube City fighter just managed to get to his feet as Referee Jack Henderson reached 10 in his count. Flanagan took the first and second rounds, but after that McArthur set the pace, landed the harder blows and was the more aggressive. McArthur easily took the last four rounds, yet the judges and referee failed to give him even a vote. He weighed 168½, against 161 for Flanagan.

Lloyd Clements, of Swissvale, knocked out Walter Ketchel, of Pittsburgh, after 1 minute and 50 seconds in the second round. A hard right to the jaw floored Ketchel for the fatal count. Clements weighed 169, against 167¾ for Ketchel.

Tony Moreno, of Duquesne, 113½, won every round of the curtain-raiser from Young Ketchel, of Steubenville, 115.

... collection was taken up for the benefit of the family of Bob Cranshaw, former Negro fighter, who died recently after a bout in Moose Temple. The contributions totaled $57.16. Last night's card was witnessed by the largest crowd in several years.

KEN HIGH FIVE IS VICTOR

goal for Swissvale and Susek a pair of fouls and Dayoub one for Kensington. The ball simply would not drop for the Swissvale sharpshooters, who had two shots to every one for New Kensington.

Leading by 16 to 13 as the final eight minutes got under way, New Kensington managed to pull away and pile up a substantial margin. Casillo, who had played a real game at center for the Section Eleveners, was elected from the contest on personal fouls, and with him apparently went the Swissvale cork. Wilson and Dayoub each bagged a pair of baskets and Susek added his second for 10 big points, eight more than were tallied by Swissvale which had to be content with Ross Emerick's long goal.

New Kensington can, and probably will, play beter ball than last night. The going from now on will be tough, with either Ford City, the real dark horse of the tourney, or New Brighton to be met in the second round. The lineup:

Wilson (C)	F	Herring
Casillo	F	Groat
Dayoub	C	Casillo
Susek	G	R. Emerick
Bell	G	Fullen

The Tipoff

The ability of Bethany's Green Bisons to stage a comeback after suffering costly defeats has restored the team from Buffalo Creek to favor in the district. Last week, after having a nine-game winning streak snapped by Westminster, they came back and defeated a formidable Wesleyan crew.

This week, Westminster again started the Bisons off on very much the wrong foot, but nothing daunted, Knights's club rallied and defeated both Thiel and Allegheny on their own courts, a brace of clubs admittedly hard to take at home.

Aliquippa High's snappy girls' basketball team suffered a tough break in the game with Sewickley last week. Ann Yargots, high scoring forward, suffered a broken arm and likely will be forced to give up competition. The arm had been broken in the same place once before.

Rankin High wins the derby doff by becoming the first district high school to take up boxing. Jock Rosenberg, who is athletic director at Rankin, has organized a ring team and will stack it up against various college freshmen squads and amateur club teams.

Westinghouse High did not realize how valuable Wadsworth was to the team's success until the young man graduated at mid-semesters. Wadsworth possessed the best basketball head on the squad, being especially adept at analyzing his team's weakness, and then correcting it.

Susce and Rodgers Off to Join Teams

George Susce, of Oakland, and Frank (Dundee) Rodgers, of McKees Rocks, who got their start on local sandlots, have departed to join their respective teams in spring training.

Susce, a catcher, left yesterday to join the Kansas City club of the American Association, while Rodgers entrained this morning for Tampa, Fla., where he will hook up with the Cincinnati Reds for his first major league trial. The McKees Rocks lad is a fielder, playing outfield as well as infield. Last year he played for New Haven in the now-defunct Eastern League.

Non-league battles will hold the spotlight in local basketball circles, the feature attraction being the contest between the Irene Kaufmann Settlement House and the Ray E. Schneiders, first half champions of the West Penn League. This game should attract a fine turnout to the I. K. S. floor tonight.

Another first half champion, the Duquesne Lafayettes, of the Allegheny County League, also are scheduled for action tonight, Ed Minnick's club playing Scottdale at Scottdale. The Butler Paulists make another visit to Pittsburgh tonight when they meet the North Side Bucks, of the West Penn League, in the Salvation Army gym, while the Erie Boys' Club, which met the Y. M. H. A. last night, will invade the hall of the Pittsburgh Boys' Club in Lawrenceville for an independent game.

Manchester plays at Atlantic and Ambridge at the Pittsburghers in the Greater Pittsburgh League, while St. Casimir's is at St. Wendelin's in the Catholic Lyceum League.

The Schneiders tripped the North Side Bucks, 50-21, in the West Penn League, and St. John's copped from St. James', 54-18, in the Lyceum circuit, last night.

The Cleaners beat Clayton, 29-21, in the Schneider League; Presbyterians won from the Baptists, 40-14, in the Crafton Church loop, and the Penn Five set down the Knickers, 30-26, in the A. A. U. tournament.

Y. M. H. A. defeated the Erie Boys' Club, 29-26, and the Goose Goslins, St. Casimir's Reserves, Allegheny De Molay, Agenda Club, Question Club, Tarentum, Francis, Holy Trinity and Knoxville won independent contests.

M.-A. CARDS 132 GAMES

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Feb. 27.—Fred L. Dorringer, president of the Fairmont Middle Atlantic League Club, and chairman of the schedule committee of the league, has mailed out tentative schedules for the new 12-club circuit to the owners, who are booked to meet again in Pittsburgh Sunday.

The proposed schedule will be ratified or revised at that time. It calls for 132 games, starting on May 7 and ending on September 13. Fairmont will be home with Clarksburg on Memorial Day, July 4 and Labor Day for morning and afternoon games. Sixty-nine games will be played at home and 63 away.

Contracts for next season now are in the mail to those members of the Fairmont club of last season who will be offered jobs this year with the club. The matter of the manager for Fairmont is still unsettled.

Dorringer said today an effort would be made at the meeting Sunday to change the rule making a bench manager a class man, but to count as one man in the 15-player limit.

W. Va. Boxing Bill Passed by Senate

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—By a margin of one vote the Senate today passed the boxing bill. The vote was 12 to 11. The bill, which would legalize boxing in West Virginia, now will return to the House of Delegates for concurrence in minor amendments.

SWIM MEET TONIGHT

The Downtown Y. swimmers will entertain the Erie Y. M. C. A. mermen in a dual meet in the Downtown Y. pool tonight.

PANTHERS SEEK THIRTEENTH VICTORY

Probable Lineups

Pitt		Carnegie Tech.
Cohen	F	(C) Nease
W. Kowalik	F	Leonard
Albright	C	Stentz
Arture (C)	G	Fergus
Smith	G	Seigel

Referee—Col. Bolster. Umpire—Dan Brickley.

The return clash between Pitt and Carnegie Tech tops a man-sized collegiate basketball card tonight. The Panthers and Tartans will resume dueling in the Pitt Stadium, with the frosh outfits of the rival institutions indulging in a preliminary tussle.

All in all, there are six games on the district program for the evening. Grove City, still trembling from the thrill of beating Geneva in an extra period, will provide the opposition for the invading John Carroll University varsity, of Cleveland, which will move on to Pittsburgh tomorrow night to tussle with the Dukes. Penn State meets Colgate at Hamilton, N. Y., and Allegheny and Geneva clash at New Brighton. Waynesburg and Bethany tangle at Bethany and W. Va. Wesleyan meets Morris-Harvey at Barboursville.

PITT FAVORED

Pitt has been established a favorite over the Tartans for tonight's return clash. Those of the cognoscenti of the game were of the opinion that if Tech was going to beat Pitt at all this year, the boys would have to turn the trick on their own court in the first game. This they failed to do.

Beside playing on a foreign court, the Skibos are further handicapped for tonight's broil by having to take the floor with a revised lineup and with one of the most important members of the caste on the spinters, Bob Smith has a twisted ankle and may be out of action for the remainder of the season.

If Pitt wins tonight, by the way, it will mark the thirteenth consecutive triumph for the Blue and Gold arms over those of Carnegie. Arms and legs both count.

LEONARD TO SHIFT

As a result, Coach Hogan plans to shift Jimmy Leonard from guard to Smith's forward and will start Harry Seigel at the guard.

Pitt's lineup will be the same as the one that took the floor against Penn State, except that Capt. Willie Arture will go at guard in the stead of Baker.

Prior to the game, Pitt's former letter-men will gather at the Schenley Hotel for their annual banquet. Most all the old time stars are to be present. After putting on the feed bag, the boys will attend the game in a body.

While basketballers are tussling in the Stadium, the Pitt trackers will be in Morgantown for a dual meet with the Mountaineers.

Building Up Big Fights

By IKE DORGAN, The Man Behind Tex Rickard's Fistic Ballyhoos.

CHAPTER XI.

Tex Rickard counted up $452,522 after the Willard and Dempsey fracas at Toledo had become history.

At that rate, although only 19,650 of the faithful attended the bout, Tex made money. Were it not for the fact that we had just come through a world war, the attendance might have been 10 times that number. It was a bad spot and Tex knew it all the time, but he couldn't sit idly by and allow Tortorich or any other man to put on the show.

Tex always was jealous of an outsider. He didn't want partners, although he had to accept them at times because of necessary financial hookups.

Tex had a great asset on his hands now. Jack Dempsey's name had roared across the skies like a comet. The victory over Willard had been a tremendous achievement because of the vast difference in the sizes of the men, but Tex, now convinced that Dempsey was all the demon terror that Jack Kearns claimed for him, made up his mind that the next shot with Dempsey would be a lily.

There was Carpentier. For a long time he had been a terror among the heavyweights in the Old World.

BRENNAN GETS CHANCE

Tex had no idea how they would stack up in the ring. That was one of the things that never bothered Rickard, although, as I've told you, he always was careful about hiding any of the shortcomings of a challenger.

That's why he ordered me to have those photographs snap Dempsey from the ground up instead of down from an elevated platform.

It was almost a year before Tex got his hooks on Dempsey again. Kearns, of course, went right into a barnstorming spin just as soon as the Toledo fight was over.

Bill Brennan popped up as a prospective opponent for Jack. Dempsey had clouted him out in six rounds, breaking Brennan's ankle in the process of registering the k. o. Bill went down so hard that he sat on his leg and broke it.

That was the year before Dempsey won the title from Willard. Tex had come into Madison Square Garden as major domo and it was his first promoting effort as sole boss of the famous old show house which had been designed by Stanford White.

GIVES KEARNS SCARE

Brennan lasted 12 rounds, but he gave Kearns, and maybe Dempsey, too, the scare of a lifetime. Bill hung on like a bulldog, and until Jack pinned a left and right to his jaw, Brennan was well on the way to a title. He had ripped one of Jack's ears horribly, and Kearns didn't breathe easy until he saw Leo Flynn's man stretched out on the floor. Kearns looked down into the press row when some of the scribes called up to him 'hat it had been a "close squeak."

"Aw, that was nothing. Only makes the return bout so much better and richer."

They never met again. Bill seemed to fade right out of the picture after that. He got $25,000 for his end, the most money he ever had drawn down in all his career, and I suppose, despite the knockout, he always blessed Dempsey inwardly for that money-making opportunity.

Like the gumshoe manipulator that he was, Rickard set about reaching out for Carpentier. A great catch if he could land him, and he did.

It seems that Charles Cochran, of England, promoter and theatrical producer, had a binder on Carpentier's services. Billy Brady, one-time manager of Jim Corbett and Jim Jeffries, was Cochran's New York partner. They seemed to have the dashing Frenchman bottled up between them.

LINING UP CARPENTIER

How to get his hayhooks in that was the problem with Rickard. Naturally, Brady was smart enough to know that neither Cochran nor himself could get very far without Rickard's aid, so, when Tex showed up to talk shop with Brady, the New York producer was quite willing to see him.

They got right down to business, so much so that Cochran was cabled and soon was on his way to the states with his precious contract in his inside pocket. That was the most important paper in all the world to Rickard just then.

There was a few mysterious meetings between Rickard and the two theatrical men after Cochran arrived, but none of the details ever got into type.

Tex never would pop his big stories until the time was ripe for a splurge. Carpentier arrived and then things began to hum in earnest. Tex called in all of the scribes to Brady's office, and, after a long wait, Tex, Brady and Cochran came out of the inner sanctum and announced the making of the match, but knocked everybody for a twister when Rickard announced that Cochran and Brady had withdrawn from the project and that Rickard was going to offer $500,000 for the match, $300,000 to Dempsey and $200,000 for Carpentier.

HALF-MILLION PURSE

"Where's all this money coming from?" gasped the scribes. They knew that Tex wasn't flush, at least not to the tune of $500,000.

"Well," drawled Tex, "I got a couple of Cuban fellers—big tobacco men who— are going to back me. The money will be on tap, all right. You don't have to be skeered about that."

"Well, who are these Cubans? Are they new in the racket? What are their names?" Tex was asked in chorus.

"Oh, you'll know in time," said Tex with a chuckle.

Well, sir, that started the greatest run of publicity poor old Tex ever got. The mystery of the identity of the Cubans deepened day by day.

The boys began to speculate on who these big tobacco men might be. Wild were the guesses and louder Tex's ha-ha's.

Some wag called them the mysterious "Colonel Maduro" and his partner, "Major Stoggie."

THE FAKE "PARTNERS"

Tex strung them along for weeks about these dark-eyed men of wealth and some papers even went so far as to send scouts out around Cuba in the hope of discovering Rickard's unknown and certainly silent partners.

And, of course, there were no such persons. Tex was taking one of the galliest chances of his whole career, and it was Kearns himself who gambled with him. As a matter of fact, it was Kearns who dictated the terms. He didn't have anything himself save nerve and the boy had bales of that.

PANKA BOXES M'FOWLER

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

Fresh from a 10-round victory over Gene Baker at Johnstown last Monday night, Ike McFowler, Negro heavyweight, of Johnstown, jumps into the breach as a substitute for Umberto Arce, Porto Rican sensation, against George Panka, of Homestead, in the 10-round main bout at the Moose Temple, downtown, tonight. Arce came out of a workout in a Canton (O.) gym with a badly injured hand, which made it impossible for him to go through with the engagement, according to Promoter Apples Meyers.

George Panka

McFowler is by no means a stranger in these parts. He has boxed in virtually all of the rings in the Pittsburgh district, including Motor Square Garden. As for Panka, he is reported ready to go with a lot of zip and dash to make the fans forget his defeats in his two most recent battles, with Emmett Rocco and K. O. Christner at the Garden.

Al Becker, larruping middleweight, of Sheraden, and Mickey Fedor, Donora veteran, box the six-round semi-final tonight, Harry Fine, of the Hill, and Eddie Hebner, of Clairton, box a return bout in the second number because of the dissatisfaction of the fans over the decision in Fine's favor in the same ring last week, and Frankie Portland, of Ambridge, and Marty Gornick, of McKeesport, are in the opener, carded for 8:30.

Between Rounds

Mickey Walker, ex-welter champion, who knocked Willie Davies, Charleroi, in the windup at Motor Square Garden next Tuesday night, is expected to arrive in town not later than Sunday and finish his preparations here.

Battling Bozo and Lou Scozza have been matched to box the 10-round semi-final to the King Levinsky-Tuffy Griffiths bout at the Chicago Stadium, March 6.

The Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U. senior championship boxing tournament will be staged at the Moose Temple, March 23, 24 and 25. The winners will represent Pittsburgh in the National A. A. U. tournament in Madison Square Garden, New York.

Benny McArthur, of McKeesport, boxes Ray Carollino, of Erie, in one of two 10-round bouts in Erie tonight. Frankie Bonasso, of Erie, takes on Lou Petrone, of Buffalo, in the other number. Charley Phillips, Steelton heavyweight, meets Billy Burton, of Buffalo, in a six-round semi-final.

Benny Pecorello and Kenny Tut engage in the semi-final of the boxing card, headlining Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden, New York. Ludwig Lesnevich boxes Baby Joe Gans and Billy Light meets Eddie Rap in the semi-preliminary bouts.

Andy Di Nodi boxes Battling Dozier at San Francisco, Lou Scozza tangles with Harry Smith in Milwaukee, Louis Child Santi engages Sammy Chernoff in Brooklyn, Frankie Clinque opposes Charley Nelson and Willie Patterson mingles with Wildcat Willie Hines in Mt. Vernon, N. Y., while Billy Townsend and Bobby do their stuff in Hollywood, Cal.

MARKET TURNS UPWARD AFTER EARLY DIP

Professionals Bring Forward New Leaders When List Slips—Losses Made Up

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Professional traders kept the bull market in stocks simmering today by stirring up several of the specialty and minor issues, after speculative ires in the recent leaders were ooled by a wave of profit-aking.

The list sold off substantially uring the early hours, making a handful of shares losing 2 to 4 points, but other shares were shortly brought forward to show gains of 1 to 5, and losses were largely recovered.

The day's news included several adverse dividend actions and forecasts of others. Recent heaviness of Gillette was explained by deferment of the common distribution, and the sharp drop in Frisco Railroad was in response to unofficial reports that the 22 quarterly dividend will be reduced to $1. Reduction to the annual rate of J. C. Penney from $3 to $2.40 apparently caused little surprise, for the stock eased but moderately.

A few favorable 1930 earnings statements appeared, both Borden and Grand Union showing gains over 1929, and International Salt showing a reduction of only about 1 per cent. These issues firmed moderately.

The market was apparently uninfluenced by the latest progress of the soldier bonus bill for veto and repassage had been confidently expected in Wall Street. The effects of uncertainty over the forthcoming announcement of new government borrowing, however, was clearly visible in the report of the week's volume of new bond financing, which amounted to less than $20,000,000. Credit continued abundant, however, while call money again freely offered outside at 1 per cent. The weekly reserve statements showed that the Reserve banks had withdrawn more credit.

The report of building contracts let in the third week of the month showed substantial shrinkage from the first two weeks, but the aggregate for the first three weeks indicates a normal seasonal gain. The week-end business and mercantile reviews indicated that business recovery had made little if any further progress in the past few days.

Banks Ask More Margin on Wheat

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 27.—Local banks are demanding margin of 20 cents a bushel on all wheat loans on basis of May quotations. Heretofore the marginal requirements were 10 per cent of the market price. The change has been made due to the artificial character of May prices with pegging by the Federal Farm Board.

Studebaker Plans March Increase

DETROIT, Feb. 27.—Studebaker Corporation will show sales of approximately 4,000 cars in February, and is planning an increase of 50 per cent, or 6,000 cars, for March, according to H. S. Vance, vice president.

Roy A. Young Says Trade Rally Is Due

BOSTON, Feb. 27.—Governor Roy A. Young of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston says the bottom of the depression has been reached. Mr. Young says general business is ripe for an upward swing. The textile industry shows signs of renewed activity, he states.

Forbes

Daytonians Not Critics, Says Visitor

—By B. C. FORBES—

DAYTON, O., Feb. 27.

HERE IS good news: The National Cash Register Company, employing 6,000 workers, which very recently went on a three-day week, is immediately going on a four-day week.

That was confided to me by J. H. Barringer, the human dynamo who manages this world-wide enterprise, and when I mentioned the fact at a gathering of fully 500 citizens, there was loud cheering.

Mr. Forbes

Dayton has had its share of the national depression—its share no more, no less. This city has a wonderful diversity of industries. It employs very highly skilled labor. It pays good wages. It has, too, an unusual number of public-spirited citizens of means and brains. The prevailing spirit here is one of rational optimism.

RETURNING AFTER an absence of almost 10 years, one sees many marks of solid growth. Dayton is a city of homes, a city of family life, a city of solidity, reminiscent somewhat of a British city. Its citizens are not carping critics, but rooters.

"I moved from New York to Dayton deliberately, and you couldn't drag me back to live in New York."

Thus spoke Frank Tate, utility giant who has accomplished big things—and done them in such a way that everybody likes him and his company. As one resident said of him:

"Frank Tate put service into the public utility business before the others knew there was such a thing as giving real service."

So it is a genuine pleasure to meet and mingle with Daytonians.

MY VISIT to the immaculate N. C. R. plant, perhaps the most attractive mammoth factory in America, elicited this other inspiring information:

Five hundred additional salesmen are being engaged and trained. The first groups are being put through their sprouts this week and will immediately return to their respective territories and go to work.

That is the spirit the redoubtable Barringer is showing.

When John H. Patterson, the creator and brilliant upbuilder of the N. C. R., passed on, nine years ago, many feared the organization might not be able to forge ahead, so essentially had he been its mainspring.

WELL, THE N. C. R. of today is twice the business it then was. Under President Frederick B. Patterson and Vice President and General Manager Barringer all earlier records of progress have been eclipsed. This man Barringer, still in his forties, is a whirlwind. His energy is sleepless. His initiative is boundless. His courage is irrepressible. Said he:

"We are out to become in the accountancy machine business what we have long been in the cash register field, the admitted leaders. We are all set to go. Watch us."

Asked his reading of the general business outlook, Barringer replied:

"This is the best country in the world. Ours is the only country that can have unemployment without labor troubles. Conditions are gradually improving.

"Everybody has been taught a salutary lesson—the executive as well as the man at the bench. When prosperity comes back, as it surely will, there will be a better conception of the value of a dollar, a wiser use of money. This will make for sounder prosperity than we have ever known before."

Tomorrow I hope to tell of another local plant of gigantic size that has gone on full time and plans to increase its force next month.

MOODY'S SEES TRADE GAIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—It is now reasonably safe to assume, says Moody's service in its monthly analysis, that business conditions are about to enter soon upon a cyclical upswing. The analysis says:

"Our preliminary trade barometer figure for January has shown the first advance since last spring, although its extent is very moderate, and the statistics on which it is based are subject to revision. The prosperity index has also risen very slightly, but this is due to a more favorable comparison with the abnormally low level of December, rather than any material improvement in the nation's 'prosperity'."

The review adds that on the surface statistical evidences are still conflicting and not fully satisfactory. The service finds, however, on analysis of signs that have foreshadowed cyclical upturns in the past, that the basic signals for recovery now are visible.

BROKERS LOANS UP $26,000,000

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve member banks in New York City increased $26,000,000 during the week ended February 25 to $1,798,000,000. This compares with $1,772,000,000 in the preceding week and with the record high of $6,804,000 on October 2, 1929.

Radios Installed in 15 Million Homes

As of January 1, 15,000,000 American homes were equipped with radio sets of all types, Radio Retailing reports in its annual survey. Retail sales of radio equipment for home use last year reached a total value of $500,951,000, against an aggregate of $842,548,000 for 1929, the peak year in the industry.

LONE STAR GAS, SHAMROCK ACTIVE

Big Fuel Leader Sells 'Ex' Stock Dividend; Aluminum Goods Higher

Heavy trading in Lone Star Gas marked the opening of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. The stock sold "ex" the stock dividend of one share for seven and the initial price this morning was 25½ as against last night's close at 28¾, the latter being the highest at which the stock has finished a session this year. Subsequent offerings forced the price back a little but there was a steady demand for the stock.

Shamrock Oil was the only other active feature in the early dealings. This issue started with an overnight gain of a full point on top of its two-point rise of the previous day. Other fuels were steady and comparatively quiet.

Aluminum goods in the industrial section was a point higher on the opening but only a few shares changed hands. Other issues in the heavy manufacturing division showed only minor changes.

'The Real Estate Company of Pittsburgh chose the Law and Finance Building for its offices—an ideal choice because the Law and Finance Building is in the heart of Pittsburgh's Legal and Financial District.'

'The Real Estate Co. of Pittsburgh is a prominent, substantial, long-established real estate firm. It has for many years been engaged in every phase of the real estate business in Allegheny County in a big way. Its ability to judge real estate values is perhaps unsurpassed.

'It therefore follows that the choice of the new Law and Finance Building by the Real Estate Co. of Pittsburgh for its future home is of real significance to every individual and corporation requiring improved offices.

Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc.

7% CUMULATIVE PARTICIPATING CLASS A STOCK

Preferred as to Assets and Dividends

1—SECURITY

This investment represents a participating interest in twelve strong and profitable publishing enterprises of William Randolph Hearst, including ten great metropolitan dailies, the American Weekly Magazine and the American Newsprint Company. They serve large, growing key cities strategically located throughout the nation. Valuable holdings of downtown real estate, modern plants and printing equipment strengthen the investment quality of the issue.

7% cumulative dividends, payable quarterly—and in addition, the right to participate with the common stock in additional dividends, as declared, up to an extra 3%.

4—DIVERSIFICATION

Income of the newspapers is derived from both the Atlantic and the Pacific seaboards, from the industrial areas around the Great Lakes and from Western Pennsylvania—while the American Weekly Magazine has the greatest circulation of any periodical in the world, reaching weekly over 5½ million people scattered throughout the United States—truly nation-wide diversification.

5—MARKETABILITY

Application will be made to list this stock on the New York Curb and the Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles Stock Exchanges.

6—TAXATION

Dividends received on this stock by individuals are not subject to normal Federal Income Tax.

Standard Gas & Electric Reported 27% Gain in Earnings

The income of Standard Gas and Electric in 1930 available for the common stock amounted to $13,078,681, an increase of approximately 27 per cent over that of the preceding year. At its present price of around 83, Standard Gas common is off 36 per cent from its high of 1930. However, net income on the common amounted to $6.04 a share, compared with $6.59 a share in the preceding year, a result of an increase of 600,000 shares in the outstanding capitalization.

L. A. Young Spring and Wire earned $3.14 a share last year, more than covering its $3 annual dividend. Profits in the previous year were $5.36 a share. In the event of an improvement in automobile conditions this year, net income would be larger than it was in 1930. Only 412,500 shares are outstanding, the only capital liability outside of $415,000 bonds. The stock, selling around 28, yields about 10½ per cent. The low price for this year was 22⅜.

Adjournment of Congress will be construed as favorable in market circles, because that will end temporarily the fear of legislation being attempted which would unsettle conditions. Some of the buying which has come into public utilities in the past few days has been due to the approaching adjournment of the current session. At the moment, no necessity is seen for an extra session. Definite assurance that adjournment is near will be an encouraging market factor. It may cause groups to continue their operations in favorite shares longer.

Butterick Company is one of the low-priced stocks which has moved ahead in the past few days, with buying more aggressive than in some time. The issue had been neglected for some time. Earnings of the company for the first nine months of 1930 amounted to $1.53 a share on 184,240 shares and a profit was earned in the final quarter which should assure a good showing for 1930. Net income in 1929 was $187,409 or $1.02 a share on 182,239 no-par capital shares.

The short interest in American Water Works apparently is finding its position growing steadily less comfortable as growing deposits of stock under the five-year voting trust plan tends gradually to reduce the available supply of actual shares in the open market. Water Works was again one of the spectacular performers in the group in the course of yesterday as it shot up for a gain of some 6 points or more to a new high for the move. Of the total of 1,740,948 shares outstanding approximately 1,046,468 shares or 60 per cent have been deposited in the voting trust, this having reduced the available supply of free stock to less than 700,000 shares of roughly 40 per cent of the total.

A study of the groups comprising the Standard Statistics Company index of 90 active stocks presents an interesting picture of the market's rise from the December low levels. Moreover, it shows quite clearly that the remarkable open market appreciation in utility shares has been the outstanding feature of the recovery to date. At the end of the third hour yesterday this group showed a net advance of nearly 7 points to 199.7, a gain of 37 per cent from the December low of 146.5. Industrials at that time were up about 1.5 net and stood 241 per cent above the December lows, while the rails were up nominally and stood 223⅛ per cent above the December lows. The index of 90 stocks, reflecting the sharp bulge in the utility group, entered the afternoon in new high ground for the recovery at 144.9 per cent against 144.3, the previous high registered on Tuesday.

The Old Story

Paying a woman's penalty—time after time

In the year of 1921 there should be no monthly martyrs to pain. Some women still think they must suffer—they haven't heard of Midol—or can't believe that it has solved their problem.

Did you know that five to seven minutes after swallowing a tiny tablet you can be yourself—can be comfortable—can go about without feeling a single further twinge of muscular pain?

Your regular periods need not be painful—they are not painful to those who know of Midol. These wonderful tablets make Nature's process a mere incident. No pain, not even discomfort when you have learned to depend on Midol, as women who used to have the hardest time have found. It is not a narcotic, does not interfere with the process, but does stop the pain: relieves headaches, too: neuralgia, etc. Every drugstore has Midol.

Mary Lou Feels Impatient Towards Travers

CHAPTER XIII.

Mary Lou awoke on the following morning and lay for a moment, drowsily watching the early sunlight creep through the drawn shades and dance across the floor. She had slept well—the dreamless, sound sleep of youth and health—and now she woke, not to that "where-am-I feeling," but to a complete realization of her surroundings and situation. She woke, too, to a sense of adventure, a light-hearted determination to see this amazing experiment, into which chance had thrust her, through to a satisfactory conclusion.

Her heart shook a little, it must be confessed, at the thought of her second meeting with Lorrimer. But she was convinced that she could carry it off—somehow, that she would let herself be guided by circumstances.

She fingered, half whimsically, the sheer fine lace of the heavy beautiful material of the borrowed nightdress. Cinderella, indeed. Perhaps, after all, it was a curious dream and she would wake up to find herself back in the tiny Oakdale bedroom with Billy bouncing impatiently on his nearby cot demanding to get up. She missed Billy, she thought, with a pang of homesickness for that rosy-brown infant who had been her delight, responsibility and despair for so long.

Joins Mrs. Lorrimer

"You're lazy," she told herself severely. "Get up at once, Mary Lou."

She thrust her feet into the slippers which dangled as she walked or ran across the room and pulled up the shades.

She had not been startled when a knock sounded at her door.

"Who is it?" demanded Mary Lou and was entertained to hear Hilda's voice reply with no perceptible hesitation:

"Hilda, Miss Delight. May I come in?"

Mary Lou, at the peach-colored mirror about her, and assented. Hilda arrived in the room and if she was astonished to find the new inmate of the house up and dome she did not betray it.

"May I run you bath?" And Mrs. Lorrimer wishes to know if you will join her for breakfast in half an hour, or will you have your tray sent up here?"

Mary Lou made rounded eyes.

"I haven't had breakfast in bed," she announced, "since I can remember. Of course I'll join her. Hilda. And yes," said Mary Lou, again surrendering herself, with pleasure, to circumstance, "if you would run the water, please?"

A warm, quick tub and tepid shower, gradually growing icy, and presently Mary Lou was ready to dress, which she did at top speed, not being hampered by having to make a choice of garments. She appeared, therefore, at the breakfast table in the skirt and blouse of the beloved suit.

Mrs. Lorrimer was already down and waiting for her. Mary Lou said, as the older woman turned from the windows of the breakfast room to which Hilda had guided her guest:

"I'm afraid I'm late. My watch had stopped." She held out a slim wrist, "and so—"

"It's a very little after eight," Mrs. Lorrimer told her, as they sat down. "I didn't mean you to get up. I wanted you to have your sleep out and I would have sent you a tray."

"Piece de resistance!" cried Mary Lou. "Breakfast in bed must be a sort of native talent. I haven't it. I'd spill things and scatter crumbs. And I'm used to getting up early, much earlier than this."

Lonely Meals

"I'm sure," said Mrs. Lorrimer, smiling, "that I'll be more than happy to have you with me mornings." She paused and then added, "Delight," with great deliberation. Mary Lou finished but said nothing. Would she ever see Travers? Need to? "You see, Travers has to stay upstairs and doesn't appear as a rule until eleven. So I've taken a lonely breakfast for some years, and I don't think that's good for anyone."

After breakfast Mrs. Lorrimer went on, "I'm going to my so-called office for a little while. Then I go upstairs and see Travers. Perhaps you would like to go out and take a run about the grounds while I look at mail and give orders? You don't look to me as if you had ever acquired the house habit. Do you ride?" she wanted to know.

"No, I don't. I wish I did. I've never had the opportunity. Oh, I did gallop around on a pony once, the spring we were outside of London—father had taken a funny little house and we had a wonderful time," replied Mary Lou frankly, as they were quite alone in the room at the moment and even if Peter had been there he wouldn't have mattered, being himself a part of the conspiracy, "but that's all the riding I ever did. I wonder if I should?" she asked, rather incoherently, but Mrs. Lorrimer understood.

"I don't think so. Travers never said anything about her riding. He used to ride very well, and loved it. He had his own horse when he was just a little chap. I rode too, for many years, until the doctors forbade it—not that there's anything wrong really, but at one time I rather overtaxed my strength and injured my heart, a little. I'm perfectly well now, but I don't go in for strenuous sports. Croquet," laughed Mrs. Lorrimer, "is about my athletic limit. That and walking. But I have kept up the stables, so we always have several saddle horses for chance guests and in case Travers ever takes it up again. I wish he would," she added wistfully.

Explores Grounds

After breakfast was over Mary Lou ran upstairs to fetch her little hat and coat and presently found herself out of doors.

She went down to the white beach and breathed the cold, salt air and watched the ripples form along the shore. There were numerous piers here with boat houses and steps at all points so that the summer guests might enjoy the water. There was also a bathing house and long, narrow dressing rooms. She strolled on, and presently came to a long, low building, which she decided was the garage. Then she turned back to the house, suddenly a little angry with Travers. He had not even been decent enough to send her a note. He had so much, so much more even than was necessary, and certainly more than enough to warm him back again to health and happiness and to welcome us a citizen of the world.

She wondered if Mrs. Lorrimer, in her great anxiety for him had not betrayed more in words than she realized. He had been a poor host. He could not have spent his days and nights and years as a confirmed invalid. He would have had to earn a living. Mrs. Lorrimer had told her that there was a good deal of business connected with her late husband's very large estate. His son was thought Mary Lou certainly the person to take over the management of the estate. He was old enough, she continued musing a little irritated. But he did nothing, permitted the whole burden to fall upon his mother and her hired assistants! It was ridiculous, she thought, he wasn't organically ill, he just—brooded. Only a rich man can afford to brood! thought Mary Lou.

After she had explored buildings and roadways and beach she cut off through a little path in the woods and spent an enchanted hour wandering, getting lost, finding her way again. The trees were bare, for the most part, save for a few which clung tenaciously to what was left of their autumnal glory, and of course the living evergreens and cedars.

DAILY TRUE STORY The Comeback

"Hanley, batting for Baker!"

A roar of approval from the crowded stands greeted the announcer's megaphoned words, as the slugging Hanley strode to the plate.

Dejectedly Dick Baker threw aside his bat and walked, unnoticed, back to the bench. From a corner of the dugout he watched the man who was pinch-hitting for him.

"Pinch-hitting for Baker" had become a common phrase this season. / ritical point when a h t the tying or winning r y had taken him out.

Deep down, resentment was breeding discontent and a growing hatred for the manager of the Blue Hose. Dick cherished a disloyal hope that Hanley might be an easy out.

It was not a sporting thought but Dick had lost some of his sense of loyalty toward his team and its manager.

It hurt still more when Hanley responded with a double down the third base line that brought in the winning run. That blow justified the manager in taking Baker out of the lineup.

Dick dressed and hurried from the clubhouse after the game. His desire for speed was twofold. The good - natured banter of his teammates galled him. Besides, Peggy Marsh was waiting outside.

Dick smiled at the thought of Peggy, though he was a little shamefaced when he lifted his hat to her outside the park.

"Well, the boss yanked me again!"

"Never mind, Dick," consoled Peggy, flashing him a reassuring smile. "Someday you'll show him you can hit!"

"Humph!" Dick's manner expressed doubt on that score. "Let's go some place where we can be alone for supper, Peggy. I don't feel like company."

Outlines Plan

"Do you know what's the matter with you, Dick?" queried Peggy when they were seated in a corner of a quiet restaurant.

He looked across the table at the girl. "Sure," he responded bitterly. "I'm just not hitting!"

"No, that isn't it," Peggy shook her head. "You could hit—just as well as Hanley or the rest of them."

Dick drew a sharp breath. That was his one desire in baseball—to hit like Hanley!

"There isn't a better shortstop in the league than you, Dick, when it comes to fielding. The whole trouble is that you're ball shy! Every time a pitcher throws a ball you duck!"

"No!" Dick stared doubtfully.

"But yes," persisted Peggy. "The first time up today you dodged back from every ball. You can never hit that way."

"Is that straight, Peggy?"

"Of course it is! But I've an idea we can cure you. It's a good thing for you I work out at the beach!"

"Why—what's that got to do with my hitting?"

"Plenty! Listen to me."

For five minutes Peggy talked swiftly, outlining her plan. It was a plan she had conceived sitting in the grandstand that day. "What do you say to that, Dick?" she concluded.

"Sounds good," admitted Dick. "It's worth trying anyway."

"Good! We'll start right in tonight. There's no time like the present!"

The next day Dick donned his uniform in a dark corner of the clubhouse. When he came out on the field for batting practice there were but a handful of people in the stands.

Near the home plate the manager of the Blue Hose stopped him.

"Say, what the deuce have you been doing, Baker?"

"Nothing!"

"Nothing? How come the black eye? You know it's against the rules to be fighting?"

Dick nodded. He hadn't been fighting, but it would be difficult to impress that fact on the fiery manager.

"What happened? Spit it out, man!"

Hero of Game

"I can't," Dick muttered quietly.

"You can't?" echoed the manager. "Well, you'll get two weeks to think it over in," he retorted. "Go back in the clubhouse and dress!"

Tight lipped and silent, Dick returned to the dressing room.

The Blue Hose went away on a two weeks' road trip. They were just breaking even in their games, coming down to the finish of the season in a hectic fight with the Wrens. The closing series would be played at home, a fact which buoyed the hopes of the Blue Hose that they would win the pennant.

Sunday morning they were only half a game ahead of the Wrens. In the first inning of the morning game the utility shortstop was injured sliding into second. The manager turned to Dick.

"Get in there, Baker, and run for Kelly," he ordered.

Entedly Dick ran across the diamond to second. At last he was back in the game! A minute later he crossed the home plate as the next batter singled.

In the fourth inning Dick came to bat. The Blue Hose were still leading by that lone run. On the second pitched ball Dick dropped a lazy fly out of reach of the infield. The next man sacrificed him to second. He was stranded there, however, when the next two batters proved easy outs.

In the seventh inning the Wrens put over a run, tying the score at one all.

Slowly Dick advanced to the plate swinging two bats. When he threw one aside he leaned over and rubbed his hands in the dirt, gave his cap a tug and hitched up his pants.

"We want Hanley! We want Hanley!" The stands took up the swinging refrain as they saw Baker coming to bat. Dick gritted his teeth, more determined than ever. He'd show them!

Then he glanced toward the dugout. The manager was shouting something, but his words were drowned by the chanting chorus from the stands.

But Dick knew what he meant. He was going to be taken out for Hanley! A sudden resolve flashed into his mind. He stepped quickly to the plate.

The opposing pitcher sensed the situation. Swiftly he threw the ball across.

"Ball one!" roared the umpire. Dick grinned. He was at bat with a chance to win the game! Let the manager rave! Let the crowd roar their disapproval!

"Strike one!"

"Take your bat off your shoulder, you bum!" yelled a derisive voice. Dick grinned.

The pitcher was getting another one ready. It was coming! A fast ball close in. Dick stepped forward a pace, meeting the ball squarely.

Up and up it went, screaming over the infield in a direct line for the clubhouse. The center fielder was racing hopelessly after it, while the runners were streaking for the home plate.

Close on their heels came Dick Baker as the ball bounced off the clubhouse roof. He slid into the plate ahead of the ball, amid the cheers of the stands that had mocked him all season.

Gives Explanation

When he got to his feet he grinned. He had brought home the runs that gave the Blue Hose the pennant! The manager was rushing toward him. Dick saw him coming.

"Well," he grimaced, "you can fire me now, boss, for disobeying, but I—"

"Fire nothing!" and he seized Dick's hands eagerly. "Boy, how did you do it?"

"Well," Dick grinned again. "That two week's layoff gave me plenty of time to practice."

"To practice?" echoed the manager.

"I've got a girl," explained Dick. "She's up in the stands now. She's a regular fan. Comes out here every day. She told me I was ball shy."

The manager nodded.

"She figured a way to cure me. She works out at the beach. Her boss has one of those places where you throw baseballs at a Negro.....you know. I simply took the Negro's place and let the people throw baseballs at me. I'll guarantee it cures anyone of being ball shy! After you've been ducking baseballs thrown at your face it's child play to stand up to the plate and face a pitcher."

"But the black eye?"

"That?" Dick grinned in contemplation. "I got that the first night, before I learned how to duck!"

Exit the 'Lame Duck'

Congress Should Hasten Final Action on Eliminating Obsolete Practice So States Can Ratify This Year

By the overwhelming vote of 289 to 93, the House of Representatives has finally gone on record in favor of abolishing the "lame duck" session of Congress.

Under the leadership of Speaker Longworth, 158 Republicans, 130 Democrats and one Farmer-Labor member of Congress finally voted for the Norris resolution with certain amendments.

The differences between the original Norris resolution, as adopted by the Senate some time ago, and the form in which it has just been adopted by the House, must now be adjusted in conference.

These differences do not involve the main purpose of the proposed amendment, which is to eliminate the 13 month interval that now takes place between the election of a new Congress and its convening in regular session.

As amended by the House, the Norris resolution provides that the new Congress would assemble on January 4, following its election, and the new president and vice president would take office on the ensuing January 24.

If the election is thrown into the House, and the House has not chosen a president before the time fixed for his inauguration, provision is made that the vice president shall act as president.

In the event of the death of the president-elect, or the death of both the president and vice president-elect, Congress is authorized to provide by law for meeting such a situation.

In even-numbered years, the second regular session would end on May 4, in ample time for the country to prepare for the nomination and election of a new Congress and a new president and vice president.

The Senate provided that the vice president shall act as president in case a president has not been chosen before January 15.

No limitation was fixed by the Senate for the length of the second regular session of Congress, or for the time within which the legislatures of the states must act upon the proposed amendment.

These in the main are details of procedure. If a reasonable spirit of compromise quickens their consideration in conference, as it certainly should, there is ample time before adjournment for an effective "lame duck" amendment to the Constitution to be agreed upon by the two houses and transmitted to the president for submission to the several states.

The paramount purpose of the overwhelming majority of senators and representatives in both houses who have supported this legislation is to end once and for all the obsolete method under which the newly-elected Congress is made to mark time for 13 months until it can assemble in regular session.

This obsolete arrangement makes our federal government one of the most unresponsive popular governments in the world.

Adoption by the states of a "lame duck" amendment to the Constitution would eliminate this evil and give to the federal government a machinery responsive to the public will.

The country-wide public sentiment in favor of a "lame duck" amendment to the Constitution, which it has long been the privilege of the Hearst newspapers to voice, demands that the two houses quickly adjust their differences and submit this progressive measure to the states for ratification.

Forty-three state Legislatures meet this year, more than the three-fourths whose support is required for ratification.

If the Congress will act promptly, there is no reason why the "lame duck" amendment cannot be ratified in time to become effective during 1931.

Hearing on Sunday Bills

It Is to be Hoped Opponents of Blue Law Will Turn Out in Force.

The Law and Order Committee of the House of Representatives has announced it will hold a hearing, starting March 17, on the various bills for the repeal or amendment of the Blue Law of 1794.

The 11 mass meetings held in Pittsburgh a few days ago by opponents of a change in the Sunday law indicate that, although they are but a small minority of the people, they are strongly organized and will be able to create the appearance of being a much more formidable body of voters than they really are.

The people of Allegheny County voted five to one, in the Sun-Telegraph's postcard poll, in favor of a change in the Blue Law. But the impressiveness of that majority will lose some of its effect if a large delegation does not go from Pittsburgh to Harrisburg for the hearing.

The City Council, the Chamber of Commerce, the Pittsburgh Hotel Men's Association and all the other bodies that favor liberalizing of the Sabbath legislation should be represented.

Interesting News

What Happens to Dope Peddlers Who Are Arrested and Taken Into Court?

If you caught a man or a woman selling dope to your boy, or your daughter—what would you do about it?

Have the culprit arrested and taken to court, of course.

And when you got him to court—what would happen to him?

Would the case be tried by a judge who knows what the drug traffic is, and what it means to the youth of this country?

Or would some judge sit on the bench and either punish the peddler with a small fine which would represent about one-fifth of one day's income or would he remit the fine altogether—and let it go at that?

Watch the dope selling arrests in your daily paper.

And then watch and see what happens to the dope dealer. It may surprise you.

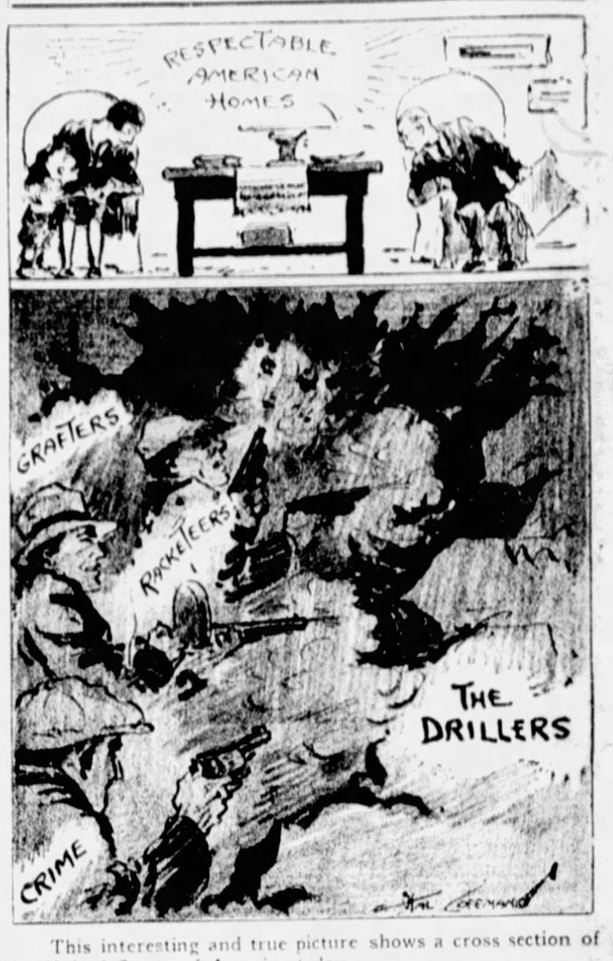
'Branches in All Cities' -:- By Nelson Harding

Crime's increasing enterprises
In a chain of gangs and rackets
Has its agencies of murder,
Has its branches widely spreading

From one city to another,
Dealing out its private vengeance
On the public's streets and highways,
Challenging all Law and Order.

THINK IT OVER

Drawn by Hal Coffman.



This interesting and true picture shows a cross section of the United States of America today.

On the surface everything looks placid, prosperous and peaceful.

Underneath that surface—crime, racketeering, murder.

It recalls the old parable of the house built upon the quicksand.

You remember what happened to that house. It was plenty.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Thoughts while strolling: What became of the fellow who hit Houdini a fatal blow? There doesn't seem any use for isenglass any more. A funeral procession breezing through traffic. Somehow I think of Opie Read when O. P. Heggie is mentioned.

Rupert Hughes, a Lancaster, Mo., boy, who made good in the city. Rockwell Kent's the most talked about writer-artist. Sausage and pancake counters. Does anyone ever remember a cornet player? Ladies in Schrafft's who try to act as though they really enjoyed cigarets.

That 5th avenue Child's where female impersonators flock after midnight. Mayor Walker's official green limousine. And the athletic young chauffeur. The old Belmont, empty but still standing. What became of Dorothy Knapp? Girls so highly educated nobody interests them.

Sidewalk hawkers along the library wall and look-outs keeping eyes peeled for police. Needle threaders, snap purses, trick mirrors, books of magic, 50-cent fountain pens and key rings. Careless police dog owners who try to show their pets are under perfect control. They need a few summonses.

Blind George knows newspaper stand customers by foot-fall and voice. That music store on 42d street. Windows filled with accordians, cornets, drums, zithers, saxophones, triangles, ukes and piccolos. And the salesman who can play any instrument. Chevalier's funny hats.

What became of the legless newsie at Broadway and 42d? Eddie Dunn, dean of press agents. Wonder how much longer the Astor will occupy that site. Daddy Browning at a drug store counter. And his name is now in the biggest lights on Broadway. Almost a block long.

The Paramount theater tower lights up only on Saturday night. The market crash made it soft for fortune tellers. Lyda Roberti, the platinum haired Polish girl, who is a new toast of Broadway. And deservedly. I've enjoyed being with you so much today.

Last night I picked up a murder mystery which opened smack on the barrel head with: "Blood crawled under the door, slow, turgid, viscious, malefic. On the landing it spread into a great distorted, clutching hand, with crawling fingers, reptilian, bulbous tipped and gleaming red against darkness." With that as a starter, a lightning storm and a high wind shrieking outside and four fresh popcorn balls within easy reach on the night table, it was grand. I haven't had so much fun since I used to get tight at parties and go into a Spanish dance.

Isn't It So?

A boost goes fine with everyone but the tax assessor.

Some excuses are so thin that you can see right through them.

It's all right to believe only half you hear, but the trouble is to know which half.

There is nothing better or scarcer than satisfactory neighbors.

It seems as though the less we think of some people, the longer it takes us to express our opinion of them.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Way for the Bachelors!

Every few days we receive and read with great glee and relish a letter from some male reader defending bachelors, bachelorhood and the state of single blessedness.

Now, there are only two kinds of men in which we (or any other woman) are interested—bachelors and husbands. And we are interested in bachelors only as potential husbands. That's all they are—to most of us.

It has been the fell design of this column, from the beginning, to lure or laugh bachelors into matrimony. Not because we have anything against bachelors, but because, in our sweet, old-fashioned, prewar opinion, there is no real heart happiness in life outside of marriage. Besides, we were BORN with the match-making instinct!

However, it is only fair to let the bachelor have his way once in a while; so we quote the following contributions from A. G. Reich:

* * *

"It takes a bachelor to understand women; that's why he's a bachelor.

"When a married woman wants to flirt or philander, she looks around for a married man, when she wants solace and help or a friend in need, she looks up a bachelor.

"To appear well in costly clothes is not an art; to make a good appearance in a $3.50 pair of shoes, a $2.85 hat, a cheap suit and a dollar tie is decidedly an art. By that same process of reasoning, it is artless to get married and hold sacred the institution of marriage, but quite an art to hold it sacred—and remain single. (Editor's note: Hear, hear!)

"No man ever held a woman he had to run after; no man ever lost a woman who sought him out and did the pursuing. (Editor's note: True! 'Losing' that kind of a woman is not a defeat—it's a FEAT!)

"Many married men disdain a bachelor, not because he is dangerous—but because he is enviable—and envied.

* * *

"The average man keeps chasing and chasing a woman—until she finally catches him!"

* * *

(Editor's note: And THAT is woman's game. Nature's trick and man's salvation. Also, it is why so few men die with their bachelors' buttons on.)

IS THE UNIVERSE GROWING?

By Archibald Henderson

The history of science is full of classic examples in which the theorist is confounded by the obstinate recalcitrancy of facts. The great scientist, giving free rein to his imagination, formulates a theory of beautiful proportions and inner harmony. After a while new facts or groups of new facts are discovered which refuse to fit into the theory. The new facts do not dovetail with the products of human imagination. Once more, the mind must set to work to rearrange, to modify, the theory, to enable it to include the newly-discovered facts which inconveniently refuse to fit in nicely.

After Michelson and Morley had conducted their famous experiment which failed to show that the earth possessed a velocity with reference to a supposedly fixed ether, Einstein began to wonder if it were not impossible to determine absolute motion by the Michelson-Morley experiment, and indeed by any experiment whatever. He noted that the famous experiment showed light to have a constant velocity, regardless of the state of rest or motion of the source. On this basis, he formulated his first theory of relativity.

In a short time, he divined clearly that this was of necessity a special or limited theory, since it failed to consider the influence of gravity. In consequence, he built up a more comprehensive theory, known as the general theory of relativity. The special theory is a particular case of this, for bodies at a very great distance from material accumulations, and consequently virtually free from gravitational influence.

One of the offshoots of this general theory was the Einstein cosmology, which presented the world as finite, but unbounded. Einstein conceived the world to be four-dimensional and non-Euclidean. In order to build up such a conception, he had to make a slight alteration in the equations of general relativity, introduce a new quantity, known as the cosmological term, and assume that matter was distributed with rough uniformity throughout the universe.

New discoveries have now caused Einstein to acknowledge the inadequacy of his conception of a uniform, static universe. Dr. Le Maitre, a Belgian scientist, has shown that this type of universe is incompatible with the enormously high velocities for the spiral nebulae recently discovered by Professor E. P. Hubble. Investigations carried on at Harvard, under the direction of Professor Harlow Shapley, show that the notion that matter is distributed, even with rough uniformity throughout the universe, is untenable. Super galaxies, although millions of light years in extent, are themselves distant from each other by incomparably vast distances—the universe being for the most part empty.

Calculation goes to show that some of the spiral nebulae at the outer bounds of space are traveling at velocities of 8,000 miles a second. This is incompatible with Einstein's notion that the universe is static. The conclusion which seems for the moment plausible, on the basis of new evidence, is that the universe is constantly growing larger. On the assumption that the universe has existed for upwards of two billion years, it would appear that in that interval of time the universe has doubled in size.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You're mad.

You're mad because you've banged up against an obstacle in life—

Maybe it's a big obstacle, some real tragedy—death or treachery—

Maybe it's a little obstacle—lost a job, been gossiped about.

Whatever it is, it has thrown you off your course—

And you're mad.

You say you're sick of life—

What's the use of trying?

You're through!

You won't go on!

Well, I know how you feel—

I've been there myself and it is exasperating—

But wait a minute—

Stop and think—

Suppose you were out in your automobile—

And suddenly you came to a place

Where the highway was torn up and blocked.

And there stood a sign saying "Detour"—

Would you get mad and quit?

Or would you take the detour?

You'd take the detour, of course.

You might be a little peevish about it—

You might growl at the dust and cuss the bumps—

But you'd take the detour,

Because you'd realize that was the only thing to do.

And you wouldn't feel personally insulted

Because you had to take it—

You wouldn't get the idea that that detour

Had been especially invented to plague you—

You wouldn't believe that you were the only person

Who had ever had to take a detour.

You'd realize that detours are a natural part

Of any highway program.

And you'd follow that detour until eventually

It led you back to the highway.

WHY CAN'T YOU BE AS SENSIBLE AS THAT ABOUT LIFE?

Life is a highway, too—

A highway with detours.

Every now and then something turns life upside down.

Sends you off your course for a bit—

Sometimes for a very long and weary bit—

But that detour isn't the end of life.

Sooner or later, if you'll follow it,

You'll come back into the highway again.

You may be travel-stained and tired—

Sadder and wiser for the ruts and bumps—

But there, again, is the highway waiting

Waiting for you to go on where you left off.

THEY'RE NOT PERSONAL INSULTS.

INVENTED JUST TO PLAGUE YOU.

THEY'RE A PART OF ALL NORMAL LIVING.

EVERYBODY HAS TO TAKE THEM, SOONER OR LATER—

WHY NOT BE SENSIBLE AND TAKE THEM

WITHOUT SO MUCH BELLY-AKIN?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Campus

Gray walls, green oaks with velvet turf below,
A tranquil background for tumultuous youth
Whose restless tides of being ebb and flow,
Whose days are joyous quests for love and truth.
Here youth with dreaming heart and dancing feet
Would thrust aside the veil of days that are,
To peer into the future, vague and sweet,
To snatch tomorrow's fruitage, dear and far.

But lookers-on who see the pageant pass
Can glimpse the vision to youth's self denied:
Tomorrow's leaders stride across the grass,
Builder and statesman saunter side by side,
And that tall lad who laughs so lightly now
Dreams not of laurels waiting for his brow!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

There are times when you feel like giving up.

The struggle of years against odds has made most of your life one of hard work and disappointment.

So little advance financially has taken the pep out of you.

Somehow living expenses have kept up with salary or wage increase.

You don't blame yourself—but who is to blame if you are not?

If you had checked your requirements each year your bank account might have increased.

But it is easier to shift the blame than weigh your own weakness.

True you have pinched in some ways and then expended your surplus.

That has been your greatest trouble, that you could not see a sizable sum in the bank without planning to use it.

What does it matter if you save only to spend in some other way.

You are not consistent in your efforts.

Your will is not strong enough to keep an increasing sum over and above expenses.

When you develop your backbone you will stand by your resolutions.

Now you contemplate being a "quitter"—and want to give up.

Are you going to allow this thought to master you?
